You'd Like the Desert.
Self Flying Airplane.
Hiring Mexicans.
Mild Climate Factories.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

HODGE, Mojave Desert, Cal., Jan. 26

INTERESTING PLACE, this desert, with marvelously fertile soil when water is added. The writer has five thousand acres here, raises alfalfa, seven to nine tons to the acre per season, loses money at it and does not advise anybody to buy land here unless he wants to lose money or work the land himself.

BUT FOR CLIMATE, beautiful hills and mountains, strange animals, jackrabbits, coyotes, lynx and horned toads, giant desert turtles, armored cactus and for contemplation in solitude of "life, death and the vast eternity," no better place could be found.

AMOS AND ANDY penetrate the solitude, competing with Walter Damrosch's concert and the carefree words of "Happy Days are Here Again" if you care to tune in. In homesteaders' cottages the supper hour is arranged to fit the Eastern time of the household radio favorites.

And through the day while the man irrigates the wife listens to all the news, about fashions, price of eggs, weather, politics, crime, etc.

Insanity among farmers' wives has fallen off more than 60 per cent thanks to five great services, RURAL MAIL DELIVERY, AUTOMOBILE, TELEPHONE, TALKING MACHINE AND ABOVE ALL, RADIO.

GERARD SWOPE, president of General Electric, now in Los Angeles, is invited to meet at luncheon, everybody that is anybody. He will be asked for further details of the automatic, self-controlling flying machine on which the laboratories at Schenectady have been working in connection with the Sperry Gyroscope Company. If hopes are realized that self-protecting plane will be safe from crashing in fog. The sonic altimeter brings the machine down safely to within three or four feet of the earth, in the thickest fog, enabling the pilot to land the machine, knowning his exact distance above ground.

A GERMAN invention, the radio eye, picks up the beacon light of a landing field, even in fog, three miles farther away than the pilot can see it, letting him know that it is there, and indicates to him a straight line to that beacon, what men are determined to do, they can do. And they are determined to fly safely. Thanks to science, financed and encouraged by giant corporations, with resources unlimited, they will do it.

A COMPLAINT IS heard here and elsewhere, of "favoritism in hiring Mexicans." There is no such favoritism, but Mexicans are hired, in some cases, exclusively on work that the United States-born cannot or will not do. They do not care, for instance, to lug heavy rails, re-laying railroad tracks. And Arizona, cotton growers find Of[illegible] "Americans" will not pick cotton at prevailing prices of three cents a pound, made necessary by the selling price of cotton. Mexicans and colored men do pick it.

IT IS NOT unusual to see Americans asking for "the price of a cup of coffee," close to a cotton field where they could earn the price of many cups. Specialized work for certain races is not new in America. At one time, immigrants from Ireland did the hard work, "beyant on the old railway." Italians took that work from the Irish and laid most of the railroad trackage in the United States, where there were no Chinese to compete. Now Mexicans do the work that Irish and Italians did formerly, and it is fortunate that they can and will do the work, for the nation's welfare demands that it be done. To prevent it would simply mean forcing and hastening labor-saving machinery, that would mean cutting down employment.

A quarter of a mile from this spot on the Mojave desert, rails are laid by an inexpensive machine, with crane attached, that eliminates 23 men on each job and does the work with absolute accuracy.

THIS COUNTRY is asked to join the League of Nations in a fight against slavery in Liberia. Cynics suggest that the sudden excitement about Liberian slavery, is based on a desire to discourage rubber plantations started in Liberia by Americans, to compete with British rubber and other production. Slave labor, which can be bought or hired in Liberia, is cheaper than any.

However, Harvey Firestone, biggest American rubber grower in Liberia, with a million acres now planting, has also urged the American government to fight Liberian slavery. American manufacturers depend on industrial proficiency and modern machinery, not on slave labor.

IN LOS ANGELES, over the mountains, west of here, new factories are constantly starting, and those planning new manufacturing units should consider the possibilities of profit-making in all-year-round climate conditions.

This applies to the Pacific Coast, the Gulf Coast, Florida, Georgia and other places. The worker is happy in such a climate, he buys no fuel, his living costs are low, intelligent labor is plentiful. And the constant influx of those that have accumulated money elsewhere and come to spend it creates a steadily growing local market. The local buyer natur-

COAL POLICE ABOLISHED

EX-GOVERNOR EDWARDS SUICIDE

Man Once Held Anti-Dry Hope of Democrats Shoots Self in Home; Lives Hours

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Edward I. Edwards, former governor of New Jersey and former United States senator, died today from a self-inflicted bullet wound.

He shot himself last night while alone in his bedroom at his Kensington avenue home.

His son, Irving Edwards, said he had been suffering from ill health and despondency for several months.

Until a few years ago Mr. Edwards was a power in both politics and finance in New Jersey. In 1920 his assertion that he would make New Jersey "as wet as the Atlantic Ocean" caused him to be mentioned as an anti-prohibition hope for the Democratic presidential nomination.

BEATEN FOR SENATE

But in 1928 he was defeated for re-election to the United States Senate and later he had a falling out with Mayor Frank Hague, of Jersey City, Democratic leader of the state, that ended his political prominence.

His financial position suffered because of the troubles of the New Jersey Securities Company, of which he was president. The organization, which owned several banks in Northern New Jersey, went into receivership in 1929 and its chief stockholder, Harry H. Weinberger, subsequently was indicted on charges of fraud.

FIND BODY

Mr. Edwards' body was not discovered until today, hours after death. Charles J. Baumgarten, an old friend and legal adviser, had called to confer with him. Mr. Baumgarten thought it strange when a servant told him Mr. Edwards still was in bed, and with Walter Westfal, a neighbor, he went to the bedroom, where he found the body.

On the floor was a .38 caliber revolver from which one bullet had been fired. There was a wound in the forehead. Police said Mr. Edwards lived several hours after the shot was fired.

CASH BONUS ISSUE UP IN CONGRESS

Legion Committee Resolution Brings Action; Hines Heard on Total Cost

Despite the fact that visions of an extra session of Congress were definitely fading as a result of a reported truce between President Hoover and the Senate, whereby he would defer action on the controversial League Court issue in consideration of speedy enactment of the essential appropriation measures, congressional turmoil continued today with these developments:

1—Demands for immediate cashing of veterans' bonus certificates were renewed as a result of indorsement of such a step by the national executive committee of the American Legion.

3—Steps went forward for swift court action in ousting the three Federal Power commissioners the Senate charges are holding office illegally.

4—Battle lines were drawn in the House as hearings began on the Senate's bill appropriating $25,000,000 to the Red Cross for food relief.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—The question of cash payment of veterans' compensation certificates today was definitely an outstanding issue before Congress.

The agitation which for weeks has enlisted many members in support of a variety of plans for partial or total payment of the certificates' face value, pushed itself ahead with the action in Indianapolis last night of the American Legions' executive committee in indorsing the principle of immediate cash retirement on application.

Without making any recommendations, Veterans Administrator Hines told the Senate Finance Committee today immediate cash redemption of the face value of veterans' adjusted service certificates would cost $3,412,000,000.

GOV. PINCHOT WIPES OUT SYSTEM

Revokes All Commissions Effective June 30; Plans Substitute Organization

With Gov. Gifford Pinchot launching his program of platform pledges without awaiting action by the Legislature, which resumes sessions tonight, political activity went humming along in Harrisburg today with these developments:

1—Gov. Pinchot abolished the coal and iron police, effective June 30.

2—When the Legislature reconvenes tonight a bill to install city-manager form of government in Pittsburgh and all other cities of the state, except Philadelphia, will be introduced by Representative D. Glenn Moore, of Washington County.

3—Gov. Pinchot continued to keep secret the subject of the address he will make to the Legislature.

By E. W. PRENDERGAST,
Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 26.—Gov. Pinchot today abolished the coal and iron police system in Pennsylvania, effective June 30, 1931.

Without waiting for the reconvening of the State Legislature tonight, the Governor plunged headlong into the first of his legislative reforms by wiping out the system, which came into widespread disrepute following the killing of John Borkowski in Allegheny County.

SUBSTITUTE FORCE

Asserting he would recommend in his message to the Legislature establishment of a force selected and commanded by the commonwealth and paid at company expense as a substitute, Gov. Pinchot declared he recognized the necessity for protection in Western Pennsylvania, but added:

"I believe this protection should be provided under conditions which will make such outrages as the Borkowski killing forever impossible."

Today's order does not affect railroad police.

PINCHOT STATEMENT

MERCY URGED BY CLARA BOW

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Sentencing of Daisy De Voe for the theft of $825 from Clara Bow was postponed today until next Monday by Judge William Doran when defense counsel made a motion for a new trial and asked a delay to permit preparation of arguments.

A letter was received by District Attorney Burton Fitts this morning from Clara expressing the actress' hope "that mercy will be shown to Daisy De Voe." It read:

"My Dear Mr. Fitts: I am not sure to whom this letter should be addressed, or whether it is even proper under the circumstances to even write it, but I find myself unable to avoid letting you know that it is my hope that mercy will be shown to Daisy De Voe.

"The fact is that I never would have called this matter to your attention in the first place if Daisy De Voe had not threatened to blackmail me and I had no other way to protect myself except to come to your office and follow your advice.

"If it is right for you to do so I wish you would tell the judge about this letter.

"Sincerely yours,
CLARA BOW."

Mrs. Mildred Bruce, young British aviatrix, landed at Bettis Field today in her midget bi-plane Bluebird III on her trip around the world by plane and ship. She prepared an hour later to take off for Washington en route to New York, where she will board a vessel for the final journey to London. At New Albany, Ind., she dropped an American flag on the birthplace of her mother, Lady Jennie Williams Petre.

Ends Life in Plunge Over Niagara Falls

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Jan. 26.—(AP.)—An unidentified man was carried to death over the brink of the American falls after he had leaped into the rapids from Green Island Bridge.

Several persons saw the man as he was tossed about among the rocks. His body disappeared in the spray at the foot of the falls.

RELIEF LEADERS HOLD PARLEY

Prominent citizens conferred with Mayor Kline and other city officials today to discuss distribution of the city's third fund to relieve the unemployed and the needy.

After the conference Mayor Kline said that while no definite program had been agreed upon, he was well pleased with the discussion and that future meetings would be held.

Citizens in the conference included W. L. Mellon, Taylor Allderdice, A. E. Braun, Philip Matthews, A. E. Humphrey, A. C. Lehman, Edgar Kaufmann and F. F. Nicola. They were conferring with the Mayor, Councilmen John S. Herron and W. Y. English, Controller James P. Kerr and City Solicitor Charles E. Waldschmidt.

Councilman Herron has said city employes would handle this fund.

Council is expected to act today on appropriations of $500,000 for public improvements as a measure to relieve unemployment.

Footsore Veterans Trudge to Capital

ELKTON, Md., Jan. 26.—(INS.)—Twenty-three Philadelphia veterans of the World War out of the 100 that started out on Saturday on a hike to Washington left here today determined to reach their objective despite their dwindling number.

Footsore they were, and weary, but still determined to "carry on" to Washington and fulfill their pledge to petition Congress for cash payment of adjusted compensation certificates.

Manufacturer Dies Of Monoxide Gas

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Samuel Laird, 54, vice president of Jenkins Brothers, valve and packing manufacturers, and manager of the company's Philadelphia branch, was found dead in a private garage near his home in Narberth, today.

The motor of Laird's car was running and a physician said he died of carbon monoxide poisoning. He had planned to drive to Baltimore today.

Parrot Blood, Transfused By Mistake, Saves Girl

JOLIET, Ill., Jan. 26.—(INS.)—An injection of parrot's blood, used through a misinterpretation of instructions, was credited today with having saved the life of Lillian Fisher, 15, victim of infantile paralysis.

It was the first recorded case where a parrot's blood was used in treatment of this disease.

The girl showed unmistakable signs of improvement and quickly recovered a state of coma following the injection of five cubic centimeters of blood from the heart of a living parrot.

Success of the operation brought to light the fact that the parrot's blood was injected by mistake. Dr. George Weaver, in giving instructions to fellow physicians, was understood to have ordered parrot's blood for an injection. The parrot was obtained and it was only after the operation had been performed that Dr. Weaver learned his associates had mistaken the word "parents" for "parrots."

PROBER SHIFTS TO DRY REPEAL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—With a statement in Seattle advocating an immediate change in national prohibition, Kenneth Mackintosh added his name to those of six other law enforcement commissioners who specifically took such a stand in the Wickersham report, it was related today.

Of the 11 members, Newton D. Baker and Monte Lemann called for outright repeal. Four called for revision of the Eighteenth Amendment, Miss Ada Comstock, Henry W. Anderson, Frank J. Loesch and Dean Roscoe Pound.

In Seattle, former Judge Mackintosh said today he had taken the stand the national dry law could not be enforced in the time which has elapsed since his individual statement in the Wickersham report was written.

SUIT ON MOORE WILL HALTED

Trial of Dorothy Russell O'Reilly Calvit's suit for a half interest in the $575,000 estate of her stepfather, the late Ambassador Alexander P. Moore, got under way this afternoon before Judge Thomas P. Trimble in Orphans Court. The plaintiff's star witness, Bessie Clayton, former stage celebrity, was confined by illness at her Long Branch home, according to counsel for Mrs. Calvit. After two witnesses were heard the case was continued until February 4.

An alleged pre-nuptial agreement between Lillian Russell, mother of the plaintiff, and Moore, is the basis of the suit. Miss Clayton, counsel for the plaintiff said, was to prove such an agreement was made.

NURSE TESTIFIES

Son Born to Harold Lloyds Weighs 4 lbs.; Stork Early

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan. 26.—(INS.)—Winning a race with the stork to a hospital, Harold Lloyd, Jr., weight 4 pounds, was placed in a specially-heated incubator where physicians today gave him a "50-50" chance for life.

The mite, son of Harold Lloyd, screen comedian, and his wife, formerly Mildred Davis, was born at 10 o'clock last night, two months before his arrival was anticipated.

Mrs. Lloyd was reported "doing well." Lloyd was overjoyed at being the father of a son. He and Mrs. Lloyd have two daughters—Gloria, 7, and Elizabeth, 6. The latter was adopted in 1930.

A string of small white beads inscribed "Harold Lloyd, Jr." and taken to a hospital seven years ago when Gloria was born, today encircled the neck of the tiny infant, placed in a luxurious special nursery room in the hospital.

CITY MANAGER BILL FOR PENNSYLVANIA CITIES DRAFTED

PITTSBURGH INCLUDED IN PLAN

Legislature to Reconvene Tonight; Packet Ready For Action on Measures

HARRISBURG, Jan. 26.

As members of the State Legislature gathered here for the reconvening session tonight, Representative Gifford Moore, of Washington County, announced plans to introduce a measure in the House providing for the installation of city manager government in every city in the state with a population of 100,000 or more. Philadelphia and Pittsburgh would be included.

A similar measure, applying to cities of the second class, of which Scranton is the only one at present, is also contemplated.

ELECTED BY COUNCIL

The measure, which Moore said he would push to passage in short order, followed a conference with Governor Pinchot, who, it was reported, would support the bill. Moore said he would have broad powers removed from the office of mayor.

The manager would be chosen by Council, which would also appoint all heads of the city departments.

Members of Council, according to the Moore measure, at all times, perform the duties of commissioners of parks, public affairs, etc. On the question of adopting the city manager plan, forty per cent of the voters in the municipal election also could have the question placed on the ballots.

NO MAYOR VETO

The mayor would have a vote in Council, but not a veto. No member of Council could serve as manager during his term. The salary of Pittsburgh councilmen would be cut from $8,000 to $6,500 yearly.

Election of council would be on a non-partisan basis, each voter being privileged to vote for first choice and other preferences without regard to the number of councilmen to be selected. Those receiving the greatest number of higher choice votes would be elected.

Fifty senators and more than 200 representatives will be here for the reconvening of the Legislature tonight and Gov. Pinchot is putting the finishing touches to an address which he expects to present to legislators who, for the first time in a number of years, are not certain how their next-seat neighbors will cast their ballots.

SENATE UNDER WAY

The Senate tonight will get its first bills and the report of the slate committee which did not complete its list at the session last week during inauguration.

The House hopper is expected to be filled with many more bills including, too, its slating report and a bonus resolution by affiliated war veteran organizations asking that it be passed a second time to enable it to become a referendum to the people in 1933. If approved by the people, the bill will provide a $50,000,000 bond issue from which veterans of the Spanish and World Wars will be paid a state bonus.

LINE-UP PUZZLE

With all indications pointing to the ending of Senate sessions tomorrow and likewise the Assembly, the speeches probably will be given then and emphasize in more detail the leading issues of the governor's platform on power, unemployment and roads, with the dry problem minimized. Members of both factions—Pinchot and Philadelphia groups—today are wondering if there is a bill or issue which can be used as a test to decide the formations, particularly in the Senate.

Many power men are anti-dry, coal and iron police men may not be for power or public utility regulation, and city may be against or for coal or Blue Laws or the road program. Any may be the reverse and so on in a maze of combinations beyond the guessing power of Capitol Hill veteran prophets.

Discount on Taxes End This Week

This is the last week the city offers a discount in the payment of school taxes and water rents and today taxpayers crowded the corridors of the City-County Building and the treasurer's office to take advantage of the 2 per cent discount. After next Saturday taxes will be received at face value and after April 1, delinquent.

WATCH OUT! — By Quin Hall

RULE ASSIGNED KEITH'S DUTIES

HARRISBURG, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Dr. James N. Rule, deputy superintendent of public instruction, today was designated by Gov. Pinchot as acting head of the department until a successor to Dr. John A. H. Keith is appointed. Dr. Keith's term of office expired at noon Saturday.

Rule, who came here from Pittsburgh, has been a deputy in the department since 1923.

It was reported that Pinchot might not announce his selection for superintendent of public instruction until June.

As the superintendent of public instruction serves a four-year term and is not subject to dismissal by the Governor as are other cabinet posts, such a course would result in the superintendent's term quadrennially ending in June.

Dr. Rule, a graduate of Washington and Jefferson College, formerly was principal of Washington and Jefferson Academy, and prior to his appointment as deputy superintendent was principal of Schenley High School. He was active in the Red Cross work during the war.

Leechburg Postal Head Nominated

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Appointment of John D. Goodbread as acting postmaster at Leechburg, Pa., was recommended today by Representative Strong. Goodbread would succeed Charles F. FLAMES SWEEP MAYFLOWER

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 22.—(INS.)—Settling deeper and deeper into the slimy bed of the Delaware River off the navy yard here, the yacht Mayflower, the floating "White House" of five Presidents, probably never again will sail out to sea.

The beautiful vessel was swept by flames late Saturday night and early Sunday morning with a resultant loss of nearly $1,000,000. Fire boats and fire companies from the shore poured streams of water on the burning ship until it began to sink and enabled them to bring the flames under control.

It is believed a short-circuit caused the blaze. An investigation was to be launched today to determine the exact cause of the fire and to also determine if the Mayflower again will be seaworthy.

NEW ELECTION CODE READY

HARRISBURG, Jan. 26.—An election code, prepared by the State Elections Commission, designed to strengthen the election machinery of the state, will be presented to Gov. Pinchot by Saturday, Secretary of the Commonwealth Richard J. Beamish announced today. This commission has been at work for the last nine months and has held 50 sessions, Secretary Beamish said.

Alexander P. Lindsay, of Pittsburgh, is chairman of the body.

Another matter occupying the attention of the secretary of the commonwealth is the question of voting machines. In a number of counties the use of machines was authorized, but little has been done toward their installation, Beamish says.

High Court Delays Clark Appeal Ruling

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(INS.)—The Supreme Court today failed to render an opinion in the government's appeal from the decision of Federal Judge Clark, of New Jersey, holding the Eighteenth Amendment unconstitutional.

The case was argued in the court last week. It is possible that a decision may be rendered February 2. After that date the court will be in recess until February 23.

BILL PROPOSES FLINN STATUE

Representative Arthur Storer will present a bill to the State Legislature to provide for a statue of the late State Senator William Flinn, father of the modern improved roads system. The bill, which is being introduced at the request of County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern, calls for the erection of the statue in the State Capitol beside those of United States Senators Matthew Quay and Boies Penrose.

Col. Woods Sees Job Situation Improving

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(INS.)—The employment situation based on reports considered reliable, is distinctly more optimistic than a year ago, Col. Arthur Woods, chairman of the President's emergency employment committee, said today, adding:

"There has been a real advance toward reducing unemployment in the growing tendency of individual citizens to accept a social responsibility to provide employment wherever possible."

commission of a coal and iron policeman now in force or hereafter issued shall be terminated as of June 30, 1931. On that date, accordingly, there will not remain a coal and iron policeman in office in the state of Pennsylvania.

"I have also promised to recommend to the Legislature, and shall recommend in my first message, the substitution for the coal and iron police of a force selected and commanded by the commonwealth and paid by it at company expense.

TO CALL CONFERENCE

"As a step in the preparation of such a bill, I shall, in the near future, invite to Harrisburg, to confer with me and with each other, representatives of operators, miners and the general public, especially from Western Pennsylvania, where the coal and iron police question has been, and still is, acute.

"I recognize the necessity for police protection in these regions, but I believe it should be provided under conditions which will make such outrages as the Borkoski killing forever impossible."

Borkowski Death Leads To Coal Police Ouster

It was the Borkowski case which aroused state-wide indignation against the coal and iron police.

John Borkowski, a miner, of Santiago, was beaten to death in February, 1929. Three coal and iron police of the Pittsburgh Coal Company—Lieut. Walter J. Lyster, Harold P. Watts, Frank Slapikas—were acquitted of the murder, but Lyster and Watts were convicted of involuntary manslaughter. Witnesses told of Lyster and Watts beating Borkowski with a strap, knuckles and revolver. This was denied. Lyster is now serving a one-year sentence and Watts a 10-months' sentence in the Allegheny County Workhouse.

Miss Mavis, cigaret girl at Club Abbey, New York's hottest spot," who took Goodtime Charlie "Chink" Sherman to the hospital with three bullets in chest and 12 stab wounds in his body. She was reticent about it, said he was on the sidewalk outside.

WOMEN BLAMED IN CAFE ROW

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—The wrecking of the Club Abbey and the shooting of one or more Broadway racketeers early Saturday morning was attributed today to a quarrel between two women.

In reconstructing the events, police said they believed that Arthur (Dutch) Schulz, Bronx beer baron, was wounded along with "Chink" Sherman, who is in Polyclinic Hospital with gun and knife wounds. Schultz and his chief aide, known as "Marty the Wolf," are the objects of a search.

Schultz, his two bodyguards and two women were seated near Sherman's party, which included three women. During the course of the entertainment, a woman from Schultz's table and one from Sherman's table started an altercation, one of them using a table knife to defend herself.

The men joined in the argument and soon revolvers and knives were flashing. The lights were shot out. Schultz was whisked away in a taxicab by his two confederates. He was wounded at least once in the shoulder and possibly seriously.

SUIT ON MOORE WILL HALTED

Moore and his wife, Moore said she "needn't worry about her daughter as he would take care of her in life and leave her a portion of the estate at his death."

Mrs. Calvit is represented by Attorneys Herman P. Pollack and Samuel Kornbluth, of New York, and Ira C. Houch, of Pittsburgh. Attorney John O. Wicks appeared for the Union Trust Company, executors of Moore's will.

On direct examination, Mrs. Coombe said that Mrs. Moore was worried and wanted to return to the stage in order to earn money for Dorothy. At that time, she said, Moore stated he would take care of Dorothy. The witness said that the amount of the share promised Dorothy from the estate was not mentioned, although plaintiff's counsel tried to refresh her memory as to what she told her husband the night the promise was made. The witness said Moore only promised to care for Mrs. Moore's daughter.

TELLS OF PROMISE

Mrs. Anna Newhause, Pittsburgh nurse, testified relative to a conversation between Moore and his wife, concerning care of Dorothy, during the latter's illness in 1919 and 1920. At that time, according to the witness, Moore promised to care for Dorothy.

Mrs. Moore was quoted as saying:

"I hope she is given as good care after I'm gone."

Moore replied:

"No use of you worrying about that. I will take care of her, I promised you.

The witness said no date was mentioned when the promise was made.

RUM VESSEL CAPTURE UPHELD

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—The Coast Guard was well within its rights in firing on the Canadian schooner Josephine K just outside New York harbor, and the killing of the captain of the vessel, William P. Cluett, was "merely an incident," Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Lowman declared today.

He asserted the Canadian boat was well within the 12-mile limit and that it was caught in the act of transferring liquor to American boats.

DEATH AN "INCIDENT"

Lowman asserted the Coast Guard patrol did not fire upon the schooner with the intention of taking life, but in the pursuance of its duty to prevent smuggling, and the death of Capt. Cluett was merely an incident.

Lowman said:

"According to official reports, last Saturday night a small Coast Guard cutter surprised the schooner 'Josephine K.,' a notorious rum-runner, transferring a cargo of liquor to a scow and a small motor boat. They were located well within the 12-mile limit, just outside New York harbor.

"The Coast Guard boat hoisted its pennant as required by law. The rum-runner started up, whereupon the Coast Guard cutter fired three blank shots and then three solid shots across her bow, to which she paid no attention. A solid shot was then fired into the Josephine K, which partly demolished the cabin and injured the captain of the boat.

"The rum-runner was not only within the 12-mile limit, but was making direct contact with American boats from shore, including a garbage scow, on which was found part of the cargo; a tug that had the scow in tow, and also a motorboat alongside the rum-runner. The motor boat escaped, but the scow and the tug were seized."

CANADA ASKS FACTS

Hume Wrong, Canadian charge d'affaires, called at the State Department today and requested full information on the case. He was advised it had not yet been received from the Treasury. Wrong indicated the legation's position will depend upon instructions received from the Canadian government.

Coast Guard Shell Wrecks Rum Runn

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—(INS.)—A shot from a Coast Guard patrol boat pierced the gasoline tank of the Canadian speedboat Temiscorda today and halted the alleged rum runner in Fort Pond bay near Greenport. A cargo of 1,000 cases of liquor was seized, patrolmen said, and the Temiscorda and its crew of six was taken into New London, Conn.

Coolidge Favors Making Aged Doles Unnecessary

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Jan. 26.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

Considerable investigation is being made of the problem of old age pensions. Some governments and some industries have adopted such a system and it appeals to our sympathies. Only the experimental state has been reached so that its soundness has not been demonstrated. We are constantly trying to adopt reforms of some artificial nature so as to save ourselves from suffering from the defects of human nature as it is now constituted. No doubt some of our efforts are helpful and the fact that we realize our deficiencies and are intent on remedying them is most encouraging. Our failures lie in attempting to reach the goal by some short cut without really removing the cause of the difficulty. We try to reform ourselves on the outside when the only effective remedy is to reform ourselves on the inside.

Calvin Coolidge

What a self-respecting people really needs is not a system of old-age pensions but a population made sufficiently skilled by education and sufficiently self controlled and well disposed by the help of religion so that old-age pensions would be a superfluity. Unless real reform comes from within the problem will never be solved.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

Prince, Pretty Girl Linked In Fiction-Like Romance

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—One of the story-book-most appealing tales—that of the pretty girl who marries a prince—appeared today about to come true in Sweden.

The principals in the romance are Prince Lennart, grandson of King Gustave and son of the monarch's second son, William, and Karin Nissawatt, daughter of a prominent Indo-realist of Stockholm who is of Dutch descent.

Court circles deny that stories of impending announcement of engagement of the two are correct, but the newspaper Dagblad says, apparently with some authority, that official announcement will be made shortly.

Prince Lennart's mother is the Grand Duchess Marie Pavlovna of Russia, whose marriage to Prince William was dissolved in 1914. She is now earning her living as a stylist in a New York department store. The prince, her son, is 21 years old.

Prince Lennart has just finished his military service and has been engaged in farming in southern Sweden. The girl, not yet 20, has been with him there and it is understood that they will come to Stockholm shortly to obtain royal assent to their wedding.

This assent will involve the prince's renunciation of rights to the throne, of which his uncle the crown prince has five children, these rights are not regarded as of great importance.

GANDHI FREED BY BRITISH, SMUGGLED OUT OF PRISON

GUARD ROADS TO BAFFLE FRIENDS

Mahatma, Frail, Garbed in Shawl, Accompanied by Woman Poet to Bombay

POONA, India, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Mahatma Gandhi, frail 61-year-old leader of the Indian Nationalists, was released from prison tonight shortly after 11 o'clock.

They took him out the back way secretly, bundled him into a closed automobile with drawn curtains and drove to a small railway station about 10 miles from Poona, where the authorities put him on a train for Bombay. He was due to arrive there at 5:30 tomorrow morning.

WOMAN POET TRAVELS

With him on the train was the woman Nationalist, Mrs. Sarojini Naidu, India's leading poetess, who toured America in 1929. Along the roads through which the automobile raced were posted armed sentries, who turned back the cars which sought to follow the mahatma.

None but a few persons, including the Associated Press correspondent, knew in advance the exact hour at which this midnight "flight" would take place. The authorities had maintained the closest secrecy regarding Gandhi's release as a precaution against demonstrations by his followers.

All day and all night crowds in which there were many women waited outside the jail hoping for a fleeting glimpse of the man who would lead India's 320,000,000 out of the shadow of British rule and into the full light of freedom. They were disappointed.

Gandhi's last act before leaving the prison where he has lived since last May was to hand Maj. J. R. Martin, superintendent, a written statement in which, it was understodo, he thanked him for his considerate treatment.

BAD GOOD QUARTERS

This gesture was not unexpected, for since the beginning of his incarperation Gandhi has occupied several large rooms opening on the courtyard garden.

The Associated Press correspondent was one of a small group permitted to travel with the mahatma. Gandhi chatted pleasantly about his life in the prison and his plans for the future. He was particularly interested to know what America thought of him and how the American people regarded Ramsey MacDonald's declaration of Indian policy.

He was too weary and excited, he said, to give a formal interview, but he promised a statement when he reached Bombay.

MacDonald Warns Of Force in India

LONDON, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Premier Ramsay MacDonald warned the House of Commons today that unless Great Britain is willing to continue peaceful negotiations for the settlement of the Indian problem, British soldiers must be prepared to subdue by force not only the Indian masses, but also the spirit of the times.

Mr. MacDonald said that by a policy of repression Great Britain would obtain neither credit nor success. A great proportion of the masses, he said, were women and children, and the task would develop into one of repression of the entire Indian population.

Italian Colony In Africa Revolts

LONDON, Jan. 26.—(INS.)—A serious uprising in Cyrenaica, a section of the Italian colony of Libia, in Africa, was revealed today in an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Rome reporting Italian native troops had occupied the city of El Tag after killing 100 insurrectionists. In the stubborn battle, which preceded capture of the city, the Italians lost four dead and 16 wounded.

WIFE BELIEVES CRATER ALIVE

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—The wife of the missing Joseph Force Crater, Supreme Court justice, has changed her mind about her husband. She said:

"At first I believed he had been murdered. Since finding the cash and other valuables in a drawer of our apartment last week, however, I can only believe that he is still alive—somewhere.

"I am perfectly willing to tell the district attorney anything I know of the case. I am confident my husband would not have taken his own life. He was not the type of man to do so, and there was no motive.

"I am forced now to believe that he left of his own will, after deliberate planning. Why I cannot guess."

The justice has been mysteriously missing since August 6 last.

Turk, Once Governor, Dies at 109, Broke

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—(INS.)—Funeral arrangements were being made today for Aredis Demourdjian, 109 years old, who was reputed to have been a one-time Turkish governor. Demourdjian died here last night almost penniless. He had been hit by an automobile recently and suffered injuries from which he failed to recover.

He had told acquaintances that he was the father of 118 children. His wives numbered 78, he said.

FETE EX-KAISER ON NATAL DAY

DOORN, Holland, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—William Hohenzollern will observe his seventy-second birthday anniversary Tuesday with only the faintest reminder of the pomp and ceremony which once surrounded him as emperor of Germany.

In the morning he will attend divine services, later receive the congratulations of his immediate family and at noon preside at a family dinner.

During the afternoon and evening, however, the day will take on a bit of the glamor which once surrounded his throne. Delegations of German Monarchists will be received, and in the evening a formal dinner at which the former Kaiser will don the uniform of a German field marshal general and the decorations of his rank.

The approach of the anniversary finds the one-time Kaiser in better condition, mentally and physically, than any time since he quit the Fatherland 13 years ago. This he attributes to his wood-chopping exercise, now a part of his daily routine, rain or shine.

ALMA RUBENS' BURIAL TODAY

FRESNO, Col., Jan. 26.—(INS.)—The body of Alma Rubens, star of the stage and motion pictures, will be entombed today in the family crypt at Fresno Mausoleum.

Final funeral services were held at Glendale Saturday, hence there will be none today.

Mrs. Theresa Rubens, mother of the dead actress, and Miss Rubens' sister, Mrs. Hazel Large, of Madera, accompanied the body here.

Hundreds paid their respects to the dead film star yesterday as the body lay in state at a local undertaking establishment.

ally gives preference to goods that employ labor in his own territory.

Every manufacturing corporation with nationwide distribution, should have an all-year-round mild climate plant, and some might well have half a dozen. Probably Mr. Swope has come here, this time, to expand General Electric activities. Myron Taylor and Mr. Farrell, of United States Steel, already are on this coast in a big way now, having purchased the largest Pacific steel concern. If steel manufacture by electric process which U. S. Steel is developing comes up to expectations, making available refractory ores and the unlimited supplies of iron bearing sands, on the Pacific shore, California may rank with Pennsylvania as an iron state, using hydro-electric power or oil, instead of coal.

A TEXAS JURY has convicted Mrs. Clara Uhr of murder, and she will be executed, unless Texas says no. There is nothing to be said in the woman's behalf, except that she is a woman.

A soldier, Lexie Jones, of Fort Sam Huston, swore that Mrs. Uhr paid him five hundred dollars to kill her husband, and left an ax where he could get it. The unfortunate man was murdered as he lay beridden by a stroke of paralysis. But Texas in all its history has never executed a woman. Many believe that public opinion will refuse to change that record.

25,000 New Yorkers Missing During 1930

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—More than 25,000 persons, including 2,450 girls and 3,500 boys, were reported missing in New York last year. So said Capt. John H. Ayres, of the Missing Persons Bureau, in an address at St. John's Protestant Episcopal Church last night.

HOUSE HONORS PORTER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—Recognition of the public services of the late Congressman Stephen G. Porter, of Pittsburgh, was made today when the House of Representatives adopted unanimously a resolution in his memory introduced by Representative Edmund F. Erk. In addition to his conspicuous work as head of the committee on foreign affairs, the achievements of Congressman Porter toward the suppression in the illicit traffic in opium and other narcotics were lauded.

It was pointed out that he was dean of the Pennsylvania state delegation in Congress and an indefatigable worker. He was chairman of the committee on foreign affairs longer than any of his predecessors, serving during the crucial period of reconstruction following the World War. He was the author of the resolution declaring the termination of a state of war between the United States and the Central Powers, and sponsored the resolution remitting China's Boxer indemnity.

The resolution was drafted by Congressman Erk who was named chairman of the sub-committee appointed to take appropriate action on the death of Porter.

FRICKS GRANTED TAX REFUNDS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Refunds of $141,026 to Helen C. Frick and $410,711 to Adelaide H. C. Frick, of Pittsburgh, for over-assessments of income tax in 1920-21-22-23-24-25 and 1926 were announced today by the internal revenue bureau.

The over-assessments were caused by elimination from the incomes reported in the tax returns of certain amounts included as income received from an estate and certain trusts which after field investigations the bureau determined to have been erroneously overstated.

Of the amount refunded to Helen C. Frick, $5,246 was caused by the allowance of deduction of state inheritance taxes, and of the refund to Adelaide Frick $17,766 was caused by similar allowances.

PARIS RADICALS BACK LAVAL

PARIS, Jan. 26.—(INS.)—Faced by a delicate political situation, Premier-designate Pierre Laval drew new hope for the formation of a cabinet today with assurance from the Radical party of their unqualified support.

There is a strong probability the new government will be pieced together with exclusion of the Socialists on one side and the Nationalists on the other. M. Laval hoped to announce his ministry today.

The Premier-designate labored in his office at the Quai d'Orsay throughout Sunday, holding a long conversation with Aristide Briand upon the latter's return from Geneva.

Although no comment was forthcoming, informed circles here were convinced Briand again would get the portfolio of foreign minister which he has held in the past seven consecutive cabinets.

U. S. SENATOR VICTIMIZED AT FARO

Chicago Magnate, Britisher Reported Trapped by Ring Taking Woman's $50,000

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—Investigation of the faro game swindle that stripped Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blacklidge, former collector of internal revenue, of $50,000 cash, today revealed the operations of a confidence ring that has victimized officials of more than a quarter of a million dollars in the last six months.

Among the victims, according to police and federal agents investigating the confidence ring, were a United States senator, a prominent Chicago business leader, David Tinkham, a prominent Englishman, and Julius Frank, a German subject.

SENATOR VICTIM

Investigators announced that the United States senator was mulcted out of $68,000 on a racing racket. His name was not disclosed.

As in the Blacklidge swindle, faro was used to trick the unnamed Chicago business leader out of $90,000. He regained $82,000 of this by a compromise with the gang, it was learned.

David Tinkham was fleeced of $33,000 in a "stock tip" swindle, it was announced, and Julius Frank lost $50,000. At least 12 other prominent men in business and politics lost varying amounts, according to detectives.

THREE GANGS JOIN

Three separate gangs combined to form one large ring to perpetrate these swindles, it was learned. The swindlers, it was said, maintained headquarters at Denver, Springfield, Ill., and Akron, O.

The Sangamon County grand jury will investigate the $50,000 faro game swindle at Springfield, Ill., it was indicated today. It was this manipulation that victimized Mrs. Blacklidge and brought about her resignation Saturday. Both she and Edward R. Litsinger, member of the board of review here, are expected to testify before the grand jury. It was Litsinger's $50,000, assertedly borrowed by Mrs. Blacklidge, which was taken in the faro game coup.

Oil Man Settles Alienation Action

WHEELING, W. Va., Jan. 26.—The $500,000 alienation of affection suit of Herman Arbense against E. S. Romine was settled out of court, according to Judge J. Harold Brennen, before whom it was to come up for trial today.

Arbense is an engineer with the state road department and the defendant, a millionaire oil and real estate man. Arbense some time ago obtained a divorce from his wife, naming Romine as co-respondent. It is said that a cash settlement was made.

HOOVER TRUCE BARS EXTRA SESSION

President Agrees to Delay Court Issue if Congress Speeds Supply Bills

By GEORGE E. HOLMES
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—President Hoover struck a bargain with the lame duck leadership in Congress.

He has [illegible] learned today that the Senate [illegible] session after March 4 [illegible] controversial [illegible] tion, [illegible] whole-hearted [illegible] ministration [illegible] the [illegible] through [illegible] need for a special session.

LEADERS ACCEPT

The Senate [illegible] whom are opposed to the President's position, have accepted the offer with [illegible] Because of interests [illegible] with the President [illegible] the Court and [illegible] here before [illegible] he has never [illegible] himself with regard to [illegible] session of the Senate [illegible] after March 4. Senate leaders [illegible] themselves to [illegible] the appropriation [illegible] theory was that there was no need for undue haste. Mr. Hoover was planning to have [illegible] the World Court agreement.

But now that Mr. Hoover has yielded to [illegible] a League Court [illegible] pected the leaders [illegible] the acceleration [illegible] the supply bills to [illegible] the remaining the only reason for calling the new session [illegible] into session before [illegible] 30.

33 DAYS REMAIN

Thirty-three [illegible] days remain on this [illegible] Congress. There are [illegible] big supply bills to enact. None of them has yet been passed in final form although the House has acted on seven of them and the Senate four. Conference committees are engaged in [illegible] the differences.

Thus it appears today that there is only the barest of outside chances there will be a special session of the new Congress at once. It also appeared that the present lame duck session is going to accomplish little in the life yet remaining to it except pass the supply bills and perhaps the $25,000,000 drought relief fund which the administration is trying to block.

HOWELL BILL

As for other legislation the Howell bone-dry bill for the national capital may squeeze through but the outlook for additional legislation is not bright. The Norris Muscle Shoals bill is languishing in conference. The Wagner unemployment bills are dawdling along and although there is a lot of agitation for cashing veterans adjusted compensation certificates at once there is scant hope of action in the brief time yet remaining.

The anti-drys are bitterly opposing the Howell bill on general principles. The general feeling on Capitol Hill is however that it does not matter much whether it is passed or not. The opinion is general that in the first test before the Supreme Court it will be knocked out as unconstitutional. The high court recently established a precedent for such action.

Mr. Hoover [illegible] an anxious five weeks while Congress fumbles and roars to its constitutional death on March 4. But his agreement not to summon a special session of the Senate alone after March 4 will do much to ease the administration's position during the remainder of the hostilities.

BONUS ISSUE UP IN CONGRESS

ernment's loans on the basis of the bonus certificates have jumped during the current month far in excess of any previous month.

Whereas loans have been previously made at the rate of from $5,000,000 to $7,000,000 a month, Hines said they are running at the rate of $1,000,000 a day this month and so far total $7,000,000.

Hines testified immediate redemption of all the certificates would save the government about $1,000,000,000 4 years from now to 1945 in administrative costs and about $230,000,000 in the difference between full payment and part payment of the additional 2 per cent credit on each certificates provided in the original act.

He was not prepared to estimate the cost of the bill introduced by Senator Vandenberg (Rep.), Mich. proposing to allow each veteran to borrow 50 per cent of the face value of his certificate, but said it would allow average loans of about $300.

LEGION RESOLUTION

The resolution supported by the legion committee declared that the immediate distribution and circulation of [illegible] would at this time materially assist in the relief of present [illegible] conditions and put new life in [illegible] American business, and would bring immediate relief to the hundreds of thousands of veterans and their dependents who are now in sore distress and dire need.

was laid aside today, [illegible] the Senate adjourned [illegible] spoke opposing it.

SHOWDOWN ASKED

Flaying the statement of Senator Fess, chairman of the Republican National Committee, [illegible] coming President Hoover's attitude on revision of the prohibition laws, as [illegible] Senator Burton J. Wheeler of Montana today called for a showdown on the President's stand.

Wheeler asked if "the country was to be kept waiting [illegible] to learn what the President's stand is on the question" and declared that "the time has arrived when [illegible] should speak out." The Montanan said an attempt was being made in the administration to "sidetrack" the President "as both before and since [illegible]," he asked.

"Will the country be kept in anxiety for another 15 or 16 months until the next Republican national convention to know where Mr. Hoover stands on this important and controversial subject?"

Meanwhile [illegible] of the Wickersham Commission and the Department of Justice [illegible] prohibition [illegible] their efforts in the Senate today in support of the Howell bill, proponents of a dry-bone-dry law for the national capital.

Spurred on by the [illegible] the silent approval of President Hoover [illegible] the Wickersham report which revealed [illegible] bird-handed methods [illegible] unreasonable searches and seizures and lawless interference with personal and property rights, [illegible] they rushed the bill, proposing to make every policeman a deputy authorized to search warrants in cases of evidence of bootlegging and impose the 30-days jail sentences for drinking in public, [illegible] be enacted as an experiment to determine whether prohibition can be enforced in the District of Columbia.

POWER BOARD OUSTER BLOC WINS TEST

Senate Committee Votes 8 to 3 to Carry Fight On Commission Into Court

By PIERCE MILLER.
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—The Democratic insurgent coalition won the first round today in its fight to force court ouster proceedings against three Federal Power Commissioners, when the Senate Judiciary Committee voted, 8 to 3, to [illegible] Walsh resolution asking the District of Columbia supreme court to proceed [illegible] in the District's supreme court.

Senator [illegible] Republican of Maryland, and Hebert, Republican of Rhode Island, voted with the Democrats. Republicans Norris, Smith, chairman, and Mayfield, Democrat, voted against the resolution.

RECALLS ACTION

By a second vote of the Senate that body, and the confirmations [illegible] had not been completed after the new commissioners with those three commissioners present, dismissed the friends of the progressive in the Power Board [illegible] with the old commission.

Attorney General Mitchell has told the President the Senate had no right to reconsider the nomination of the California commissioner since steps had been taken to oust him.

The whole question hinges on the fact the President was not notified of confirmation before the time limit had elapsed which the Senate could reconsider its action. Senators [illegible] Smith and Draper was called out in a pet [illegible] manner by the presiding officer but he left [illegible] ph ase.

SPURRED BY OUSTER

It would not have mattered if the new power commissioners had not acted on [illegible] Charles A. Russell, solicitor, and William V. King, chief accountant. They [illegible] with F. E. Bonner, [illegible] of the old commission in connection with padded accounts [illegible] compensation purposes, [illegible] against the power companies.

It has been charged in the Senate and elsewhere that Bonner was the representative within the commission of the power interests.

OPEN HEARINGS ON RED CROSS FUND HELD

Hyde Tells Drought Relief Plans as House Committee Decides Against Secrecy

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—Yielding to demands, the House Appropriations Committee today decided to open to the public its hearing on the Senate's $25,000,000 Red Cross drought relief amendment to the Interior Department appropriation bill.

At the outset, Representative Byrns, Democrat, Tennessee, said that time was important and that how much from the hearings would economize and Representative Champion, Republican, Michigan, replied that only enough time could be taken to develop the [illegible].

He continued:

"I regret that some mistaken persons have said that these hearings are for delay. I hope this gill can be reported back to the House before the end of the week."

HYDE QUESTIONED

Secretary of Agriculture Hyde said his department had rushed plans for loaning $45,000,000 to drought-ridden farmers for seed and feed and was ready to make [illegible]. The Bureau of Public Roads is in contact with states [illegible] to push road work to provide employment.

Hyde said that the worst hit drought areas where but 30 to 50 per cent of normal crops were produced included Arkansas, Southeastern Oklahoma, Some of Texas, some of Northern Louisiana and some of Western Mississippi. The crop shortage due to drought, from a national standpoint, Hyde said, was in corn, hay and forage alone.

"We thank both the wheat and cotton crops are larger than they should be."

ROAD FUND EXPLAINED

Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the Bureau of Public Roads, testified efforts were made to spread public road building by use of the $80,000,000 emergency fund voted by Congress in December. This with regular funds, provides a road program of $168,000,000.

"This is the amount of federal funds alone. We expect the total program, with state expenditures, to be about $300,000,000."

The largest highway expenditure on such a program in the past he said, was $225,000,000.

PAYNE TO BE CALLED

Chairman John Barton Payne of the Red Cross and field workers may appear Tuesday, Cramton said.

Col. Arthur Woods, chairman of President Hoover's unemployment committee, also will be summoned.

Byrns indicated he would call for appearance of William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and the governors of several drought-ridden states.

While Byrns and other Democrats frankly charged administration leaders were seeking to delay the bill in the hope the Red Cross would complete its drive for $10,000,000, Cramton said he hoped to complete hearings this week.

7 STATES STUDY EMPLOYMENT INSURANCE

Conference of Governors Called by Roosevelt Seeks To End Jobless Crisis

By RAYMOND L. BORST,
International News Service.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 26.—An exhaustive study of unemployment insurance as a means of combatting future industrial depressions will be made by seven leading industrial states of the East as a result of a decision reached at the conference of governors at Albany, it was learned today.

The states which will participate are New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island and Ohio.

MEET FOR STUDY

In deciding to conduct a thorough study of unemployment insurance, the governors from the Eastern States, or their representatives, made it plain they had not committed themselves or their states to any attempt to put such a plan into effect, but that they believed it deserved careful study.

Gov. Roosevelt, who called the conference in Albany, is known to believe unemployment insurance is inevitable if suffering and distress are to be avoided in case of future depression.

The first step in the study of this subject will be taken at a meeting of the representatives of the seven states in New York City at a time to be fixed by Roosevelt.

STUDY TAX LAWS

In addition to a study of unemployment insurance, the governors decided to send representatives of their industrial and tax departments to a conference shortly in Pennsylvania, where an effort will be made to make labor and corporate tax laws of the seven states more uniform.

The governors believe that if labor and corporate tax laws of eastern states can be equalized present competition between states for new industries will be eliminated to a large extent.

SMOOT VICTIM OF INFLUENZA

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(AP)—Senator Reed Smoot of Utah who was this month added to the congressional list of sufferers from influenza.

The veteran legislator, who becomes dean of the Senate after March 4 with the retiring of Senator Simmons of North Carolina, was stricken Saturday and was under strict orders of his physician to remain in bed until cured.

Senator Smoot went to his office Saturday but soon found it necessary to return home. He has been working doggedly this session with other Republican leaders to get the necessary appropriation bills through to avoid an extra session.

His most recent assignment was the steering of the supply bill for the Interior Department through the Senate.

Halifax Archbishop E. J. McCarthy Dies

HALIFAX, N. S., Jan. 26.—(INS)—The Most Rev. Edward J. McCarthy, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Halifax and Bermuda since 1906, died at his home here today. He was 82. The archbishop had been in failing health for several months.

Auto Skid Fatal To Oakmont Man

NEW KENSINGTON, Jan. 26.—Mike Abraham, 45, of Oakmont, died today in the Citizens General Hospital from injuries suffered yesterday when his automobile skidded off the highway near here and overturned. His brother, Charles, a passenger, was slightly injured.

Uncle Freed in Death of Niece

DENVER, Jan. 25.—(AP)—A charge of murder against Frank O'Loughlin in connection with the death of Leona O'Loughlin, his 10-year-old niece, was dismissed here. Mrs. Pearl O'Loughlin, stepmother of the girl, was convicted of slaying Leona and sentenced to life imprisonment.

Shipwreck Leads Naturalists to Valuable Finds

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—(AP)—A shipwreck which two naturalists turned into a boon is reported in the New York Times.

Gilbert C. Klingel and W. Wallace Coleman, both of Baltimore, who sailed for the isolated islands of the West Indies to hunt reptiles and amphibians in November, encountered a heavy storm and their yawl, Basilisk, was wrecked. The naturalists were cast away on the great Inagua Island, inhabited but unfrequented, in the Bahamas.

Here, the Times says, the men worked and Coleman returned on the ship Flora with more than 500 serpents and lizards. Dr. G. K. Noble, curator of the American Museum of Natural History, said the specimens aided greatly in piecing together the history of the West Indies and Northern South America.

HAWKS BREAKS ANOTHER MARK

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—(INS)—Capt. Frank M. Hawks was believed to hold another airplane speed record today. He flew here from Fort Worth, Tex., 1,400 miles, in eight hours and 30 minutes.

While his time was slower on the average than he made in his record trans-continental flight, it was reported as a new record for the distance.

Capt. Hawks will fill two speaking engagements here, starting for Texas by plane early tomorrow. He plans to reach Fort Worth tomorrow afternoon in time to join Will Rogers, with whom he is making a tour to aid the Red Cross drought relief campaign.

TESTS STARTED AT DUQUESNE

The first year mid-freshman class will be enrolled at Duquesne University following the semester examinations, which began at 9 a. m. today in all departments, John B. Harvey, registrar, announced. Formerly only students with advanced standing were registered for the semester beginning February.

The Duquesne student senate is expected to convene Wednesday afternoon to elect the student representative to the university athletic committee, which is in progress of formation. Elmer F. Layden, director of athletics, has been named chairman of the committee by the Rev. Joseph J. Callahan, president of the university.

In addition to the student representative and the coaching members, both an alumni and faculty representaative will be chosen by those respective bodies as members of the committee. The alumni choice will be made at the regular meeting to be held February 12.

High Court Affirms Lewis' $500 Fine

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 26.—(INS)—The Appellate Court, third district, today affirmed the ruling of Circuit Judge Charles G. Briggle fining John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers of America $500 for violating an injunction restraining interference with the affairs of District 12. In an oral opinion, the Appellate Court held that the violation not only was proved but was admitted.

West Va. Merchant Ends Life With Gun

BLUEFIELD, W. Va., Jan. 26.—(AP)—William E. Gilkeson, 46, until last Saturday president of the Bluefield Supply Company, was found dead today in the bathroom of his home, a pistol by his side. Magistrate W. W. McNeal, acting coroner, said Gilkeson killed himself.

GOV. ROOSEVELT DEFIES POWER INTERESTS

Calls on New York State To Develop St. Lawrence For Benefit of People

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 25 — Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York has thrown down the gauge of battle to the power interests of the nation.

He hurled his challenge in a special message to the New York Legislature last week in which he asked both the Republican-controlled Senate and Assembly to create a state power authority for development of the hydro-electric resources of the St. Lawrence River.

Gov. Roosevelt warned that the authority might find it necessary to be armed with a BARGAINING CLUB of state-owned transmission lines.

Such a weapon, he said, would provide the state with a "whip hand" in negotiating a contract with the Niagara-Hudson Corporation, the existing superutility" for handling the current.

REASONABLE RATES

It would, he said, be held reasonable rates to large and small consumers.

"First, that the power can be developed cheaply."

"Second, that the rates at which it is to be sold to the ultimate consumers should be fixed by contract in the interest of the consumers."

"Third, that if the contract is impossible to obtain, alternative methods should be pursued which would ultimately place this power in the homes of our cities at low rates."

The message distinguished by plain talk touched off a Republican back-fire in legislative chambers in which the Governor's presidential potentialities were conceded.

This special message on power development was the most recent phase of a drive launched by Gov. Roosevelt one year ago. At the 1930 session, he smashed a political deadlock that blocked action for 20 years when he forced a bill past Republican majorities calling for the creation of a non-partisan commission, appointed by Gov. Roosevelt to explore the question of state-power development.

The commission agreed on the "feasibility and practicability" of development and operation as a state undertaking.

They split on the question of transmission and distribution.

COMMISSION AGREES

The two reports demonstrated unanimously:

That construction of the necessary dam and power houses by the state is "feasible and safe" and that the cost will approximate $171,000,000 or $70,000,000 less than any previous estimate. The plant will be capable of producing 2,000,000 horsepower per year.

That electricity can be generated cheaply, or at $10 per horsepower per year, as contrasted with the cost of $25 for energy produced by steam.

That the rates which consumers would pay should be fixed by contract rather than by Public Service Commission regulation.

That the primary purpose is to place cheap power in the homes of small consumers, the farms and the small shops of the state.

That municipalities of New York State should be able to purchase cheap power from the Authority, to be distributed to their own residents.

SALE THROUGH UTILITIES

Both the majority and minority members of the commission agreed that the economic obstacles to a state-owned transmission system made sale of the current through established private channels preferable.

The minority report, however, reflected the position of the governor, who has consistently held that the power should be developed for the primary benefit of the small consumers at the lowest possible rates.

In line with that doctrine the minority presented two alternatives, both to apply in the event the Authority is unable to obtain a fair contract with existing utilities for power disposition.

In such an exigency the minority, backed by the Governor, held that the two methods open were a contract with another private company to be organized for the sole purpose of transmitting the current or construction by the authority itself of transmission and distributing lines.

It is contended by the Governor that it will be wholly possible to interest private investment in such a new company because the earnings would be based on a firm contract with the Power Authority.

The united forces of the majority and minority were termed "an outstanding vindication for those of us who have supported the project against insidious propaganda for private development."

Duce Builds to Race Lipton

Waiting for Wickersham to finish that report. It must be one of those letters where all the news is in the postscript.

Wall street brokers are looking around to see what became of the other passengers.

A cat can gallop up a tree pretty fast. It must come down backward.

For a year the brokers were something like a yacht club without riparian rights.

Now we notice an improved tone in the market and the boys are making hay. They're tired of eating it.

From now on there will be a steady return to normality. There will be flurries of course. You can't stop people from running to fires.

One hundred thousand words of the Wickersham report are in. Nobody knows what became of the rest of it.

The doctor on the wharf knows that the patient in the water is drowning.

So does the patient in the water. He also knows something the doctor doesn't know.

He knows that he can't swim.

He yells: "Whattsamattah with me, doc?"

"You're drowning."

"That's what I thought."

That kind of talk is all right for Amos and Andy. But it doesn't mean much to the man in the pond if the doctor runs away and comes back 20 months later with a dollar camera.

And senatorial approval of the budget indicates we may soon have another navy.

SICK, ENDS LIFE TO SAVE COSTS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26—(INS)—Returning from Harrisburg, Pa., today, where he had been visiting relatives, Benjamin Venner, an interior decorator, found his apartment dark and the curtains drawn.

Another occupant of the building handed him a note. It read:

"Dear One: I have been nothing but a burden to you for almost a year. You have had nothing but doctors' bills to pay in addition to your financial struggles. I have decided to end it all for your sake as you have been an angel to me during my entire illness. I don't want you to suffer."

It was from his wife, Mrs. Edith Venner, 38. She had been ill about a year, neighbors said.

She was found asphyxiated in the kitchen of her apartment with gas flowing from three open jets and a blanket over her head.

IDENTITY ERROR IN RAIL DEATH

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Jan. 26—(INS)—Wreckage of the fast Suwanee River Special which plunged off the track near Helenwood Saturday, killing five persons and injuring 21 more, was removed today.

With all injured reported in a satisfactory condition, the body of one of the five killed, at first thought to be that of Mrs. James C. Markey, of Cleveland, today had been identified as that of Mrs. M. M. Baggett, of Macon, Ga., mother of Mrs. Markey.

A bank pass book belonging to Mrs. Markey was found in the dead woman's baggage, but Mrs. Markey revealed in Cleveland that the crash victim was her mother, who was returning home from a visit in Cleveland.

CORONER OPENS MURDER QUIZ

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(INS.)—The Federal grand jury today started to hear the testimony of the 52 witnesses who testified at the coroner's inquest into the mysterious murder December 31 of Miss Beulah Limerick, 19. Donald Boyer, a milk wagon driver, who heard two pistol shots fired at the Limerick home, is the only witness who did not testify before the coroner.

Patrolman Robert F. Langdon, Vernon Limerick, a brother, Richard Reed, a boarder at the home occupied by Beulah and Vernon, and William E. Paddy, who escorted Miss Limerick home from a dance the morning she was killed, have been held in jail since the start of the investigation. The coroner's jury certified them for grand jury action "because of their guilty knowledge." None admitted that he had any knowledge of the crime.

DETROIT GRAFT WITNESS SHOT

DETROIT, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Harry Sominski, under-cover investigator for state police and an important witness of the Wayne County grand jury, was shot and critically wounded by a gunman today in a drug store.

Sominski was shot, the police believe, because of his importance as a jury witness. Prosecutor Harry S. Toy said he had information of vital importance in a graft-and-vice investigation of the suburb of Hamtramck.

Sominski was shot after he had spent 30 minutes in the drug store talking with Jacob Vosher, a Hamtramck man, who was to have appeared before the grand jury today.

Vosher, who is known also as Kaplan, disappeared after the shooting. He is sought by the police.

'RED' MAGAZINE SOLICITOR FINED

Norman Withington, 24, of Maryland avenue, was fined $5 in North Side Police Court today after police testified he was soliciting subscriptions for a Communist magazine. He was arrested in Jackson street, North Side, yesterday, charged with violating a city ordinance.

Director James M. Clark's Department of Public Safety is taken to task for arresting an unemployed magazine salesman, in a letter sent to Mayor Charles H. Kline by the Pittsburgh and Pennsylvania committees of the American Civil Liberties Union.

The letter protests the arrest of Blanchard L. Wright for selling the magazine, "Unemployed," without a permit.

Liberate Suspect In Bank Slaying

R. L. McGowan, 37, of 510 East Diamond street, arrested by Capt. Anthony Block as a suspect in the Verona bank holdup and slaying, was discharged this morning by Magistrate Ray E. Schneider in North Side Police Court after witnesses failed to identify him. McGowan was viewed Saturday by the Verona bank employes.

THE DANGER LINE

Have You Reached Age 40?

People nearing the age of forty or having passed that mark now take good care of their physical condition during the winter months by building up their systems to ward off colds, grippe and other winter ills.

Constipation, indigestion, sour, gassy stomach, pains in the back and around the heart, headaches, congested liver and weak kidneys indicate physical decay caused by various overindulgences, and lessen resistance to colds.

Health, the most precious gift in life, can be retained by using the rich juices brewed from the roots, barks, leaves, flowers, herbs and plants that mother nature has provided, and which are included in that old remedy called Bulgarian Herb (Blood) Tea. Taken hot at bedtime this pure vegetable compound quickly breaks up colds by stimulating the circulation, heating the chilled blood and moving intestinal poisons out of the system. It is fine for constipation.

Keep strong and healthy during the winter months by using Bulgarian Herb Tea regularly to or three times a week. Get a box today—the cost is small and your druggist will honestly recommend Bulgarian Herb Tea.

THEATER REVIEWS AND NOTES ALONG WITH GOTHAM AND STUDIO GOSSIP

Two Studios Stage Battle For Acting Services Of Robert Ames

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 26.

The latest "free agent" case involves Robert Ames, who is the center of a controversy between Pathe and Radio Pictures, both of which want him for a picture.

It develops that the actor is under contract to each studio. He agreed to appear with Ann Harding in Pathe's "Rebound" and subsequently signed a week's contract at R-K-O. At the time "Rebound" was scheduled for early production and would have been completed before the actor was needed by Radio. Later

Y. W. CAMPAIGN NEARS CLOSE

Unemployment among girls and young women has increased tremendously since the holiday season adding to the extensive service of the Young Women's Christian Association of Pittsburgh, Miss Esther M. Hawes, metropolitan secretary, declared at a meeting of the workers' council here tonight in the appeal for $140,000, the association's annual budget.

More than $90,000 has been raised by team workers who today are exerting every effort to complete their job by 6 o'clock, the hour scheduled for the closing meeting.

SECOND DAVIS WEEK'S VAUDEVILLE HAS BIG SURPRISE

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Announcements had promised a "big surprise" for the second week of vaudeville at the Davis, and the surprise proved a very happy one. It consisted of six of the oldest oldtimers in vaudeville, one of whom, Tommy Harris, had danced before President Lincoln in Ford's Theater in 1864, and is still spry. Annie Hart, aged 72, sang "Where Did You Get That Hat?" and Lizzie Wilson, aged 71, introduced the audience to the fine old ballad of the "Schnitzelbank." Dave Gentaur, 67, and Daniel Simmons, 66, danced with oldtime speed, and Josephine Sabel sang "A Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight" as she sang it during the Spanish-American War. The concluding cake-walk was hilariously effective.

BENNIE RUBIN'S JESTS

Bennie Rubin, of the sleepy look and chimey tongue, put over some good new stories, including the one about his leaving the army because the band played "Onward, Christian Soldier." Chaney and Fox did some graceful dancing, and lively comedy was supplied by Nash and Fately, in which team the little lady is a capital comedienne.

Overflowing audiences who did not sit on their hands showed that the revival of vaudeville has not come too soon to satisfy the public demand.

MACKAILL FILM DRAMA

The film feature showed Dorothy Mackaill in "Once a Sinner." Based on a George Middleton play, this picture has strong dramatic moments and is well acted. A woman with a past is confronted with that past after she has married. Of course she wins over suspicion and temptation by the power of love. Dorothy Mackaill plays with intelligence and restraint.

George Seibel

Held in Robbery, Confess Holdup

FARRELL, Pa., Jan. 26.—Arrested after they had robbed a grocer store, Sam Overton and John Green, 19, Negro, confessed holding up a gasoline station on the Sharon-Youngstown road and robbing a Warren, O., man of $1 last week.

3 Families Flee Fire at Sharon

SHARON, Pa., Jan. 26.—Three families were forced to flee from their beds when fire broke out in a house owned by Mrs. John C. Cicen. Five people were carried out over a roof. The damage was $4,000.

OPERA TRAINS ARRANGED

Transportation companies serving Pittsburgh and suburban districts are making special arrangements for traffic to Syria Mosque Monday and Tuesday evenings, February 9 and 10, when the Chicago Civic Opera Company appears here. The Pennsylvania Limited, leaving Pennsylvania Station, west-bound, at 11:40 p. m., will discharge passengers at Sewickley on both evenings.

The Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad will hold three trains until midnight, serving passengers southward to Brownsville and westward to Youngstown.

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad is making arrangements for special traffic on train No. 10 at 12:01 p. m., to McKeesport, Braddock, West Newton and Connellsville. There also will be special interurban car service.

Great Lakes Firm Orders Tug Boat

An epochal advance in transportation machinery on the Great Lakes is marked in an order from the Great Lakes Dredge and Dock Company of Chicago for a large tug boat propelled by a geared turbine drive from the Manitowoc (Wisconsin) Shipbuilding Corporation. The turbine machinery, the first of this to be installed in a Great Lakes vessel, will be manufactured by the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company.

BLACKSHEEP RELATIVE IS 'LION AND LAMB' IN THE HARRIS

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

"The Lion and the Lamb" came to the Harris screen Saturday. It is not an animal picture. But it is a menagerie, a menagerie of London fog, torture chambers, thugs and a Jack Dalton type of hero who saves the girl.

A young earl becomes mixed up with a gang of crooks known as the Lambs. Then ensues a moyesque battle of wits between him and the gang leader, who travels under the original title, "the Professor."

Walter Byron and Carmel Meyers are hero and heroine. The rest of the players we're omitting altogether. And, to our way of thinking, they owe us a vote of thanks.

Geraldine and Joe, the entertaining kids who were seen in the Stanley not so long ago, feature the five-act vaudeville bill. We said they were clever then and we repeat it now. Give 'em a grand hand.

The Loudspeaker

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—That newest march to the microphones so audible to the armchairs is that of comedy teams and trios expecting a second striking of the Amos 'n' Andy lightning.

Wisely they refrain from Negro imperonation, but equally as wisely they are concerned with the humdrum activities of blundering and bewildered oafs.

Most prominent among those now wooing the chuckles of the chair-warmers, if not their golfaws, are Weber and Fields, reunited after years of following their separate ways. They have resurrected their familiar old music hall characters, Mike and Meyer who in their equally familiar tongue-twisting accents comment upon the topics of the day. Radio has brought new life to them and a conspicuous place on the broadcasting payroll.

Comic performers on the air ways are Gene and Glenn, favorites of the Midwest, and heard at an hour that does not seriously threaten the prestige of Amos 'n' Andy; the Three Doctors and the team known as Sisters of the Skillet, who answer senseless household questions in such a senseless fashion as to give the little woman in the home a new use for her armchair.

Spies report that of all the new comedy acts the last is winning the widest favor of the air audience. Which would show that the madder the foolishness, the greater the catcupping.

Considering the appeal of any comedy on the air it is strange the broadcasters do not hunt with their dotted lines such mad men as Clayton, Jackson and Durante, Ed Wynn, Groucho Marx and Clark and McCullough. They are at present the favorite comedians of the stage. They might be also the favorite comedians of the air. Their price may be high, may even be prohibitive, but if the radio czars are willing to meet the demands of Chevalier and Rogers and Lauder they ought not to hesitate to unstrap their wallets for the leading comics of the day.

Comedy dialogue is rapidly becoming the chief industry of the broadcasters' portfolio. It is to the chief lure to the promised land of swimming pools and basement bars and four-car garages and steam yachts. And it is possible it will attract a second stroke of lightning if enough emphasis is placed upon naturalness and humanness of characterization and situation.

Without naturalness and humanness the comedy dialogists might better turn to crooning, for there will be no audience for them. The road is narrow and thorny. Ask Amos 'n' Andy. They know.

The microphone men have turned their attention belatedly, it may be said to what is known as "the great love scenes in music." Wagner and Schumann and Rimsky-Korsakoff can keep them busy for many an hour, indeed, hours long after the closing of the Marriage License Bureau.

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

Our pleasure today to have Benny Rubin, famous Yiddish character of stage, screen and radio, as guest writer of "We Now Present." Benny's dialect stories and funny laugh are known everywhere. He started his radio career in Pittsburgh several years ago as master of ceremonies in the WJAS - Gazette Tele Revues.

Benny Rubin

Benny has done great things since then. He has been in several talkie skits very clever and has played feature roles in many big films including "Remote Control." He also has made numerous recordings.

"Hello there pipple; certainly is nice to be back in Pittsburgh after three years and seven months and three days and nine hours and 50 minutes — well, anyway, HELLO!

"S'funny to be on KDKA the second minute I'm here. 'N' I'll tell you why. When I was here before I started writing history lessons and other monologues specially for the radio.

"At the time the Pittsburgh Pirates won a championship—since I've left they haven't, so don't blame the team or Chilly Dolve—blame me for staying away.

"I'm giving you regards from people you know and like—Lois Moran, Dolores and Helen Costello, William Powell, Thomas Meighan. Also living here are my pals Johnny Harris, Fay Templeton, Ed Lowry, Joe Hiller, Brian McDonald, Peter Higgins, Darrell Vivamus Martin and many others too humorous to mention.

"Since leaving here I'm proud papa of a girl 15 months old. Her name is Lila. Her dear mama is here with me. Her name is Mary and she's still confiscating my salary.

"Why not come down tonight and see our radio station, KDKA, which means 'Kum Down, Keep Amused.' We go crazy at 11:15.

"Still closing everything Sundays—eh? Tsh . . . tsh . . . tsh. "Denk You!

Signed.

Benny Rubin

QUESTION A DAY:

Has the law against obscenity on the radio ever been enforced? R. W., McW.

Answer—Yes. In 1930 the owner of KVEP, in Portland, Ore., was sentenced to six months in jail and fined $500 for violation of the radio act of 1927. Later the station's license was rescinded.

TODAY'S TID BIT:

AIRWAY LIGHT COSTS SOAR

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(AP)—Ten million dollars a year is the prospective bill for the country's night-lighted airplane routes.

With something like a shock government officials have realized the size of the expenditure they let themselves in for when Congress decided to furnish illumination for the air routes.

At present the expense is about $210,000 a year for each 1,000 miles of lighted airways distinctly above the original estimate. The eventual total cost was computed by Secretary Lamont, under whose jurisdiction in the Commerce Department the expenditure comes. Yet, he has concluded after a special review of the situation that the expenditure will have to be maintained.

CARNEGIE STEEL VETERAN DIES

John Franklin Lewis, 68, former assistant general superintendent of the Edgar Thomson Works, Carnegie Steel Company, Braddock, died this morning at his home, 6615 Woodwell street, Squirrel Hill, after a prolonged illness. Funeral services will be held Wednesday night at the T. B. Moreland funeral parlors, East End. Interment Thursday morning.

Mr. Lewis

Mr. Lewis retired five years ago after completing more than 50 years' service at the Edgar Thomson Works. He began in 1875 as hammer boy. In 1876 he was a storeroom clerk. Twenty-seven years later he was appointed assistent general superintendent, which position he held 32 years.

Mr. Lewis was credited with many inventions, including the vertical hydraulic ingot stripper. He was a thirty-second degree Mason and a life member of the Braddock Lodge of Elks.

He leaves his widow, Margaret Boyd Lewis; one daughter, Mrs. Catherine L. Kuhn, of Tryon, N. C.; two sons, David S. and John F. Lewis, Jr., of Pittsburgh; two brothers, Sherman Lewis, of Swissvale, and Harry Lewis, of Braddock.

Two Claim 'Richest' Platinum Mines

SANTIAGO, Chile, Jan. 26.—(AP)—Discovery of the "richest platinum deposits in the world" is claimed by Enrique Rettic and Enrique Contreras Urizar.

Working with national mine experts, the men found platinum ore on the island of Chiloe, in the southern province of the same name, and a company will be formed to work the mines shortly.

3 Officers of Closed N. C. Bank Arrested

WILMINGTON, N. C., Jan. 26.—(AP)—Three officers of the Home Savings Bank, which closed a week ago, were arrested here today and charged with false entry in connection with a reported discrepancy of $160,000 in the bank's funds. Warrants were served on Jesse F. Roache, cashier; M. D. Clark, assistant cashier, and D. M. Armstrong, trust officer.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Don't Let Yourself Die Of a Broken Heart

Must she cry? Only because he wants to marry her?

Sounds like a theme song doesn't it?

It is. Jimmie's theme song and he is walking the night and day. Moore's Tearful Talkies? Then get up and this one sits good.

"Dear Miss Martin:

"I guess I should know what to do without asking you, but it seems like I just can't do it. Anyway, please tell me what you think about my case, will you?

Loves Another

"About two years ago I met a girl who had just had some trouble with a fellow she was to marry so he went away and never returned. I have never asked why and have never learned. Only she let me know that her heart was broken and that because of that she hated men and thought they were all alike. Well, no fellow wants a girl to say they're all alike, so after seeing her a few times I liked her well enough to prove to her that I was different. I sympathized with her about her troubles and, as a result, we began to care for each other very deeply.

"However, I had other friends that I have no good reason for losing in a hurry, although as I began going with her I began seeing less of them. Well, before I had cut all of them I did tell her a few lies about where I was on nights I didn't see her. She said she could forgive me anything but telling lies, so we had a number of battles about that. Then I didn't have a friend left but her. She still accused me of going out with others till I proved to her I didn't by seeing her every night. So we got along fine then and all of our friends knew we were to be married. We meant as much to each other as any two people can. Of course our boat would rock once in a while, but we always made up.

"Well, I guess I got to taking it for granted that she was all mine, and no other man could possibly take her away from me. So, one day when a fellow from out of town came to see her, I didn't worry. But she fell head over heels in love with him.

Always Arguing

"I had never objected at any time to her going out, so while this fellow was in town—a week—she went out with him and I didn't see her. I had the greatest trust in her. Well, after this fellow went home, I learned the real truth—that she was to be married to him.

"That was the end of the world for me. It was three months ago that this happened. I have learned that they can't be married for some time, so I have been doing everything in the world to make up with her. With the result that I'm beat out more all the time. Nothing I do pleases her. We fight about nothing at all. I go to see her each night every week. I've gained the last weight and I'm not a shadow of myself, and I'm normally very thin.

"It is but I can't seem to get over this. I try not to see her. Then she calls me up and says she is lonesome. Then I go through the greatest misery in the world again. I love her so much. I can't seem to give her up. She is everything to me. Yet she tells me she doesn't care for me at all and is cold as ice. I keep hoping that she will realize how great my love is and snap out of it. But it isn't soon, someone will put me up off the street dead of a broken heart. I am so sad. Please help me, Sally. What shall I do?

JIMMIE."

What'll you do, son?

How about learning to be a good sport and take your knocks like a man? I'll admit this girl gave you the run-around, if she has done what you say. But after all, it's her privilege to fall out of love with you and if you'll be honest it's she's used to it. And she has told you that she no longer cares for you and cares for someone else. Then why try to force yourself on her? Why insist on "kicking around where you're not wanted?

Quit Fretting

You think she isn't giving you a square deal. How about giving yourself one? No, I'm not kidding, Jimmie. I'm telling you in all sympathy and all seriousness that it is not the girl who's handing you the bar Double-Cross now. It's you yourself. It's your unwillingness to let go and deal yourself a new hand. And if you're not picked off the street dead from a broken heart, it won't be her fault. It'll be yours for not having sand enough to jack yourself up and snap out of it. You may get a real bang-up of picturing yourself stark and stiff, with her weeping remorsefully over you! But, as a matter of fact, no such romantic hoo-ha will happen. "Men have died and worms have eaten them, but not for love," was written a long time ago and it's still true.

Obviously, if the young woman has the sort of "off-again-on-again-gone-again" heart you describe, she's pure poison for any man. And you're mighty lucky to discover it before you messed up your career by marrying her. Cut her out, as you would any other bad habits. Quit hanging onto her apron strings. Quit letting her flatter you into seeing her Life and adventure and Real Romance are ahead of you if you'll stop mooning around and get yourself a Regular Girl.

High-Hatters With Haughty Manner Trying to Hide Past, Says Fay King

By FAY KING

In nine cases out of ten, person who put on such a high hat and haughty manner are merely trying to hide their past.

No real great lady ever acts the grand lady like some snip who suddenly acquires a fashionable address and an imported car.

In gatherings, those who act so important usually turn out disappointing upon further investigation, while on the other hand, one is always pleasantly surprised to find the really important ones gracious and charming.

Self-improvement and advancement are always admirable, and are never confused with the disagreeable exaggeration of pretense.

Life is like a game of cards. The poorer the hand the greater the bluff. And those who gamble on bluffs always lose in the end.

Veritzen's Meeting With Madge Proves an Unpleasant One

Dicky drank his coffee and went back to bed. He was asleep in five minutes, and I knew that the little scene with Philip Veritzen which he had interrupted had taken him no real worry. But the memory of the waiter that he had given me shocked me. I was so disturbed by it that I found it impossible to take up the train which I had pattern before I should begin my day's routine with its various preparation for Mary's party.

I glanced at my wrist watch. Yes, the dining room of the hotel was just opening. I had planned to see Mr. Seibel, the head of the dining room, later in the morning, when the rush of the breakfast hour should be over, but it would be equally feasible if I effected to see him at the early hour, when only a few guests of the hotel were astir.

I must breakfast some time. I felt myself greatly feeling a little appetite for the meal and I could take a table near the desk and plan. Mary's party with Mr. Seibel without attracting too much attention from the other patrons of the restaurant.

But when I reached the dining room I found that my dream of being inconspicuous was indeed a chimera. For as I entered the room Philip Veritzen rose from a table near the door and with a most elaborate bend from the waist which was almost an obeisance asked me to share his table.

He had deliberately planned the encounter. The conviction flashed upon me as he straightened and I met his brilliant eyes with tiny points of flame deep in their blackness. And he had made it impossible for me to do anything else save to accept his invitation. But it was within my power to revenge myself by making him supremely uncomfortable, and I grimly proceeded with the enterprise. I realized that he had reasoned I must come down to breakfast soon and had taken a table to wait for me, although he ordinarily professed the greatest distaste for the hotel cuisine. That he was an epicure par-excellence I knew, and I also possessed the knowledge of his fussy dislike of anything interfering with what he considered the proper attention to a meal.

"I am afraid you will regret this invitation," I said as I seated myself.

"An utterance like that is treasonable," he said smiling at me. "To regret any time spent with you! Impossible!"

"But it won't be time spent with me," I said, and was rewarded by seeing his eyebrows contract ever so slightly. "That is, it will be time very much shared by someone else."

"Oh!" There was an intonation in his voice much like that of a disappointed small boy. "Your husband, then, is coming down to breakfast?"

I laughed insolently. "My husband is fast asleep and will be awaken until noon. I am sure."

He looked up quickly. "Ah! So he was going to bed and not arising, when I saw him this morning. He must have been out late."

A little bell of warning sounded within me. If I did not care to have Philip Veritzen suspect that midnight trip to farm to bring Noel back I must promptly provide some excuse for Dicky's appearance in the dining room.

"Not especially late." I prevaricated. "I think he and Mr. Underwood dropped in to see a man. I smiled mischievously, after we left you. But he was in bed in good season. He has the bad habit, however, of reading in bed at all hours, and as he is troubled a bit with insomnia he keeps a night light and a book conveniently near him. He was reading this morning when he came in asking for coffee and he told me after you left that he had slept so little during the night he must make up for it this morning. No, it is not Dicky to whom I must talk at this hour, but another man. Please excuse me while I send for him."

I beckoned to a waitress and asked her to tell Mr. Seibel that I would like to see him at his convenience.

"Ah! yes, I see," Mr. Veritzen said, his brows narrowing decidedly this time. "You wish to talk over your plans for the party. But surely they can wait."

"But surely they can't," I said pertly. "I warned you, remember, when I sat down. I have so much in front of me today that I must improve every minute. Ah! Mr. Seibel," as the proprietor of the dining room came up. "Please sit down here for a minute or two. I have some very important questions to ask you. No!" as he hesitated. "I insist. I cannot think of what I wish to say if you are standing and I have to look up to you."

I was maliciously conscious that Mr. Veritzen's expressive eyebrows were much nearer together now, and that he was finding it exceedingly difficult to hide his disapproval of Mr. Seibel's acceptance of my invitation. He was distinctly uncomfortable, but not so uncomfortable I told myself, as he had made me this morning. I resolved to abridge no detail of my plans with Mr. Seibel an account of my fussy employer.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

The Poor Dancer

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—I am 15 years old and I attend a dancing school in the evening. After the lesson we are allowed to dance with whoever we wish. Many boys ask me to dance. What would be a nice thing to say when I know that I am not a good dancer? When they ask me could I say, "You'll be sorry for this." Something snappy. Or do you think that sounds impolite?

2. After the dance, when the young man escorts you to a seat and thanks you for the dance, what is the polite informal reply? Usually, I say nothing, as I do not like to say, "The pleasure was all mine," as I am so young, and I know nothing else to say. D. W.

1—No, we can't allow you to say anything to the inviting young man about your not dancing well. You know if you say this enough even though you make it snappy this thought may get into your feet, and of course, then you won't be able ever to dance well. Instead of thinking so much about apologizing for your not dancing well, why not get busy and learn to dance well? It isn't so difficult, and apparently you enjoy dancing, and apparently, too, you are popular enough to have the opportunity of learning. So change your attitude of being "snappy" in your answers, and be "snappy" in your dancing. And soon—right away, in fact, you will discover that you won't need to apologize.

2—Say something very simple, and very simply, and be very natural. Something that will indicate that you, too, enjoyed the dance. In fact, just say that, "I enjoyed the dance so much, Frank," or, "That was a delightful dance, Tom, and I enjoyed every minute of it."

Acknowledging Thanks for Greeting Cards

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

There has been much discussion in our office as to what is a proper and appropriate answer to a person personally thanking one for a Christmas or a birthday greeting which was sent to them. E. K.

A good question . . . especially these weeks after Christmas, when we are frequently meeting friends to whom we sent cards for Christmas greeting, and whom we are meeting for the first time since Christmas. When we are thanked for these cards we say something like: "I am so happy that you liked it," or "It's very kind of you to say so. It gave me great pleasure to send it to you," or "I meant very much the message on my card . . . ," and I do hope that you had a happy Christmas."

Household Hints

A few drops of lime juice gives a delightful new flavor to honeydew melon.

Indispensable furnishings in a well-regulated kitchen are accurate scales and measuring utensils; a pair of shears, to be used only in the preparation of foods and, since the success of so many dishes depends upon correct timing, a reliable clock.

Beets are rich in vitamins A, B and C. Also they possess calcium, phosphorus and iron, all of which is more than enough to recommend them for both children and grown-ups. A small amount of sugar added while boiling, about a teaspoon to a cup of water, restores the garden sweetness they are almost sure to have lost in greater or less degree on their way from the garden to the saucepan.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Rules to Follow on the Road to Health

It is a good thing to take stock of ourselves once in a while. After a summer out of doors, we come back to city and town with brown faces and good health. These are the result of having lived a more natural existence than we do the rest of the year.

Dr. Copeland

Probably, if we were to ask the average person how many hours a day he spends out doors during the winter months he would be evasive on the subject. As a matter of fact many persons do not enjoy good health because they are not enough out-of-doors.

There are certain health rules that all could follow with good results, if they would. Most persons are so busy they really do not give enough thought to rules of health. Of course, the less we think about disease the better for us. At the same time it is needful to map our day so that we shall be doing the things that make for good health.

Suppose we consider today some of the rules that should help us along the road of good health. You know them as well as I do, but somehow or other they are not observed as they should be. There is something about human nature that makes us resentful of rules and prohibitions. We are willing to be led but not driven.

But bear with me if I remind you of your shortcomings. You may write and remind me of mine. Then we will be even!

As regards the eating rules—have you any that you really observe? Or do you as regularly as sunrise eat too much food? Honestly, is that the reason you are taking on weight?

Overeating is one of the common faults of mankind—and this includes womankind. An excess of proteins, meat and eggs, is as great a fault as the taking of too much of the sweets.

To have good health, some of the bulky raw foods should be consumed every day. Cabbage, lettuce, apples and celery are some of the things that come to my mind.

Eat slowly, enjoy your food, get its real taste. Drink lots of water, not at meals, but between times.

Taking an abundance of water aids the elimination. It helps to keep the intestines clean. The waste materials and poisons are carried away when there is plenty of water in the system.

You know as well as anybody that plenty of sleep in a well-ventilated room is essential to health. Impure air and insufficient rest are responsible for many ills.

Light, loose, porous clothing will increase your well-being. Men are given to wearing too heavy clothing. A reform in this matter would be an aid to health.

Get out of doors all you can. Hold your chin up, your stomach in and your spine straight. Walk vigorously and act as if living were a joy. Then you will be fit company for kings and common men!

Answers to Health Queries

C. L. N. Q.—What do you advise for acne?

A.—Correct your diet, by cutting down on sugar, starches and coffee. Eat simple food. Avoid constipation at all times.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

No need for any woman to endure the horror of superfluous hair. There are various means of getting rid of it. An affliction of this ilk is a dreadful burden to a sensitive woman, likely to produce an inferiority complex and social fears.

No woman can afford to give way to unpleasant emotions. They not only etch ugly lines in the countenance, but they change the features, especially the shape and expression of the mouth. Worriers carry worried faces, envious girls take on furtive, mean-eye expressions, selfishness makes the face soft and sappy and petulance turns feminine peaches into lemons. Bad business. Upsetting to the soul, the digestion and nervous system.

The modern corselette has almost no relationship to the steel-riveted saddle our grandmothers wore. It isn't much more than a foundation garment, pliable, comfortable, putting a little restraint upon curves that are a bit too ambitious. There is no compression of the internal organs, nothing for the howlers to howl about. Yet when the news came that the waistline was to be restored there was panic and alarm. Tiddledum stuff. The feminine equator will stay as is.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Tuesday, January 27

A particularly lively and spirited state of affairs may be looked for on this day according to an interesting if conflicting chart of astral activities. Old obstructions swept away will make room for much progress, but this may be hampered by excitability, impetuosity and uncontrolled conduct or speech. With firm reliance and self-control grasping splendid opportunities, alertness as to deception and safeguarding employment excellent results may be accomplished. Literary matters of every character should thrive.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a particularly enterprising and progressive year. Old obstacles should be disposed of, new opportunities invite exceptional exploitation and new contracts should be advantageous. But all good fortune may be nullified by reckless actions and ungoverned speech or disputes. Those in employment are urged to be more than careful not to merit reproof.

A child born on this day should be versatile, industrious, clever, resourceful and should make brilliant success, but must practice firm self-control and poise.

U. S., AUSTRALIA HEAR WILKINS ARCTIC PLAN

Explorer on Radio Tells of Project for Broadcasting Station at North Pole

Universal Service.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Jan. 26.—Sir Hubert Wilkins revealed his plans for a broadcast to the United States from the North Pole over a world-wide hookup, speaking yesterday in a record-breaking international broadcast over a network of stations in the United States and Australia, his native country.

From Sydney, 11,000 miles away, Australian newspapermen interviewed Sir Hubert after he had spoken for 12 minutes about his preparations for visiting the North and magnetic poles and exploring unknown Arctic regions in a submarine, and their questions and his answers were rebroadcast in both countries.

It was the first time an interview over so long a distance had been broadcast, and Australians heard the half-hour program over the largest network of Australian stations ever to participate in an international hookup.

RIPLEY MAKES DATE

Sir Hubert was preceded at the microphone by another famous traveler, Robert L. (Believe It or Not!) Ripley, who told of some of the unusual discoveries he had made in his wanderings in 59 countries. At the conclusion of his talk he set a distance record for making "dates." When Miss Irene Strelitz, a Sydney girl at the studio, conversed with him for several minutes and concluded by making an engagement to meet him in Sydney a year hence.

Sir Hubert said speaking across the world to friends in Australia with the knowledge that an audience of millions on both sides was listening in was the biggest thrill of his eventful life.

The broadcast was arranged by the Hearst Newspapers' Radio Service in co-operation with General Electric Company and the Amalgamated Wireless Australasia, Limited. Clark Kinnaird, Eastern director of the Hearst Newspapers' Radio Service, introduced both speakers to the "round the world" audience.

MAY ESTABLISH STATION

Americans heard the broadcast through WGY, Schenectady. The hookup with Australia was accomplished between short wave stations W2XAF, Schenectady, and 2ME, Sydney.

The program went on the air at 7:30 a. m. Eastern Standard time, which was 10:30 Sunday evening in Sydney.

It was revealed that Sir Hubert will determine the feasibility of establishing a permanent radio station near the Pole for weather forecast work and for use in international communications. A submarine will be used for his forthcoming journey because it is believed that an underwater craft would be the most dependable and comfortable means of taking research workers to and from such a "radio central" on top of the world.

Bricks Made 3,500 Years Ago Used In Rail Station

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 26. (AP).—What is said to be the oldest railroad station in the world in point of material used in its construction has been erected at Tell Billah in Mesopotamia to aid archaeological excavations.

A report to the University of Pennsylvania Museum says that bricks dating back to the reign of King Ashurnasirpal, more than 3,500 years ago, were used to build the one-story station on the Khorsabad Railroad.

The report from the archaeological expedition by the University of Pennsylvania Museum and the American School of Oriental Research in Bagdad, says the station provides the expedition with a shipping depot and storage house close to excavations being made at Tell Billah.

The recent discovery of important archaeological material at Tell Billah, including unusually fine painted pottery and a collection of bronze weapons, also was revealed in the report.

SLAIN WOMAN IDENTIFIED

NEW YORK, Jan. 26. (AP).—The body of the woman found shot dead with Joseph H. Zacklewicz, former professional football player, in a Paramount Hotel room Saturday, was identified as that of Mrs. Victoria Sanders, of 8 South Grand street, Shenandoah, Pa.

The identification was made by Victor Zacklewicz, brother of the dead man, and by Police Lieut. S. W. Dobronski, of Shenandoah.

Joseph Zacklewski, who played football on a professional team at Shenandoah last season, left his home last Thursday for Philadelphia and was not heard from again until his body and that of Mrs. Sanders were found in the hotel room. They had registered as Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Kane, Scanton, Pa. Police believe the man shot the woman and then himself. A pistol was found in his hand.

Both bodies were taken from the morgue for removal to Shenandoah.

LEAGUE'S CURB ON MEDICAL DOPE FAILS

U. S. Minor Offender Among Nations Consuming More Than Allotted Quotas

By KENNETH CLARK,
Universal Service.

GENEVA, Jan. 26. — The United States is an offender in consuming more narcotics for so-called medical uses than the requirement set by the League of Nations' Health Committee, according to figures now before the league's opium advisory committee.

However, America is not alone in the offending class. Practically all the big powers consume excessive quantities. In fact, the United States is one of the least flagrant offenders.

If the health committee figures, reached after extensive inquiry, were followed, each nation would require less than six grains of opium per capita a year for medical treatments.

The total amount of narcotics needed for the entire world would be roughly 76 tons. Yet the production each year is many fold that amount.

The report submitted by the United States to the advisory committee gives the "legitimate" opium consumption as 7.99 grains per capita. This is 2.1 grains per capita higher than the requirement of the health experts.

Calculated on the basis of the last American census, the excessive legal opium sales in the United States amount to 252,026,321 grains, or the staggering total of 1,008,105,284 medical doses.

These figures do not take into consideration the dope that goes into illicit traffic, estimated to be not less than 20 tons a year.

Those now directing America's anti-narcotic policies are taking steps to cut down dope consumption. The Bureau of Narcotics and the Public Health Service are making a survey of the country's medical requirements.

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

SLAIN SHERIFF'S TOWN QUIET

BUCYRUS, O., Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Bucyrus was settling back today after more than 48 hours of excitement caused by the fatal shooting of Sheriff George Davenport in a gunfight with desperadoes during a raid on a chicken thieves' ring.

Curiosity seekers that flocked about the scene of the gunfight in the rear of one of three Negro brothers' homes left the village deserted and officials were confident there would be no further disorders.

Fears of possible violence arose Saturday night when 500 persons congregated about the jail. The crowd dispersed during the night and a heavy fog completely enveloped the city.

Davenport was shot when he attempted to arrest Ernest Walters and Blanche Vogt. Eighth was shot through the lungs as he tried to escape. He died. He was brought here after he had leaped through the window of a room on the ground floor where he was being questioned.

INVALID FIGHTS FIRE, WIFE DIES

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 26 (AP.)—Mrs. Adelaide Brather, 74, was burning to death in her home while her invalid husband stood helplessly by, tried to fight the blaze.

The woman's clothing became ignited from the kitchen stove. Her husband, bedridden for years, left his bed but was too weak to be of much assistance. He managed, however, to smother the flames by wrapping quilts around Mrs. Brather. Her wife died after she reached a hospital.

The Brathers had been married 53 years. Shortly after the celebration of their golden wedding anniversary the husband was injured in a motor accident and has been ill since.

SIGNALS SPUR HUNT FOR FLIER

SPOKANE, Wash., Jan. 26 (AP.)—Investigation of two reports of signal fires in different areas faced aerial searchers for Walter E. Case, missing air mail pilot today.

One fire was reported to have been seen in the Rattlesnake Hills range, southwest of Yakima, and a ground searching party was sent out of White Bluffs yesterday. Rattlesnake Hills are in the area where many persons have reported they heard a plane flying in the fog Thursday morning when Case disappeared.

Another ground searching party went out of Stevenson, Wash., to investigate reports a signal fire had been seen in the Mount Adams region, possible on Trail Peak, southwest of Yakima.

Home Diswashing No Job for Husband

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Married men should not be expected to groom for home dishwashing, except in emergencies, the vocational guidance committee of the State Home Economics Association was told. Miss Ada Hess, state supervisor of home economics, the speaker said:

"We advise the boys in the schools to take home economics, however, for when people must eat in restaurants they should know what things to eat and in what quantities."

Fire Damages Oil Plant at Franklin

FRANKLIN, Pa., Jan. 26.—Fire that broke out late Sunday night in one of the series of stills at the Atlantic Refining Company plant here was brought under control after a stiff battle at 1 o'clock this morning. The blaze was kept confined to a 1,000-barrel still and no outside help was necessary. Two hundred barrels of oil were lost, Supt. B. H. Waterbury declared.

'Palace' Borrowed In Washington For Siam King

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—A temporary royal palace will be afforded the King of Siam when he pays an official visit to the capital in April.

The Anderson family has accepted an offer of Lafayette Square property for the Anderson home, which will be razed to clear the site for the palace. Architects are working on plans for the edifice, to be completed by March 15. Committees of the country are soliciting funds for the project.

With no official residence for distinguished visitors, the American government borrows homes in Washington for their housing. The Anderson home was used in 1918 by the Belgian war mission.

PARROT'S CRIES MURDER CLUE

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—(INS.)—The words, "Don't, Don't, Papa!" shrieked by a green parrot today furnished evidence by which police sought to find the murderer of Mrs. Frances Yurko, 44. She was found dead by her husband, a longshoreman.

Neighbors claimed they heard the parrot yell the three words shortly before the body was discovered. The husband was held for questioning. He said two men invaded his apartment and attacked his wife with an ax when they were refused money.

Dismantled Building Threatened by Fire

Firemen of No. 8 Engine Company, East End, were called out this morning to extinguish a fire in the ruins of the building which formerly housed the Pittsburgh Ice Company, in Penn avenue, near Station street. The structure is being demolished.

SERIOUS WATER LACK FEARED

WASHINGTON, Pa., Jan. 26.—Washington has been warned to conserve water supply. D. C. Morgan, manager of the Citizens Water Company, declares the company's supply is sufficient as at present, but if rainfall is at a minimum during March it will be necessary to curtail consumption. Committees of the county are suffering seriously. Many farmers are forced to haul water for their stock.

PLEASANTVILLE, Pa., Jan. 26.—Pleasantville borough council has appealed to all consumers to waste no water. Some wells are almost exhausted and a shortage of 10 days is feared unless conditions change.

Another well is being drilled, but difficulty is being experienced in keeping the frozen tank filled.

'Yellow Kid's' Case Puzzle to Police

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—The police had Joseph Weil, the "Yellow Kid" on their hands again today, but were not certain what they were going to do with him, if anything. They returned him from Rockford where a half-dozen or more confidence game victims failed to identify the man who had fleeced them.

The police said they would ask L. F. Kandelenez, Kalamazoo, Mich., paper manufacturer, if he wanted to come to Chicago to prosecute Weil for an alleged $5,000 fraud.

Jobless Actress Suicide in N. Y.

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Despondent because unable to obtain theatrical contracts, Mrs. Henrietta Eldaman O'Kelly, 36, recently divorced popular actress of five years ago, ended her life in the apartment she shared with her mother, Mrs. Ethel Phillips Eldaman. An empty bottle that had contained poison was beside her.

Mrs. O'Kelly played in George M. Cohan's "So This is London," several years ago and had appeared in stock companies.

Same Old Senate, Survivor Of 63 Years Oratory Says

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Looking back on 63 years of listening to senatorial oratory, Theodore F. Shuey, veteran official reporter who will be 86 years old next week, brings in his verdict:

"It's the same old Senate."

The gray-haired scribe who has known them all, from Charles Sumner to "Little Bob" LaFollette, says:

"There are strong men in the Senate today as there always are. I don't think it is going down hill a bit."

Of all the voices raised in the Senate in his more than three-score years, Shuey remembers that of Elihu Root as the best, from a shorthand reporter's point of view. He recalled:

"Mr. Root spoke like someone who has something worth saying and takes his time to say it.

"Some men, a favored few, have a penetrating bell-like voice that strikes through and through the listener. George F. Edmunds, of Vermont, was one. He was here when I came in 1868. Oliver P. Morton, war-time governor of Indiana, was another. We have a number of those Civil War governors in the Senate, most of them outstanding figures.

"Charles Sumner's voice was loud and clear. William M. Evarts, of New York, when he was growing old, but in 1890, or thereabouts, spoke in so low a tone the reporter had to leave his place at the front of the room to catch his words. Of the present group, Senators Shipstead, Blaine and Smoot are particularly hard to hear.

"Senator Moses is easy to report. So is Senator King, of Utah. Senator Copeland, of New York, is a fine speaker.

"Little Bob LaFollette is quite clear and oratorical. So are George, Georgia; Harrison, of Mississippi, and Heflin, of Alabama. Norris is a good clear speaker."

POLICE INSPECT SUNDAY SALES

BALTIMORE, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Delicatessen store owners and their patrons for the second Sunday in a month, were forced yesterday to undergo the scrutiny of police enforcing the Maryland blue law that permits milk to be sold, but not cheese or perishable articles.

The activity of the police came on the eve of a test trial resulting from an arrest made December 21 for violation of the old statute.

Uniformed police stood in front of the shops yesterday and questioned all customers. If the purchase was perishable, the name of the customer was recorded and he or she was permitted to depart with the bundle.

Philip Cohen, president of a company operating eight shops in the city, said the police activity cost his company $1,000 in receipts and $300 in perishable goods.

CLUB TO REPEAT BENEFIT SHOW

The third presentation of the minstrel show by members of the Golden Rule Club of the Twenty-seventh Ward will be given in the North Side Carnegie Music Hall Thursday night. Previous performances were given in the David B. Oliver High School January 15 and 16.

Officers of the club said today that tickets sold for the previous performances to persons unable to gain admission to the school, will be honored Thursday night. At the former performances more than 3,000 persons witnessed the show. Proceeds will be used to relieve needy families in the North Side district.

Real Estate

A better tone was manifested in building activities throughout the country during December as reflected in the volume of building permits issued in 573 leading cities. The permits for December totaled $131,517,705, a gain of 1 per cent over November when the volume was $130,539,596, according to the report of S. W. Straus & Co.

The 25 cities in which the largest number of building permits were issued showed during December, 1930, a collective gain of 22 per cent over December, 1929, and a gain of 14 per cent over November, 1930.

Election of a new director and re-election of officers featured the recent annual meeting of the Pittsburgh Chapter, American Institute of Architects. Howard K. Jones was elected director for three years, succeeding R. Maurice Trimble. Officers re-elected were Frederick Bigger, president; Harvey A. Schwab, vice president; Robert C. C. Bowers, secretary, and Ralph M. Reutti, treasurer.

Two lots, 68x199 feet and 57x220 feet, in Valley avenue, O'Hara Township, have been sold by the Aspinwall-Delafield Land Company to Charles W. Hastings.

An improved property in Woodstock avenue, Swissvale, has been purchased by Gulia Modarelli from the Braddock Trust Company for $6,250. The lot measures 50x160 feet.

A lot, 29x140 feet, in Navahoe a dwelling in Jane street, Seventeenth Ward, has been purchased by Wasyle Kropej from Stanley J. Krasinski for $5,000.

A lot, 29x140 feet, in avahoe drive, Mt. Lebanon, has been deeded by C. I. Shannon to William H. Bergheimer.

Eleventh Ward—M. Portman, brick dwelling and garage, 1440 Euclid avenue, $8,000.

2 HELD IN RAID ON ROADHOUSE

Two alleged proprietors of the Polka Dot Inn, on the William Penn Highway in Patton Township, were held for court by the United States Commissioner today on charges of sale and possession of intoxicants. They were Royden Herron, of Everett street, Wilkinsburg, and Clyde M. Kitchen, of North Braddock, arrested when the inn was raided Saturday night.

Forty-six bottles of beer were reported seized at the inn which agents said they had been informed, was patronized by high school pupils from the east boroughs and East Liberty.

A short time later Kitchen was arrested when he arrived in an automobile with 13 pints of whisky, according to the agents. Kitchen admitted, raiders declared, that he and Herron owned the roadhouse.

2d Trial in New Year Bomb Deaths Begun

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 26.—(AP.)—For the second time Leroy Brady, young mechanic, indicted with his brother Herman for murder following a bomb explosion on New Year day, 1930, which killed Herman's wife and two others, faced trial today. Selection of a jury started in Circuit Court here, where the case was transferred from Prince George's county. At a previous trial last year of Leroy Brady the jury failed to agree. Herman asked a separate trial.

Catarrhal Deafness May Be Overcome

If you have catarrhal deafness or head noises go to all May's & Liggett's Drug Stores, or your druggist, and get 1 oz. of Parmint (double strength), and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises, clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It's easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has catarrhal deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.

PALESTINE FUND PLAY TO MARK SOUGHT IN U. S. SAFETY MEET

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—AP—Jewish leaders in a conference decided to open a campaign next month in which Jews in America will be asked to contribute $10,000,000 for reconstruction work in Palestine.

Morris [illegible], [illegible] director of the Stephen S. Wise Free Synagogue, Nathan Straus, chairman of the Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies, Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver, of Cleveland, and Rabbi Judah L. Magnes, of Jerusalem, were among those present. Walter M. [illegible], of Philadelphia, was selected as chairman of the committee in charge.

July 1 is set as the end of the drive.

Dr. Cyrus Adler, chairman of the American Section of the Jewish Agency, said the agency and the British government would reach a new agreement by the removal of the Passfield white paper, [illegible] Jews in Palestine.

One of Two Missing Fliers Found Dead

GALVESTON, Tex., Jan. 26.—AP—A body identified by officials of the Third Attack Group, Army Air Corps, as that of Corp. Elaine Beckmann, who, with Lieut. Jonathan Gaffy, pilot, was missing for two weeks, was found on the beach near here. The body was discovered by duck hunters.

Both Found Cruel, Divorce Is Denied

NEW CASTLE, Jan. 26.—Judge James A. Chambers in an opinion refused a divorce to Lawrence H. Montgomery from Iva Belle Agnew B. Montgomery on charges of cruel and barbarous treatment and dismissed the libel. The court found both had been cruel to the other and both at fault.

Arch Grip Shoes Stand This Weather 6.75

Remember last week—you started out one day in the sun and came home in a snow storm! If you wear Arch Grips you really don't care—for their leathers are just a bit heavier—the soles slightly thicker. Arch Grips offer more protection against cold and dampness—yet remain trimly smart. Many styles in black and brown.

BLUE LAW FRIENDS, FOES SET FOR FIGHT

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

Jim Rooney, the North Sider, and the other rookies who are serving their first terms in the State Legislature are being initiated these days in Harrisburg. Veteran assemblymen and senators like to put the newcomers through their paces.

Mr. Pfarr

Attorney William Stadtlander, the former printer, who is a North Side assemblyman, recalls one of the oldest tricks, usually executed on a new legislator's first day. The rookie is told that the speaker wants to see him and, proud at being cited, the young man gradiosely marches up to the speaker's desk, fancying that all eyes are upon him. The speaker, of course, hadn't sent for him, probably had never heard of him, and the young man slumps back to his seat, cursing legislation in general.

Once Stadtlander took advantage of the good nature of his friend, Attorney Edward Goehring, the East End assemblyman. The first session was ending and Stadtlander informed Goehring, who was serving his first term, that he was entitled to take home with him the comfortable chair he used in the Assembly.

"Just call the carpenter," Stadtlander advised Goehring, "and tell him to pack it and mail it. And while you're at it tell him to put my chair in with yours."

Goehring did just that. And that day a carpenter was telling his colleagues all about that queer new guy from Pittsburgh.

"Hey:

"I was in Lilly, Pa., when the Wickersham Report was announced and a reporter from the Lilly Sponge called me up and said, said he, 'What do you think of the Wickersham Report?' and, quicker than a flash, I said, 'Like the report, I have nothing to say'."

"ELIM WHEEL."

WILL ROGERS SAYS

AUSTIN, Tex., Jan. 26.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

The Wickersham report has divided parties and individuals into the following classifications: There are the "retainists," that want to retain the amendment, and the liquor that goes with it. The "abolitionists" want to abolish the amendment and retain the liquor. Then there is the "appropriationists." They want some money appropriated whether it's abolished or retained. Then there is the "state riters." They want their state to handle the revenue that comes from liquor, under the present plan, or under any proposed plan. Then the big majority belong to the "willing to be convinced as soon as they see how the people will vote" plan. Kind of got Mr. Hoover hanging on the fringes of that troup.

Yours, WILL.

AUTOS KILL 6 IN CROWDED TRAFFIC

Many Injured as Result of Balmy Motoring Weather In District Over Week-End

Automobile accidents claimed the lives of six persons and caused injury to many others in the Pittsburgh district over the week-end, Spring-like weather brought many motorists out yesterday, crowding the highways.

A man believed to be Tony Colosimo, 45, who lived at the Scully Yards of the Pennsylvania Railroad, was killed, and a companion was injured seriously when the automobile driven by Justice of the Peace James J. Westwood, of 107 Ella street, McKees Rocks, struck the men as they were walking in West Carson street at Corliss street. Squire Westwood will post bond today for an inquest. Tony Costomzo, 38, of Scully Yards, is in St. Joseph's Hospital suffering a probable fracture of the skull.

HIT-RUN CRASH FATAL

Mary Kowatch, 16, of Fayette City, was killed, and her companion, Philip Seranio, of Monessen, injured seriously when Seranio's machine hit a pole after being sideswiped in the Monessen-Belle-vernon road near Gibsonton, late last night. Deupty Coroner M. T. Crowley, of Charleroi, said the driver of the other car had not been apprehended.

Laddie Manick, 22, of 119¼ Cherry way, Braddock, was killed and three companions were injured, two seriously when a car in which they were riding hit a pole along the Braddock road near East Pittsburgh. Police say the car had been stolen earlier in Braddock. The injured are Patrick Conley, 20, of Thirteenth street and Penn way, Braddock; Thomas Gibbons, of 1018 Kirkpatrick street, North Braddock, and Thomas Conroy, 19, of 1120 Kirkpatrick street, North Braddock. Conley and Gibbons are in the Braddock General Hospital.

DUQUESNE WOMAN KILLED

When an automobile in which she was riding struck a pole near Rainbow Gardens, McKeesport, Mrs. Julia Swanson, 62, of 110 Dell street, Duquesne, was killed yesterday. Arvil Johnson, of 115 Dell street, alleged driver of the car, has been notified to appear before the coroner today.

Injuries suffered three weeks ago caused the death of Joseph Strawhince, 23, of New Haven, Conn., last night in the Valley Hospital, Sewickley. The young man was injured when a car in which he was riding hit a pole near Clinton. Strawhince and three other young men, all students at the University of Wisconsin, were returning to the university after spending the holidays in the East.

GIRL RUN DOWN, DIES

Struck by an automobile near her home Saturday night, Margaret Kucherick, 11, of 2113 Main street, Sharpsburg, died en route to the hospital. Police say William G. Klare, of 100 West Undercliffe street, Glenshaw, was driver of the machine.

Others injured in auto accidents were Mrs. Adolph Harris, 57, of 1414 Alton street, injured in a collision in Schenley Park; John Brady, 23, and his brother, Aldert, 21, of McKees Rocks, injured in a collision in Chartiers avenue, McKees Rocks; Joseph and Michael Barnyak, brothers, of Duquesne, and Michael Andrews, injured on Duquesne boulevard; Martin Dunn, 44, of 4015 Howley avenue, fell in front of an auto in Braddock avenue, Braddock; Michael Abraham, 28, of Verona, injured on Freeport road; Mrs. Marie Kalz, of 540 Ophelia street Mt. Oliver, and Mrs. Magdalena Benger, of 909 Climax street, injured at Smithfield and Carson streets, and Nicholas Paras, 36, of 200 Anderson street, run down at Sandusky and Lacock streets.

Fireproofing Firm Buys Southern Plant

The plant of the Vulcan Tile and Brick Company, of Birmingham, Ala., has been purchased by the National Fireproofing Corporation, it was announced at the corporation's office here. The purchase means that the corporation has booked new business in the South and intends to compete in that territory.

Pershing Found Rumors of Peace Periled Morale

MY EXPERIENCES IN THE WORLD WAR

By JOHN J. PERSHING,

Commander-in-Chief, American Expeditionary Forces.

CHAPTER XV.

Succeeding chapters of "My Experiences in the World War" will appear daily and Sunday exclusively in the Sun-Telegraph.

I received many reminders September 13 that another birthday had come, including a surprise party by my staff that evening. As this was exactly three months after I had reached Paris the time seemed to be passing very rapidly, with little apparent progress against the day when an American army should be on the front line.

Winter was approaching, with the prospect of increasing hardships for the troops and the people. These thoughts were not particularly cheerful, but there was a lighter side. The wishes of good fortune that came from all parts of our country showed a widespread solicitude in our behalf and revealed anew the sincerity of the patriotic sentiments that so strongly supported us. Although we could but look forward to the service ahead of us as being full of difficulties, yet, with the nation behind us, there was much of encouragement to be garnered from the day.

Gen. Pershing

Gen. Wirbel gave a luncheon for me, a graceful gesture that indicated an attitude of good will in the community toward Americans. As Mme. Wirbel and her daughters received us I was attracted by the youngest, a beautiful child of 6, and undertook to chat with her in French.

As she did not reply to my questions, I asked, "Comprenez-vous?" when, with childish frankness, she replied "No," much to the amusement of several of the less respectful members of my staff.

Although prompted by the most friendly and hospitable spirit, the luncheons given by the French and the teas by the British, each constituting what seemed a time consuming ceremony, did not especially appeal to busy Americans. This occasion was, however, opportune, as it brought together officers of the two armies who were to be closely allied in service.

Transportation Question

The importance of shipping for America was beginning to be considered in Allied circles. I received a letter from Gen. Robertson, British Chief of Staff, who spoke of their increasing losses and of his anxiety regarding the voyage of our troops across the Atlantic. As to tonnage for us, he said it was entirely between Great Britain and ourselves, as none of the other Allies could furnish any to speak of.

He suggested that Admiral Mayo and I should go to London to consider with the Admiralty shipping arrangements needed for American troops the following year. His letter showed an awakening as to the need of cooperation in this important respect.

On top of this, in conference a few days later with Lord Derby, the British Minister of War, I was told that his government could not be counted on to furnish us ships as transports.

The substance of General Robertson's letter was cabled to Washington, suggesting the importance of taking advantage of the opportunity offered to obtain additional shipping. A few days later we were told that needful arrangements for trans-Atlantic transports were being made by the Shipping Board. This information was contained in the following cable:

"President of the United States says question of shipping is being looked after from here and that arrangements now being made would be confused by such a conference as you suggest. Our shipping must necessarily be supplied by ourselves and Shipping Board here is in direct conference with British authorities controlling their shipping."

Rumors of Peace

The question of greatest importance to the Allies, although they had heretofore failed fully to appreciate it, was not whether our troops should be used as replacements or as an independent army, but whether we should be able to get them over at all.

There was little in the general situation to give comfort to the Allies. Losses by the British through continued operations were still growing. There no longer remained any doubt as to Russia's fate, and it was consequently certain that German troops on that front would be released for service in the west. Under the circumstances, the tired Allied peoples were easily influenced by rumors.

The Pope's proposal, issued in August, started some talk of peace, but as it failed to condemn Germany's violation of treaties and her inhumane submarine warfare, the note did not make a favorable impression on the Allies. In fact, it was criticized in terms that were not at all moderate. The various replies from the different governments, did, however, arouse some hope, which was altogether unwarranted by the real attitude of the authorities of the belligerent powers on either side.

The discussion was unfortunate because the French people, not realizing that peace was improbable, lost some of their courage, and the depression from this and other factors caused uneasiness among both civil and military leaders.

BATTLE TO SAVE WOMAN FAILS

A vain battle to save the life of Mrs. Elizabeth Heron, 42, was staged in her home for more than two hours this morning, when oxygen tanks were rushed to her bedside as a means of fighting pneumonia. Gus McClelland, a representative of the Mines Safety Appliances Company administered the oxygen for more than two hours.

John Heron, the husband, a North Side fireman, telephoned North Side fire alarm operator Norman Loomis that his wife was dying in their home at 1119 Goettman street. Heron asked for oxygen. Loomis sent an emergency call to McClelland who responded with several tanks.

From two o'clock until after four o'clock McClelland administered the oxygen, keeping the wife alive. From four until five o'clock the woman apparently rested much easier. A short time later it was again necessary to use the tanks and this time they failed.

First Robin Here Breaks Record By 3 Days

John D. Meyer, of Edgewood, former United States attorney, reported seeing the first robin yesterday in Falling Springs Park, Edgewood.

This was the earliest he ever saw one. His previous record was January 28. In seven out of the last 11 years he got his first sight of robins, he said, on Washington's Birthday, either near his home in Edgeworth or in country districts near Pittsburgh.

OPEN JAIL BIDS TOMORROW

County Commissioners will open bids tomorrow for malleable iron beams and gratings for remodeling buildings at Parkview for prison purposes. The reconstructed buildings are designed to relieve congestion at the county jail.

Bids will be received also for the construction of a new bridge and the removal of the present structure over Flaugherty's Run, Moon Township, and the construction of a new sidewalk and hand railing for a bridge over Douglas Run near Suterville.

THREE VISITING JUDGES HERE

Three visiting judges began service in Criminal Court today, assisting the local judges in clearing this week's calendar. One murder case and two cases of involuntary manslaughter are included in the calendar. The murder case is that of Louis Lewis, Negro, of Gibbon street, who was to be arraigned today for the fatal shooting of a neighbor, Claud C. Skaggs, 43, of 1207 Gibbon street, last August 23. Skaggs died the next day in the hospital.

Methodist Worker To Lecture Here

Incidents relative to the social and religious work among the mountaineers of Tennessee will be related by Dr. J. S. Burnett, superintendent of the Tennessee Mountain projects for the Methodist Episcopal Church in a series of 12 addresses to be given here next month. The addresses will be given in Methodist Episcopal churches in the city and adjacent communities. They will begin February 1 and close February 22.

Engineer to Speak At Fire School

J. H. Howland, for 23 years an engineer for the National Board of Fire Underwriters, New York, will be the speaker at the third session of the Chamber of Commerce fire school tomorrow night in the Chamber auditorium. He will discuss the economic loss from fire that every individual pays when he purchases a commodity in any store. The meeting tomorow is one of a series of six for watchmen, janitors and building superintendents.

LIBERALS TO PUSH LOCAL OPTION

Sabbath School Association Head Says His Lobbying Will Balk Modification

On one side the Anti-Blue Law Association has unted with the Association for Modification of the Blue Laws of 1794. They have announced an intensive campaign in support of local option bills designed to liberalize the Blue Laws. On the other side the Sabbath School Association of Western Pennsylvania has linked strength with clergy throughout the state.

"BILLS DOOMED"

The gauntlet was hurled down today at noon by Dr. Robert M. Blackwood, head of the Sabbath School Association. Admitting he had been lobbying at Harrisburg and had the assurance of "key men" on the Law and Order Committee that the bills would be pigeonholed, Dr. Blackwood urged simultaneous mass meetings in protest.

Speaking at the Ministerial Association meeting of Methodist Episcopal churches in the Methodist Building, he said:

"The bill will die a foreordained death. But we must be prepared for battle. We are arranging mass meetings February 22 throughout Western Pennsylvania. Remember that City Council at Philadelphia has indorsed Musmanno's bill, 17 to 2. The support of the Pittsburgh Council will be sought. Two years ago we held 21 meetings and flooded the Law and Order Committee with protests. No less than 10 bills, designed to commercialize the Sabbath, have been defeated through such efforts.

"We must get out our guns!"

WETTACH BILL READY

A committee of three was appointed to draw up a resolution of protest.

Rpresentative Michael A. Musmanno has introduced a bill which has the support of the Anti-Blue Law Association. A second attack on closed-Sunday statutes is to be made by the Association for Modification through a measure to be presented this week by Representative James Wettach, of the North Side.

The Musmanno bill, presented last Tuesday, provides for repeal of the laws, effective January 1, 1932. Meanwhile, in November, a state-wide referendum would be held at which each municipality would determine to what extent it desired Sunday sports and amusement.

The Wettach bill is the same as a measure presented at the 1929 session, which failed of enactment. It provides that games, sports and entertainment be legal on Sunday, provided no admission charge is made, except for wholly charitable or educational purposes.

U. S. Awards $1,660,000 Barge Contracts Here

Contracts for the construction of barges for the United States government at a total cost of $1,660,000 have been awarded to three local companies, it was announced today. The local concerns are the American Bridge Company and the McClintic-Marshall Construction Company and the Midland Barge Company.

The American Bridge Company and the McClintic Marshall Construction Company received the biggest contracts, each to build 10 of the 300-foot barges. Each barge costs $68,000, making the total of the two contracts $1,360,000.

Contracts for the construction of five 230-foot barges with steel deckhouses, costing about $60,000 each or $300,000 have been given the Midland Barge Company.

BISHOP TO OPEN EPISCOPALIAN MEET HERE

Dr. Mann's Annual Address Scheduled as Diocesan Session Starts Tuesday

The annual address of the Rt. Rev. Alexander Mann, bishop of the Pittsburgh Diocese of the Protestant Episcopal Church, will open the sixty-sixth annual diocesan convention in Trinity Cathedral tomorrow morning. The convention will last two days with representatives of more than 80 parishes and missions of the diocese attending. A communion service will follow the Bishop's address.

The Rt. Rev. Albert Sidney Thomas, bishop of South Carolina, will be the principal speaker tomorrow afternoon, discussing "The Advance Work Program." A half hour of the afternoon session will be given to reports from every diocesan committee. Bishop Mann and Mrs. Mann will receive the delegates in Trinity House from 4:30 until 6:30 o'clock.

Tomorrow night there will be a missionary service in the cathedral, addressed by the Rt. Rev. Frank W. Creighton, missionary bishop of Mexico and executive secretary for domestic and Latin-American missions of the church.

ADMITS SUICIDE ATTEMPT

David Marandez, 72, roaming at 54 South Nineteenth street, committed before Magistrate J. J. Sweeney in South Side Police Court today he had attempted to end his life because he was "old everywhere he was 'too old to work.'"

He was found sitting on the bathroom floor early today, according to testimony, with one end of a rubber hose in his mouth, the other end attached to a gas stove, after police summoned by his roommate, John Mosback, 70, broke down the door. Marandez said he was willing to go to Mayview, and the magistrate ordered him sent there.

VISIONS REFORM TO ABATE NEED OF CHARITY

Dr. Lowenstein Holds Fund Goal of Federation Not Large Considering Scope

Abrupt transition from peaks of prosperity to depths of depression must not again find the nation wanting in ability to care for victims of the change, Dr. Solomon Lowenstein, of New York, declared last night in an address before 1,000 Jewish citizens in the Y. M. and W. H. A. Building.

Dr. Lowenstein

Addressing the annual meeting of the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies, Dr. Lowenstein envisioned a goal of social and economic reform, looking toward diminution if not elimination of demands for assistance from welfare agencies in the future. Dr. Lowenstein is director of 91 organizations under the head of Jewish philanthropy in New York City.

URGES REGISTRATION

He said in part:

"No one knows exactly how many are unemployed. The government does not know and no one has any definite figures. We should take steps to register unemployed and establish public employment agencies so that in the future we may know exactly where we stand all the time, instead of depending on a slipshod commercial system for finding employment.

"Lastly, we must face the fact that we must work out some method of unemployment insurance. We must safeguard workmen as capital has its safeguard by building up a reserve. Why should the stockholder or investor have advantages denied to labor. Why should the only one unprotected from these depressions be the employe, who is least able to bear the burden?

"Out of all this turmoil some good may come."

CITES FUND APPEAL

Dr. Lowenstein called attention to the approaching appeal for $450,000 by the 17 agencies under the Pittsburgh federation. He said the amount is not large considering the work involved and the number of agencies concerned. Alfred M. Oppenheimer, president of the federation and chairman of the forthcoming appeal, described conditions met by the agencies during 1930. Dr. L. B. Bernstein, executive director of the federation; Max L. Blum, treasurer, and Miss Minnie Affelder, secretary, also spoke.

Miss Pescha Kagen, of Washington, Pa., presented a musical program. Rabbi Goodman A. Rose delivered the invocation and Dr. Samuel H. Goldenson the benediction. Silent tributes were accorded the memory of Louis J. Affelder, Judge Josiah Cohen, Isaac W. Frank and Abraham DeRoy, who died during the last year.

The following were elected directors: Harry J. Appleston, Leon Falk, Jr., William K. Frank, Mrs. Leo L. Half, Albert C. Lehman, Leonard S. Levin, Charles J. Rosenbloom, Ferdinand T. Weil and S. J. Anathan.

HEART ATTACKS KILL 3 MEN

Heart attacks proved fatal to three men yesterday, the coroner's office reported.

John L. Hutchison, 55, a stock salesman, of East North avenue, fell dead while walking in East Park-way and Sandusky street. He was pronounced dead at the Allegheny General Hospital.

Simon E. Wagner, 82, of Elizabeth, and Gotfried Gredelein, 87, of Mt. Lebanon, were found dead in their homes by members of their families, according to the coroner's report. The deaths were attributed to heart disease.

SLIDES IMPERIL AUTO TRAFFIC

Landslides in the Freeport road caused one-way traffic restrictions today until workmen were able to clear the debris. A serious slide was reported to police in a cut between the Hilton bridge and Blawnox, and it was found necessary for state highway police from the Parnassus detail to patrol the section with diverted traffic. Another slide was reported in Springdale Township between Springdale Borough and the New Kensington bridge.

Tube Display Warns Of Traffic Dangers

A warning signal to reckless drivers was put into operation by the Better Traffic Committee at the south end of the Liberty Bridge today. The signal, a cop's arm sweeping a large circle on which is typified the confusion of modern congested streets, warns motorists to "beware of unseen dangers."

3 Townships Hold Tax Levy Hearings

Residents of Reserve, Ross and Scott townships today were given the opportunity to have their appeals heard by the County Board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes. The appeals are from the triennial county evaluation of properties for tax purposes. Tomorrow Shaler, Snowden and South Fayette townships are listed for appeals.

Red Cross Requests Donations be Sent

Announcement was made today at headquarters of the Pittsburgh Chapter of the American Red Cross that there is to be no general canvass for the Drought Relief Fund. Should any one wish to give to this fund, his contribution should be sent to the headquarters of the Pittsburgh Red Cross, 402 Chamber of Commerce Building.

Here's the Way to Treat Those Miserable Colds So Prevalent Here Now

WITH scattered cases of flu breaking out in this locality, don't take chances with colds NOW—it's too dangerous! Unless checked quickly, colds tend to pull down the body resistance and may pave the way for an attack of flu with all its serious complications.

1 At the first sign of stuffiness or irritation in the nose or throat, snuff some Vicks VapoRub up the nose several times a day. This will often check a cold at the start.

2 If the head is all "stuffed up" — clogged with mucus or phlegm—or there is much coughing, melt a teaspoonful of Vicks in a bowl or kettle of hot water and inhale the steaming vapors for five minutes at a time. This treatment has a remarkable effect in clearing the air passages, easing the breathing, soothing the irritation, relieving the cough, and helps to prevent the cold from spreading.

3 At bedtime, in order to get the benefit of its long-continued stimulation and inhalation effect, rub Vicks vigorously over the throat and chest and cover with warm flannel.

4 If possible, stay at home until the cold is broken. Complete rest helps the body to throw off the cold more quickly.

Mother!—treat children's colds promptly, but avoid "dosing." Too much internal medicine often upsets the child's digestion and lowers the vitality. Being applied externally, Vicks does not upset the stomach, and can be used freely and as often as needed without the slightest harmful effect.

DON'T TAKE CHANCES WITH COLDS NOW!

STORES LOOTED, POSTAL FUNDS STOLEN

$25 Taken in East End Gas Station Holdup; Women's Purses Seized by Thugs

Ten pedestrians, including two women, were robbed by highwaymen, and a gasoline service station was held up and two stores were looted in various sections of the Pittsburgh district over the week-end.

Beaten by two highwaymen who stopped him in West Park, North Side, early today, George Kline, 812 West Diamond street, was robbed of $18. Injured severely on the head, Kline was taken to the Allegheny General Hospital.

John L. Wilkes, attendant at the Standard Gasoline Station, 4028 Beechwood boulevard, was held up by two robbers early today after he had filled the tank of their automobile with gasoline. The thugs looted the cash register of $25 and sped away.

POSTAL BRANCH ROBBED

Postal inspectors today were to inquire into the robbery of the Laurel Gardens postoffice in the grocery store of John J. Jost, Glenmore extension, Laurel Gardens, Ross Township. Postal funds, the amount of which has not yet been determined, were stolen from a desk drawer.

George J. Vogel, of Natrona, reported to police he had been held up and robbed of a gold watch, a ring and $13 by two thugs, who halted him in Cherry street, Brackenridge, early yesterday.

Andrew Kovac, 18, of 206 Arleies street, Duquesne, reported to police three thugs stopped him and stole his overcoat while he was walking in the Oakhill district yesterday.

WOMEN'S PURSES TAKEN

Accosted by a man at South Twenty-second and Josephine streets, Miss Regina Novack, of 2619 Sumner street, was robbed of her purse containing $3.50 Saturday night.

Miss Jeannette Lloyd, of 14 Rose place, was robbed of her purse containing $5.50 by a man who approached her in Forward avenue, near Shady avenue.

John Enlow, of 2163 Bedford avenue, reported to police two Negroes held him up in Kirkpatrick street and robbed him of $3.

HELD UP NEAR HOME

As William Barkley, 3827 Cabinet way, was about to enter his home Saturday night, two Negroes menaced him with revolvers and rifled his pockets of $1.80.

Attacked by three men at Thirtieth street and Spring way early yesterday, Joseph Hison, of 4403 Penn avenue, was robbed of $6.

Samuel Aubrey, of 2409 Hobson street, Brookline, was robbed of $7 Saturday night by two bandits who forced him into an alley as he was walking in Stanwix street between Penn avenue and Duquesne way.

Hill Storekeeper Reports Holdup

A Negro gunman held up William Tweed, manager of a P. H. Butler store at 2114 Wylie avenue, today and escaped with $35 taken from the cash register, police were informed. No customer was in the store at the time, Tweed said.

Astronomers Preparing for Earth to Be Rocked—But You Won't Feel It!

SIX PHOTOS OF THE SPEEDY PLANET EROS

Eros, fast moving planet photographed on six successive nights. It moves about one degree a day and is approaching near to the earth.

EROS' COURSE DURING NEXT FEW MONTHS

About February 1, Eros will be closer to earth than any planet ever comes, but only folks with telescopes will be able to see it in the skies.

DR. F. C. JORDAN, ALLEGHENY OBSERVATORY DIRECTOR, WITH EROS' PICTURE

Astronomers under Dr. Jordan are preparing for the "visit." Eros will be about 30,000,000 miles away at the time, but it will rock earth on its axis. You needn't worry unduly, however, because you won't be able to feel the shock when it occurs, Pittsburgh's astronomers say.

SKY OBSERVERS LOOK FOR EROS

Astronomers at Allegheny observatory are training their powerful telescopes toward the small planet Eros which, according to science, will make the closest approach to earth of any known planet, around February 1.

During the close approach of Eros, astronomers hope to obtain data for a more exact determination of the distance from the earth to the sun, familiarly known as "the astronomer's yardstick."

Observations of Eros have been followed by N. Wagman and C. W. Hetzler, of the observatory, since the middle of November by photography.

Most amateur astronomers will be disappointed to learn that Eros will not be visible even when it is closest to the earth, 30 million miles. At that time, the earth will be rocked about on its axis, but the shock will not be felt.

HEATING MEN NAME CARRIER

W. H. Carrier, of New York, was named as the new president at the thirty-seventh annual convention of the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers today opened for four days in the William Penn Hotel.

Advertising Club To Hear New Yorker

B. J. Sweetland, president of Sweetland Advertising, Inc., of New York, will address the Pittsburgh Advertising Club at a noon luncheon tomorrow in the William Penn Hotel. Members of the club have been invited to attend the fifth annual Artists' and Adders' ball to be held Friday in the hotel by the Women's Advertising Club.

WELL-DRESSED MEN FOUND HERE, TOO

New York's Mayor Walker Not Only One, Tailors Admit; Kline Is Match

Pittsburgh has its share of well-dressed men, say fashion leaders here for the formal opening of the annual convention tomorrow of the National Association of Merchant Tailors of America in Hotel William Penn.

While New York has its Mayor James J. Walker, the fashion creators found Mayor Charles H. Kline possesses equal sartorial reputation—and among other tasteful dressers are Magistrate John J. Sweeney, M. L. Benedum, J. C. Trees, Frank J. Lanahan and H. H. Patterson.

"There is a steadily increasing tendency, particularly on the part of our younger business executives to realize the commercial and social value of presenting a good personal impression at all times."

The fashion decree of the nation for the next year will be handed down tomorrow with the formal opening of the convention.

The convention will discuss the four year $1,000,000 advertising program for newspapers and magazines to begin within a month.

Air Line Reduces Fare to Cincinnati

A reduction in passenger rates on the air line of the Main Aeronautics Company between Pittsburgh and Cincinnati, were announced today by officials of the company. The rates will go into effect February 1. The change in transportation costs makes the fare from Pittsburgh to Cincinnati $20. The line also has stops at Portsmouth and Huntington.

OLD GOLD TAKES DETROIT "IN HIGH.."

MOTOR CITY SITS IN ON RIPLEY'S FOUR-BRAND CIGARETTE TEST. YES, O. G. WINS!

Won't somebody . . . some city . . . some section . . . please step up and lick OLD GOLD in one of these four-brand taste-tests . . . just for variety?

Take Detroit! I took it . . . or rather OLD GOLD did . . . in stride. Greeted the Mayor. Met Detroit Clubmen. Stood in the middle of the International Bridge. Raced all over town, with four leading brands of cigarettes to be sampled by Detroit's busy populace.

And what happened? The same OLD GOLD story! The same OLD GOLD win! This time by a 33% margin!

I tell you this famed throat-ease of OLD GOLD is fact, not fancy. That's why O. G. clicks in every taste-test.

Still . . . it takes an exception to prove a rule. And I am still looking for the group or city that won't pick O. G.

And one of the most glittering and spectacular weddings of the year will bring a romantic thrill to the most hard-boiled cynic when Frances Myler Kiers, daughter of the Frank J. Kiers of Beechwood boulevard, becomes the bride of Baron Jean Pellenc, in Paris, on March 10. The baron is the son of Gen. Baron and Baronne Pellenc of Avenue Gabriel, Paris. Frances and the baron, who visited here for a month, sailed for France earlier this month.

Wedding Galore

Two more weddings of note will take place shortly. On Thursday Marjorie Stoner, daughter of Edmund Curtis Stoner of Sewickley, will marry John Henry Painter, son of Mrs. John Henry Painter and the late Judge Painter of Kittanning, at noon, in the home of her uncle and aunt, the Martin Lawrence Moores of Sewickley.

And a week from today Mary Oliver, daughter of the Henry Olivers, will marry William Christopher Robinson, Jr., son of the William Christopher Robinsons.

February 11 will bring still another wedding, that of Mary Rowland Clark, daughter of James Bly Clark, of Fox Chapel road, who will wed Joseph Turner Willey on February 11.

Groundhog Expert Now State Road Weather Seer

LANCASTER, Pa., Jan. 26.—(AP.)—George W. Hensel, Jr., hibernating governor of the Quarryville Groundhog Lodge, announced he had accepted the position of official weather prognosticator for the State Highway Department.

Secretary of Highways Samuel S. Lewis visited Hensel and pointed out how important it was that the department be forewarned of the arrival of spring and other such weather matters. Hensel said he agreed that in Lewis' case the groundhog should be willing to suspend the rules and impart some of the information in advance of the animal's yearly appearance. Lewis took with him, Hensel said, "inside information" about the coming of spring, but other people must wait until the groundhog makes his annual appearance February 2.

Brief Illness Fatal To Venango Auditor

FRANKLIN, Jan. 26.—County Auditor J. Leroy Kinsey, 58, died in his home yesterday following a serious illness of less than a week. Kinsey was former city clerk and tax collector in Franklin, one-time mercantile appraiser, and was elected county auditor in 1928.

IRWIN CLASSES HALTED 10 DAYS

IRWIN, Pa., Jan. 26.—Irwin public school children will not be able to resume class work for another 10 days, it was indicated today following a special meeting of the school board Saturday night, the second one called since the Irwin Public School was destroyed by fire, early Friday. Inability to get textbooks before that time was given by directors as the cause for delay.

The directors decided to open temporary classrooms in the Methodist Episcopal Church, Third street, and Moose Hall, Sixth street, as soon as the books were received, they said after the meeting Saturday night.

One-half the remaining wall in the Sixth street side of the school fell yesterday afternoon, but no one was injured, police reported. Plans for a new building will not be drawn until insurance companies make known their adjustments on the destroyed building, directors said.

Brigham Young Kin Engaged to Marry

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Mrs. George Page Ely has announced the engagement of her sister, Miss Dorothy Weir, of Park avenue, to Mahonri Young, painter, etcher and sculptor.

Miss Weir is the daughter of the late J. Alden Weir, artist, who died in 1919. Young is a grandson of Brigham Young.

Over the Bridge Table . . .

Says Mrs. McGraw to Mrs. Kelley at the bridge party the other day:

Why, you don't mean to tell me you've never been in Kaufmann's Annex?

WHY, you're either very wealthy, or you're a spendthrift.

Do you know, I never go down town, but what I stop in, if just to look around. They get new things in every day, and if you want to be STYLE RIGHT, and at the same time be economical, drop in when you're in town again.

Do you remember that brown dress I wore about three weeks ago at Mrs. Montmery's bridge, that one with the lacey collar, and tight sleeves?

I knew you thought it was much more expensive the way you looked at it, but you didn't want to ask me the price.

You say you thought it was worth $35? See! there you are! And that's not all.

They also have Dresses at $10, 7.85, 4.95, 3.95, and lovely Wash Dresses at only 2.95.

They have shoes at $5 in all the latest styles, they even have hosiery as low as 85c, and millinery for only 2.95.

And what's more, you get the same service and delivery as you do at the main store—and your charge can be used there.

Mrs. Mitchell and Mrs. Groham both buy there, don't you, girls?

Of course, not all their clothes, for one must have several finer dresses which they buy in the main store, same as I do. I do all my shopping in Kaufmann's whether it be the Main Store or the Annex. Girls, you can't make a mistake buying clothes at Kaufmann's.

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph,

PARIS, Jan. 26.—Even the mild rays of a winter sun seem to be sufficient to cause the suit to bloom here. And so a nice day seems to be the signal for every woman to discard her coat and fare forth in a warm suit of woolen, fine cloth or velvet combined with fur. There is such a youthful air about a trig suit that it is not surprising that women welcome every opportunity of donning the latest examples of that type of costume. Then, too, there is a most luxurious atmosphere about the befurred suit that makes it popular and appropriate for afternoon functions. Both flat and fluffy furs are having their innings at various outings just now and the selection is merely a matter of choice, except that flat furs are more appropriate than long-haired varieties for the tailored line.

* * *

WE HAVE SENT YOU two sketches of the latest suits, both of which should be quite good well into the spring season. The one to the left is from Martial et Armand. The material of the coat and skirt is cloth somewhat resembling a very dull surfaced broadcloth. The color is a rich tobacco brown. The large collar and cuffs are of blue fox. There is a belted blouse of cafe au lait satin.

* * *

THE RIGHT-HAND SKETCH shows another suit recently worn at the Ritz at luncheon time. Black velours de laine of light weight quality is combined with black astrakan, almost the entire back of the jacket being of that fur. The butcher cuffs are edged with astrakan. The skirt is straight and flat in front, but has considerable circular movement in back. This is one of the most original suits seen this season and shows how different a suit can be by the strategic placing of the fur trimming.

KOTEX is soft, and it stays soft. It does not pack into chafing hardness after use. Millions of women have discovered that fact, and they are particular to specify Kotex.

One of the reasons why Kotex stays soft is the way in which it absorbs—quickly, scientifically over the entire length of the pad. Many other pads absorb in one concentrated area which soon becomes uncomfortable.

Kotex is guaranteed to last longer, stay soft longer, than any other sanitary pad. You can wear Kotex on either side, with no chance of possible embarrassment, with the same degree of efficiency. It deodorizes. It is shaped to fit. And it is, of course, disposable.

tion, which included the Intelligence Bureaus of the Allied armies, we got the impression that Austria, Bulgaria and Turkey would make peace on any reasonable terms if they could do so. But the German government dominated the policy of all the Central Powers and it was certain that any peace less favorable to them than the status quo ante would not be entertained.

Germans Confident

The German military leaders thought they would eventually win, and did not believe that the blockade would produce serious disaffection among the people. In fact, with Russia now practically out of the war, the German people themselves, as well as their government, feeling that this would give them an enormous advantage which the Americans would not be able to overbalance, firmly believed in ultimate victory.

My cable to the Secretary of War, September 15, 1917, will show our estimate of the situation at the moment as far as the French were concerned:

"There is considerable talk of possibilities of peace this winter and discussion is heard among people of all classes, including those high in military rank. Failure to stop German armies and revolt among Russian troops have had depressing effect upon Allies. Present French cabinet believed to be strongly in favor of continuation of war, but French people in state of mind to accept any favorable proposition. Believe that withdrawal of Germans from Belgium with concessions as to Alsace and Lorraine and return to antebellum status in Balkans would be hard for French to resist, especially with the prospect of giving Germany satisfaction from Russia . . . Recent British attacks beginning with latter part of July have been very costly, and British morale not as high as two months ago."

My diary notes the following:

"Chaumont, Tuesday, September 18, 1917. Visited artillery school at Le Valdahon on Sunday with Harbord, de Chambrun, Boyd and Collins. Progress of artillery and the instruction of 100 young officers very satisfactory.

"Col. Russell called yesterday to urge cabling for telegraph and telephone material ordered before leaving Washington.

"Examined Medical Department's plans today with Col. Bradley and find good progress. There will be no repetition of experience of '98."

Telegraph System Bad

The military post of Le Valdahon, near the Swiss border, used by us as a school for our field artillery, was one of several which had been kindly set apart for Americans in different parts of France. The others were at Costquidan and Meucon, near St. Nazaire, and at Souge and La Corneau, near Bordeaux, and also at Montmorillon, Saumur and Angers, with a school for heavy artillery at Mailly, southeast of Rheims.

The school at Valdahon was then under the direction of Brig. Gen. March, an energetic and alert commander. At the time of my visit, the Fifth, Sixth and Seventh Regiments, comprising the Field Artillery Brigade of the First Division, were there for training.

As to the Signal Corps and its progress, Col. Russell, before leaving Washington, had ordered a large consignment of material for both telegraph and telephone services, but so far none had been received except what was sent with us on the Baltic. Finding it necessary to establish our own service in Paris, where the city system was almost useless, we were fortunately able at once to obtain enough material for the purpose in England and France.

The lines throughout France were so inefficient and unreliable, as government-owned utilities usually are, that to provide unfailing connections it was necessary for us to put in much new construction along our channels of supply, from base ports to headquarters.

'Phone Girls Efficient

The Signal Corps had, of course, to anticipate the communications necessary in battle. Therefore definite decisions were required some time in advance as to spheres of operations. Tons of material, most of which, except wire, was obtained in France, and any amount of labor were used in the actual installations. The main telephone and telegraph lines in proximity to the actual battle area were, when practicable, laid underground to prevent destruction.

The perfection of our communication system in the A. E. F. demanded the most modern terminal, station and line equipment. To assist the efficient though limited personnel of the Regular Signal Corps, the ablest men available to help plan and build, as well as to operate, were called into service from civil life as emergency officers.

One of the crying needs when we once began to use our own lines was for experienced operators.

Instead of trying to train men of the Signal Corps I requested that a number of experienced telephone girls who could speak French be sent over, and eventually we had about 200 girls on this duty. Some doubt existed among the members of the staff as to the wisdom of this step, but it soon vanished as the increased efficiency of our telephone system became apparent.

No civil telephone service that ever came under my observation excelled the perfection of our system after it was well established. The telephone girls in the A. E. F. took great pains and pride in their work, and did it with satisfaction to all.

Coal Shortage Serious

The Medical Department's plans constantly received my careful attention through frequent conferences with the Chief Surgeon, Col. Bradley, and his assistant, Col. Ireland. Most of the older officers remembered with something akin to horror the unsanitary condition of our camps at Chickamagua and elsewhere and the resulting high death rate from disease during the Spanish War, and all concerned especially the medical men, resolved that nothing like that should be repeated in our armies in the World War.

My diary says:

"Paris, Thursday, September 20, 1917. Arrived from Chaumont by motor on Tuesday and have spent two busy days here. Coal shortage so serious that we are borrowing for current needs. In conference with Lord Derby and Major General Maurice yesterday found they can furnish some coal but no tonnage to carry it. Lord Derby offered any supplies England can spare.

Admiral Mayo

"Admiral Mayo, Atterbury, Dawes and Commander Sayles, naval attache, lunched with us today to discuss coal situation. Mayo agrees that Navy and Army interests should be considered together.

"Orders issued today directing strictest economy in use of fuel and oil."

The destruction by the German Army of the mines of northern France had forced the importation from England of a large proportion of the coal needed for various purposes in both France and Italy. Lack of cross-channel tonnage had produced a serious situation, and the danger of coal shortage during the approaching winter gave us much concern. Italy was even worse off, due to her greater distance from the sources of supply.

Hospital Problem

Our problem of handling the sick and wounded was more difficult than that of any of the Allies, as we had no civil hospitals of our own available. Full provision, therefore, had to be made for hospital accommodations in France, as only convalescents manifestly unfit for further service could be sent home. The early estimates submitted in August, based upon a small force of 300,000 men, called for 73,000 beds in permanent, semi-permanent or temporary hospitals, and plans for expansion were in hand to keep pace with the expected requirements of our armies once they should become engaged. While this beginning appeared quite liberal, yet it was calculated to meet further demands of the immediate future.

All the facilities throughout France were available for the French, yet they had so many sick and wounded that their hospital resources were pretty well exhausted. As there seemed to be only a few suitable buildings that could be assigned to us, we had to plan considerable new construction. This required additional labor and material, both of which were scarce, and although there was some delay we managed by persistent effort to keep pace with requirements.

The continuous manufacture of munitions demanded a constant inflow of coal, the railroads needed an assured amount, while the troops and civil populations had to have their proportion. The French foresaw the gravest consequences unless increased quantities could be brought regularly from England, and our necessities were tied up with theirs. Although the French themselves were not working their remaining mines to the fullest extent, yet when it was proposed that American miners be sent to assist them the suggestion was not favored because of internal labor conditions.

Shipping Difficulties

We needed some 40,000 tons of channel shipping to keep us going at this time, and we would require an even larger amount as our activities increased. In an endeavor to make independent provision for our Army on the same basis as the Navy, which was being supplied from British sources, Col. Dawes was sent to confer with Admiral Sims, only to be told that our Navy in European waters could not furnish us any tonnage.

A statement of the situation was cabled to Washington with the request that steamers, possibly from the Great Lakes, be sent.

As satisfactory arrangements could not be made through Admiral Sims, an appeal was made to Admiral Mayo, who was already fully alive to American Army needs. He suggested the possibility of shipping coal from America in naval colliers, or as ballast for our transports. The following cable was sent as a result of this conference:

Admiral Sims

"Situation in both Italy and France reference coal regarded . . . as very serious. England has plenty of coal but cannot furnish transportation, although possible obtain some British assistance to carry coal across channel for ourselves . . . Question of transportation should be considered as a whole and entire problem of coal for American forces including both Army and Navy be co-ordinated and obtained from nearest source. When not otherwise employed full use should be made of available Navy colliers and Army freight transports to supply coal for our Army and help France."

The outcome of our efforts, with the very effective assistance of Admiral Mayo, was that some colliers, one of which was already at Brest, were ordered into service for immediate use, and these were supplemented later by vessels from the Shipping Board. An organization of cross-channel service was completed under the control of Quartermaster Department and later tranferred to the Transportation Department. Although the coal question became more or less critical at various times during the winter, in the main we were fairly well supplied.

FEBRUARY FURNITURE SALE

WE'RE enthusiastic! We're excited! Enthusiastic and excited about the values in this February Furniture Sale. You will be too! The lowest prices in 15 years are something to be excited about. The fashions are right. The kinds of furniture you want right now. At lower prices. A great assortment of carefully selected pieces. Not merely big assortments. But big assortments of the kind of furniture YOU want to own. Large, carefully selected assortments of fashion-right furniture, at prices that make this the outstanding money-saving event of 1931.

Home Beautiful is newly decorated with furniture from the February Sale. The six model rooms give conclusive proof of the smartness of the Furniture Fashions offered at the lowest prices in 15 years.

Budget Home —a smartly furnished 5-room home illustrates in detail how to decorate your ideal home on a limited budget. With February Sale prices at lowest levels in 15 years, the Budget Home is more helpful than ever in helping you furnish your home for very little money.

Budget Plan purchases can be arranged on any selection you might make of $25 or more. Boggs & Buhl's budget plan allows for small down payments. You pay the balance while you are enjoying the furniture in your own home.

Fashion this year, more than ever before, demands well ensembled furniture groups. Separate pieces must go together. Boggs & Buhl's February Furniture Sale purchases have been made with this thought in mind. Each piece is not only fashionable in itself, but will combine fashionably with other pieces offered at sale prices. Which, to repeat, are the lowest in 15 years.

Consider These Significant Facts . . .

More than 10% of the total business of this store is done by the furniture department alone, out of a total of fifty-odd departments! In the average store, doing the same yearly volume of business as Boggs & Buhl (according to statistics compiled throughout the United States by the Harvard Research Bureau), the percentage of furniture business to total store business is only 3.9%. Our percentage is 10.2%, or more than two and one-half times more furniture business than the average store of our class!

It is a matter of simple arithmetic to conclude that a great number of homes in this community have found that Boggs & Buhl is the best place to buy furniture.

* * * * *

Do you know that this store gives you service for the entire life of your furniture . . . if it is damaged or broken in moving, etc., we are equipped to repair it like new.

* * * * *

Do you know that every piece of upholstered furniture sold by Boggs & Buhl is given a moth protection treatment free of charge before the furniture is delivered to your home?

LINE OF BROTHERS TO TOTAL SEVEN

WHEN SPORT DISCUSSIONS turn to remarkable athletic families that have attained prominence at various colleges, how about the Crowes of Notre Dame? The fact that Norbert Crowe is appearing with the current edition of George Keogan's Notre Dame basketball team, which will invade Pittsburgh on February 7 for a return game with the Panthers, adds another chapter to an unusual family record. And it is a record that is likely to have some further additions before it can be termed complete.

Norbert Crowe

Norbert Crowe went to South Bend from Lafayette, Ind., with a heavy responsibility. His three older brothers, Clem, Ed and Frank, of whom the first named is football coach at St. Vincent College, had made athletic history for the Irish and it was up to him to carry one. He won a monogram last season, his sophomore year, to keep up an old Crowe tradition. Someone in the family has won his ND every year since 1923 without a break. And the Crowes are in line to win so many more that the athletic activities of even the Miller family at the same university are apt to be surpassed.

CLEM STARRED IN both football and basketball and captained the 1925 gridders. Ed, while not as prominent as Clem in the sports world, followed with exploits on the hardwood court, and Frank, who finished at Notre Dame in 1929, played three years of varsity basketball and co-captained the 1928-29 five with Joe Jachym.

And though Norbert kept the chain going by winning his letters last year in basketball, he has not yet played out his string by any means, but probably will make further contributions to the family collection of athletic symbols. For he has this season and another to go, and it is certain, barring accidents, that he will win a second monogram in the floor game this year and a third next season.

AND EVEN AFTER the close of Norbert's career the Crowe story will go on. For by that time his younger brother, Leo, who is now a freshman, probably will be in varsity sport competition and doing his share to keep up the family record.

Nor will the line end with Leo, for there are two other brothers at home in high school who will be coming along just in time to carry on the string. It is estimated that the row of consecutive Crowe monograms will run to at least a dozen years, with the possibility of a longer record in the hands of the two youngsters who will follow Leo and who will be the sixth and seventh brothers in the line.

ONE YOUNG PITCHING recruit whose showing in the big show the coming spring will be watched with more than ordinary interest is Jim Mooney, rookie left-hander with the Giants. This for the reason that Mooney was scouted by no less a personage than Manager John McGraw himself. The Giants have had a flock of star southpaws, but it is said that with the possible exception of Ferd Schupp Mooney was the only one ever personally sized up by McGraw before being purchased. That fact will make Mooney the center of much attention in the spring, as McGraw's O. K. is taken by New York fans to mean that the youngster has the stuff to go far. Mooney's record for Charlotte in the Sally League last year was impressive in itself, the feature of it being the fact that he struck out 185 men in 197 innings. That's buzzing them through. Almost one to an inning.

Jack Dempsey

THE RELATIVE MERITS of past and present heavyweight fighters in other respects may be argued until doomsday without a satisfactory conclusion being reached, but there is one item that admits of no comparison.

That is the matter of drawing power. Jack Dempsey, still able to pack them in even when in only the role of a referee, was so far ahead of all the other heavies who preceded or followed him, as a box office card, that no rival can be mentioned in the same breath with him.

MILLION-DOLLAR GATES are no longer known, yet when Dempsey was fighting he pulled no fewer than five of them. One ran beyond $2,500,000, that being the second fight with Gene Tunney in Chicago, which set the all-time record of $2,658,660.

The Georges Carpentier number in Jersey City drew $1,626,560; the Luis Firpo fight in New York, $1,082,590; the first Tunney event in Philadelphia, $1,895,723, and the Jack Sharkey bout in New York, $1,083,529. In the five fights Dempsey drew $8,347,082, record figures which are not likely to be disturbed for a while.

LITTLE HAS BEEN heard of Epinard, the once famous French race horse, since he invaded this country as a 3-year-old in 1924 and was defeated in all of his three races—by Wise Counselor at six furlongs at Belmont Park, by Ladkin at a mile at Aqueduct, and by Sarazen at a mile and a quarter at Latonia. But George Krehbiel has located him at Beaumont Farm, near Lexington, Ky., where he has become one of America's leading sires. Two of his progeny are likely to be prominent figures in the 3-year-old division the coming season. They are Epithet and Siskin. Both starred as juveniles in 1930, Epithet winning the Hopeful and defeating Jamestown, regarded as the 2-year-old champion. Epinard may have passed out of sight, but his blood is carrying on.

IT IS NOT only in a baseball way that Pennsylvania is the home of the world champions of baseball. This state is actually the home of no fewer than nine members of Connie Mack's titular squad. The new roster just issued by the management of the A's shows the following Pennsylvanians:

Chick Hafey

THOUGH NONE OF the 1930 reviews of sports made any mention of it, Harry Salsinger insists that Outfielder Elias Funk of the Detroit Tigers should have been listed among the standouts for having made the most unusual baseball play of the year.

He refers to a Tiger-Red Sox game played in Boston. Funk mistook a pigeon flying over second base for a fly ball hit by Earl Webb and tore in to get under what he thought was the leather, only to have the ball drop behind him and bound away for a home run.

SOME MAJOR LEAGUE baseball magnates will deny that a player is a holdout even when he actually is one, but here comes Branch Rickey with the announcement of a holdout before the athlete in question has even received a contract. The pastimer in the case is Outfielder Chick Hafey, and Rickey goes so far as to predict that he will not be in the Cardinal lineup when the season opens. He says the Hafey, drawing interest on $35,000 worth of gilt-edge securities, is certain to reject any offer made to him, and will be the club's only holdout. Chick will not be on hand opening day, Branch predicts, but along about the first of May he will figure that hanging around home for $170 a month is a poor pastime and by May 3or 4 will be in the lineup.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 26.—The Morgan A. C. team, of Pittsburgh, though somewhat handicapped by a muddy field, had no trouble in obtaining an early lead in its National Amateur Cup tie here yesterday against the Sons of St. George at Kinsman Field, and cinched the contest by a rally in the last half, winning 3 to 0.

The result was never in doubt from the first goal, early in the first half, and, though deterred by a slow field, the visitors outplayed the Sons of St. George throughout the contest, adding two goals in quick succession in the last half to make the result certain.

Cecil Is Victor

By TOM BIRKS.

Another sea of mud faced local soccer teams again yesterday afternoon. The feature game at Cecil in the Keystone League found the men wallowing around ankle deep. The end of 90 minutes of pushing and dragging the ball around saw Cecil winning by a 2-goals-to-0 score.

The summer-like day, with a blue sky overhead brought out a great crowd, and fully 3,000 fans packed the field when the teams appeared. It was evident that soccer was out of the question and the game was similar to the big eruptie of Saturday, in which the teams engaged in a dragging contest.

The game had progressed 15 minutes when the first score came. Cecil had pressed and the Curry defense gave away a corner kick. It was well-placed and, as Delare headed toward the corner of the net, Valdar tried to head away, but the sphere deflected into the net and Cecil was 1 up. That was the only score of the first half.

The second half found the grueling battle taking toll on the players and play slowed up. Cecil forged further ahead after 48 minutes of play with Cherokee turning the trick. He let fly with a great drive that landed in the Curry net. That finished the scoring. The lineup:

BEADLING WALLOPED

Beadling took a 6-3 beating from Mollenauer in the Panhandle League yesterday, while in the same circuit, Heidelberg toppled Coverdale, 2-0, and Bridgmont beat Fintex, 4-2.

Gallatin copped from Manown, 4-1, Hermine defeated Fitz Henry, 2-1, and Victory Hill whipped Elizabeth, 6-1, in the Mon-Yough League.

SAVOLDI TEAM 13-0 VICTOR

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 26—(INS.)—Largely through the efforts of the redoubtable Joe Savoldi, former Notre Dame star fullback, a team headed by that sterling performer defeated an aggregation of former St. Mary's players here by a score of 13 to 0 here yesterday in the Knights of Columbus charity football game.

Jumping Joe averaged eight yards every time he carried the ball in the first three quarters of the game, though his team was unable to score until the final period. Then Don Moses, former Southern California player, intercepted a pass and galloped 36 yards to a touchdown. Savoldi a short time later sliced through tackle for 22 yards and a touchdown.

Handicapped by lack of assistance Ernie Nevers, former Stanford star, who played with the former St. Mary's players, was the outstanding players for his team.

CUMBERLAND, Md., Jan. 26—The I. K. S. basketball team of Pittsburgh was defeated by the Cumberland K. of C. team by the score of 43 to 35 here yesterday. The Pittsburghers met with an automobile mishap en route to the game near Uniontown, but none of the players was injured.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF LAST SATURDAY: IN ROULETTE THE RED WON 27 TIMES IN SUCCESSION—In January, 1910, there was a run of 27 consecutive Reds at the Rouge et Noir table of the Casino at Monte Carlo. The odds against 27 consecutive returns of one color are as 68,801,864 to 1. When the twentieth consecutive showing of Red was recorded, the heaviest and most inveterate gamblers of Monte Carlo began to back Black, and, as they continued losing, they were more than ever convinced that the next return would be Black. At the end of the day, the Casino was 750,000 francs richer, as a result of this record consecutive run. THE RAINING TREE OF RHODESIA—During the driest months of the Rhodesian year—August, September and October—this tree exudes moisture in large drops from its top-most leaves and to the observer anywhere in the vicinity of the tree it gives the impression of a shower of rain falling. The natives of Rhodesia call the tree "Mukololo," and when they see it dripping they say "the Mukololo is weeping for rain." My drawing was made from an original photograph, which was taken during a blazing hot day when the tree was "weeping" copiously. Observations of the unique activities of this tree were made by G. Knowles Jordan at the time he was Assistant Native Commissioner, located at Majoy Tank, Northwestern Rhodesia.

GULDAHL WINS GOLF FINAL

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—With one year of professional golf behind him, Ralph Guldahl was homeward bound for Texas today with $2,793 as his earnings in competition with the country's leading players.

The 19-year-old Dallas youth headed for San Antonio and the open tournament there, where he stepped out of the amateur ranks 12 months ago and took up the gold trail of the fairways.

Yesterday Ralph matched his best shots against the seasoned pro from New York, Tony Manero, and won the final 36-hole match in the motion picture $3,200 tournament at the Riviera Country Club, 1 up. His first place prize was $1,000.

It was his first championship, although he made an auspicious start in the San Antonio open winning $875. He collected $200 at St. Louis, $55 at Portland, $163 at San Francisco, $50 at Pasadena, $75 at Santa Monica and $375 at Agua Caliente.

Londos Defends Mat Title Tonight

The bout has attracted an unusual amount of interest and is expected to establish an all-time attendance record for the Garden. The present record, incidentally, was established a few years ago when Londos successfully defended his crown in a bout with Kino Garabaldi, of Italy.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Once upon a time there was a baseball player by the name of Honus (or Hans) Wagner . . . He hailed from Carnegie and gained fame as a shortstop and slugger for the Pittsburgh Pirates . . . Some folks were kind enough to say he was a pretty good performer in his day . . . Now, more than a decade after he has passed out of the majors, we find his glory even greater than in his heyday . . . Only the other day, Babe Ruth, in an interview, picked him for his all-time team, and Connie Mack, in his memoirs of his 50 years in the sport, also picked Honus as his shortstop . . . Now comes Collier's with this tribute: . . . "John J. McGraw still stands pat on two points. One is that Hans Wagner is the greatest all-round ball player that ever lived. The other is that no pitcher ever equaled Christy Mathewson.

"I still hold for Hans Wagner as the greatest of them all," McGraw is quoted as saying. "He was as good a third baseman as I ever saw. He was the best shortstop I ever saw. He was one of the best outfielders in the game and one of the greatest hitters . . . Wagner was a great baseball player at 20 . . . He still was a great player at 43, except for a pair of legs that no longer would take him around the bases or carry his two big hands in reach of an infield smash."

Ranking Wagner, now a staid business man here, as the greatest all-round player of all time means placing him above Ty Cobb and Babe Ruth, which is something when you get to thinking about it.

McGraw figures the Chicago Cubs of 1906-10 were the greatest team of all time, if for no other reason than that, along with their ability, they combined more color and dash and fire than any other outfit of any era. Frank (Peerless Leader) Chance was the manager and first baseman, Johnny Evers played second, Joe Tinker, short, and Harry Steinfeldt, third base. Sheckard, Hofman, Slagle and Schulte were in the outfield and Johnny Kling and Jimmy Archer were the catchers, with Brown, Overall, Reulbach, Pfeister and Lundgren the star pitchers.

Local boxing fans who were privileged to see the towhead in action up to some eight or 10 years ago never will forget Eddie Wimler, the fighting coal miner, of Fair Haven . . . He was a small, squat fellow who simply loved to fight and ranked with the best "club fighters" the game has produced. He was succeeded in the ring by his younger brother, Chalky, who also speedily became a favorite with the fans . . . Now we are to have another Eddie Wimler, a nephew of the original one . . . He is Eddie, 17-year-old son of Billy Wimler, older brother of Eddie and Chalky, who managed these two in their fighting days.

Young Eddie has been working out in a gymnasium at the Wimler home with Chalky and is just about ready to cut loose . . . He may engage in a few amateur bouts before bobbing up as a professional, and, if he matches the fighting instinct and ability of his two uncles, he should prove one of the most popular mitt slingers in the district . . . Billy also will handle him . . . The youngster is a featherweight—HARRY KECK.

ENS TO RETURN FROM FLORIDA

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Manager Jewel Ens, of the Pirates, soon will return to Pittsburgh from Florida to prepare for the big jaunt of his batterymen to California. Jewel with his sharpshooters and receivers are due to leave the city three weeks from Thursday, but Ens probably will be here for a week or so in advance of the date of departure in order to consult with Owner Dreyfuss on various matters.

Bill McKechnie, pilot of the Braves, returned to his Wilkinsburg home Saturday night after a long hunting expedition into the wilds of North Carolina. Skipper Bill and his lifelong buddie, Wray Zelt, of Washington, were guests of George (Possum) Whitted, formerly of the Pirates, who also is a nimrod of note. Whitted led the Pittsburgh hunters to wild spots that held much game, although the huntsmen ran afoul of inclement weather.

NO HOLDOUTS EXPECTED

McKechnie will remain home for a few weeks before he starts on the jaunt to Florida. When he leaves he will be accompanied by Mrs. McKechnie and others of the family. The Braves will train at St. Petersburg, which resort has been their springtime home for many years. The Yankees also train at this spot.

Nothing of a serious nature concerning unsigned players has been reported in the Pirate family. It is believed, however, that several have not returned their contracts, but there is no indication that there will be any stubborn dissenters. The home owners do not classify an athlete as a holdout unless he refuses to show up in camp. There have been no pronounced holdouts in the Bucco camp since the refusal of the Westminster, Pitt and Bethany continue to dominate the tri-state district college basketball situation, and from all appearances, the Titans, Panthers and Bisons will continue to do so until the end of the campaign.

Dr. Carlson.

Right now, things are moving along sort of in low, the boys being principally engaged in battling with mid-semester examinations. The schedule for the week now with us isn't very hot, either, there being only one or two feature games listed.

Last week Pitt rose to the occasion twice to take a fall out of rivals, who were all set to do the same thing to the Panthers; Tech was all hopped up for the game Wednesday, and Notre Dame was on edge Saturday. It took an extra period to upset the Irish, but so dominating was Dr. Carlson's troupe in the overtime session that they walked off the floor decisive victors.

GENEVA IMPROVES

Geneva, after shambling about for two or three weeks, has apparently come to life. The Covenanters played three tough ones last week, and while losing two of 'em, gave the high and mighty and unbeaten Bethany outfit all the battle it wanted Friday, and then knocked off Carnegie Saturday.

Thiel, which has been tough for every team it has met this year, with the possible exception of Tech, lost out by a single point to the Titans. Westminster hearts were in Westminster mouths nine-tenths of the time Saturday evening.

Waynesburg, by beating Geneva early in the week, clambered above the .500 mark, and must be accorded serious consideration from now on in. The Dukes remained idle and are still unbeaten.

Tonight the Covenanters gird their loins and return to battle, Westminster will appear on the New Brighton High School floor, clashing with the Covenanters in a conference game. The affair tops the program in the section for the entire week.

Bravo, Purple!

A year ago, Purdue University won both the gridiron and basketball championships of the Big Ten, thereby setting a style that apparently is being followed by Northwestern.

The Purple crashed through all conference opposition in football last fall and now the Evanston basketballers are out in front in the court race. Northwestern's entry has won all four of its games to date. Indiana is trailing along in second place with three games won and one lost and Minnesota and Chicago are next in line with two wins out of three starts.

Pros Are Out

Potsy Clark, who dabbled a bit with pro football at one time, didn't get the head football coaching job at Indiana when it came to a showdown. The Big Ten frowns on the pro game and on coaches who have ever been connected with the racket, and for that reason, probably, Potsy was turned down at the last moment.

Clark played, starred and later coached at Butler University.

You know, or don't you, that Lenny Sachs, basketball coach at Loyola University in Chicago and football coach of Loyola Academy, was all set to coach at Purdue? But because he had played pro ball (with Arnold Horween, of Harvard, by the way) the Boilermakers passed him up.

Little Fellers

There isn't a section in the country that can boast of so many small good college basketball players as this particular range.

Carnegie Tech boasts a midget in Jimmy Leonard. The Dukes have Brud Stephens and Pitt has Willie Arture and the two Kowallis kids, Willie and Steve.

At Grove City, they have to lift

Buffalo and Cleveland, the only two clubs in the International League to escape defeat at the hands of the Yellow Jackets this season, will provide the opposition for the Schooley skaters in two games here this week.

ADD TO WIN STRING

The Jackets will not be called upon to do any touring this week, and they will have plenty of opportunity to prepare for the most attractive opposition that the circuit has to offer. In coming from behind to nose out Windsor, 2 to 1, here Saturday night the local puckmen extended their season's longest success string to five games, and they expect to mow down the leaders and the champs and continue their rapid advance toward the crest.

The Jackets held the Bisons to a 1-1 tie on the latters' home ice the last time they clashed, and Cleveland was held to a 2-2 tie the last time the Indians appeared here. A triumph over Cleveland is most desired, because the Indians and locals are practically deadlocked for fourth place, the last play-off berth.

RECORD CROWD

Third and second places now are within easy reach of the Pittsburgh skaters, but during the workout today Coach Charles Reid instructed his men to pay no attention to the standings. He wants his stalwarts to worry about winning games, and not about their position in the race.

The crowd which witnessed the Jackets' win over Windsor Saturday was the biggest of the season here but the advance ticket sale for the Buffalo and Cleveland games is so heavy that the attendance record is not likely to survive the week.

Duke McCurry and Gordy Fraser played the hero roles in the battle with Windsor. Duke wiped out a one-goal bulldog lead in the second period by converting a pass from Eddie Ouellette into a tally, and Fraser climaxed a solo rush with the victory marker near the close of the same stanza.

SYRACUSE VICTOR

DETROIT, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Detroit's Olympics are just a couple of tumbles out of the International League cellar and on their performance at Olympia last night they deserve a clear title to the basement.

Frank Foyston brought a small band of Syracuse stars here and after accepting a floral piece from well wishers, saw his team take an early lead; lose it and then go out and win in overtime, 2 to 1, in a game that was poor to watch until the Olympics tied the count midway in the third period. The lineup:

Hughes	D	Heffinger

MAROONS HALT HAWKS

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Montreal's Maroons halted the six-game winning streak of the Chicago Blackhawks at the Chicago Stadium last night by blasting out a hard-earned 3-to-2 victory in an overtime battle.

OIMEN TAKES ANOTHER TITLE

FRANK LOUGH WEDS

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Jan. 26.—(AP.)—The marriage of Frank Lough, 26, of Morgantown, tackle on the West Virginia University football team last season, and Geraldine Jarrett, 21, of Charleston, was revealed here last night. The ceremony was performed at Fairmont late Saturday.

Building Up Big Fights

By IKE DORGAN, The Man Behind Tex Rickard's Fistic Ballyhoos.

CHAPTER XIII.

When Tex Rickard counted up after the Goldfield fight and found himself a nice winner, the natural supposition was that he would continue in that particular field. As a matter of fact, Tex didn't bob up again until three years later. Whatever glory he got out of putting on that Goldfield winner he kept intact until boxing, as an institution, sat up with a start when it was said that Jim Jeffries was going to come back to defend his title.

Tommy Burns.

Jim had been out of the ring after his retirement for nearly six years and his only excuse for coming back was that the mediocre lot of heavies he had left in his wake had allowed the championship to pass into the hands of Jack Johnson, the Negro. When Jeffries retired, he doled out his title.

He went to Reno, Nev., to referee a bout between Marvin Hart and Jack Root, both of whom, with Jack O'Brien, of Philadelphia, claimed Jeff's title. It was hanging in mid-air and somebody had to establish a claim to it.

Johnson, who had heckled Jeffries a lot while the boilermaker was king of the walk watched all of this with glittering eyes. Johnson knew and the public felt that he could whip any of the contenders.

JEFF GIVES AWAY TITLE

Jeffries made a generous gesture. He accepted the post of referee in the Hart and Root bout and said he would pass his title over to the winner. It wasn't according to Hoyle, but Jeff insisted that he was through and that the winner of the bout would be champion.

Hart knocked out Root in 12 rounds and that seemed to settle it, for Jeffries, raising Hart's hand, said:

"You are the champion."

Jefferies must have been laughing inwardly over his own little joke. Hart realized he would be the new titleholder only as long as Jeff remained idle.

Nobody really believed that Jeffries would quit the ring for good. No heavyweight champion ever had remained out of the ring after stepping down as champion. Except for some of the old birds of long ago, Gene Tunney is the only one and there still is plenty of time for Gene to change his mind. It is a lure that none of them can escape. The "Roar of the Crowd" Jim Corbett calls it, and he says a fighter never gets over the longing for just one more blast at it.

BURNS WHIPS HART

Hart took his "title" out of the sage brush state and began to look up contenders and challengers. He bit off a live one the first crack out of the box. He was foolish enough to imagine that he could whip Tommy Burns, Noah Brusso, of Canadian hockey and lacrosse fame.

Burns, a squat, husky little fellow, had been making a name for himself in rings all over the country. He fought like he played lacrosse, in a rushing, smashing style that was attractive in those days.

Jeff had retired in 1905. Hart was given the "title" the same year, and, in the next, he met Burns and lost in 20 rounds. That fight was an indirect turning point in Tex Rickard's life, although he probably hadn't even taken the trouble to read an account at the fray.

Tex wasn't bothering about boxers at that time and had no inkling of what an important part they were to play in his life.

A STRING OF VICTORIES

Burns made a lot of fuss about his "title." He took himself quite seriously, and, when all is said and done, he was the first and only real "world champion." As the new titleholder, he fought in every country in which boxing was established and defeated its champion. Burns again met O'Brien in Los Angeles and won a 20-round decision. Then he whipped Bill Squires in one round. Bosher Bill had been sent to America from Australia in the hope that he would meet with the same success that had been enjoyed by Bob Fitzsimmons and Peter Jackson.

The dazzling victory over the hard-hitting Squires started Burns on his world tour. He knocked out Gunner Moir and Jack Taylor in London, Jem Roche in Ireland and Jewey Smith and Bill Squires again in Paris. Bill had trailed Burns to France, not satisfied with the result of the one-round catastrophe at Colma, Cal.

It took Burns eight rounds this time. Still Squires wasn't satisfied and they fought again. In all three fights he had clipped Burns on the chin with a right and had him groggy. He still thought there was a chance to score the real thing.

JOHNSON CHAMPION

Burns went off to Australia in 1908 and once more Squires dogged his trail. For the fourth time, Squires tried his hand at defeating Burns and failed at Sydney, N. S. W., in the thirteenth round. Bill Lang was Tommy's next knockout victim, being downed in six rounds at Melbourne. Then came the battle that changed the fighting map entirely. Burns, not wishing to be placed in the position of running away from challengers, was dumbfounded when he learned that Jack Johnson had followed him to Australia to fight him for the title.

Johnson pretended to be all in, down and out and only a shadow of himself. He toted a cane and he ambled along, painfully it seemed, wearing smoked glasses and doing everything in his power to make Burns believe he would have a cinch.

They met on December 26, 1908, at Sydney, Burns getting a guarantee of $30,000 and Johnson $5,000 for his end. The police stopped the bout to save Burns in the fourteenth round. The tale of that battle roared around the world. Jack London, reporting the fight, coined the expression about Johnson's "golden smile" because of the fact that Johnson sported a full row of gold caps in his upper jaw.

JEFF BEGGED TO RETURN

Johnson's victory settled Jim Jeffries' hash so far as his permanent retirement was concerned. Jim got no peace, night or day, now. There was a general hue and cry for his return to the ring.

Promoters began to swarm in and out of Los Angeles to make terms with Jeffries for a bout with Johnson. Jeff found himself in a mad whirlpool.

Jeffries stubbornly refused to be budged. He was fat and out of condition. Never having any great love for the game, he was content to remain idle. He had plenty of money and his saloon in Los Angeles was doing land office business, especially now that all eyes were centered on him, wondering what he was going to do about it.

Popular local Negro bantamweight boxer, who meets his first opponent of more than local reputation tomorrow night, when he boxes Ollie Barlett, Oklahoma "club-fighter," in the eight-round semi-final to the Johnny Datto-Harry Fierro battle in Motor Square Garden.

DATTO, FIERRO MARK TIME FOR BOUT

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Two out-of-town boxers, Johnny Datto, of Cleveland, and Harry Fierro, of Chicago, are in town today, marking time for their main bout battle in the Motor Square Garden ring tomorrow night. They arrived yesterday and put the finishing touches on their training with workouts in the Garden gym.

Datto is the hard-hitting Filipino featherweight who on New Year's night dropped Jackie Rodgers four times in the second round but could not finish him in winning their 10-round bout in the same ring. Fierro is one of the nation's leading bantamweights, who has to box featherweights because of a lack of competition in his own class.

All of the other boxers on the card, the first in two weeks at the Garden, are reported in good trim for the show. Ollie Bartlett, of Oklahoma, meets Jimmy Thomas, Negro bantamweight, of the Hill, in the eight-round semi-final; Jimmy Belmont, of Braddock, and Jimmy McGraw, of Wheeling, are in the second bout, and Louie Severo, of Meadville, Pa., meets Harry Fine, of the Hill, in the opener.

Between Rounds

Promoter Jim McGirr today closed for Mussie Schoes, of the North side, to box Al Rose, Youngstown lightweight, in the eight-round semi-final to the Frank Sinona-Herb Rochefort bout at McKeesport, Thursday night.

Floyd Fitzsimmons, veteran promoter, is bidding for a Mickey Walker-Jack Sharkey battle for Detroit. This would be a popular match, with Sharkey out in the cold so far as a title battle with Max Schmeling is concerned, and Walker, the middleweight champion, bowling over one heavyweight foe after another.

Nick Testo was the victim of a peculiar knockout in his bout with Vittorio Lavan, of Italy, in Madison Square Garden, New York, the other night. He was knocked out Lavan as the third round ended and was carried to his corner. He was unable to come up for the fourth round and as the New York commission does not recognize fouls, there was nothing for Referee Patsy Hale to do but to go over to his corner and count him out.

DOG DERBY WON BY HANNA

HUNTSVILLE, Utah, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—The Great Heart of Cap. Dean Hanna's lead dog, aided by the 19-year-old driver's encouragement, brought his string of bird dogs and setters through almost the entire field yesterday to win the second annual Wasatch Dog Derby.

Tenth to leave the starting line on yesterday's race of 27.6 miles, the Ashton, Idaho, boy passed every other team but one and triumphed in a close finish with Roy Stover, of Sacramento. Stover, whose seven black setters took first place Saturday, was first to cross the line yesterday, but the 45-second lead he held at the start of the last eight-mile lap was overcome by Hanna with seconds to spare.

Only Entrant Wins Olympic Trials In Philly

SKYTOP, Pa., Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Willard A. Holland, Jr., of the Arena Skating Club, Philadelphia, was the only skater to appear yesterday for the Olympic trials, in the tryouts of the Pennsylvania State Association.

Holland qualified in the 500-meter event for the national trials to be held at Lake Placid, February 14 and 15. Skating against time, he made the distance in 45 3-5 seconds, two-fifths of a second under the required mark. He failed to qualify in the 1,500-meter event, making it in three minutes, three seconds, 28 seconds too slow.

The state tryouts were to have been held Saturday, but they were postponed when no skaters appeared.

NATIONAL FIELD TRIALS END

GRAND JUNCTION, Tenn., Jan. 26.—(AP.)—The National field championship, most coveted title among tournament bird hunters, will be between Mary Blue and Yankee Doodle Jack unless another pointer, Shore's Carolina Jack, excels or equals them in his heat today.

The judges decided Mary Blue, 1929 winner, owned by W. C. Teagle, Standard Oil of New Jersey president, and Yankee Doodle Jack, owned by Jewell Hicks, of Oklahoma City, Okla., will run the final heat this afternoon, barring a sudden spurt by Shore's Carolina Jack in the morning.

LAYTON BEATS THURNBLAD IN THRILLER

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Otto Reiselt, fiery tempered artist from Philadelphia, held undisputed possession of first place today in the hard tussle for the world three-cushion billiard championship, with the only perfect record in the week-old tournament.

The Philadelphian, who lost the title in 1928, loafed into exclusive possession of the leadership yesterday on the strength of four victories as two Chicagoans, Allen Hall and Arthur Thurnblad, received their first setbacks.

Thurnblad lost his first game in five starts, 50 to 49, to the defending champion, Johnny Layton, of Sedalia, Mo., in a memorable battle, while Hall suffered his first defeat in four matches, 50 to 47, at the hands of the veteran Tiff Denton, of Kansas City. Layton's victory sent him into a tie for second place with Thurnblad with a record of four victories and one defeat, while Hall dropped to fourth.

The Layton-Thurnbad match was one of the most exciting in the tournament history. Layton opened up with a run of eight and led by a comfortable margin of 29 to 14 in the twenty-second inning. Thurnblad then staged a sensational comeback. Stopping Layton with a great safety game, he kept clicking off points until he gained the lead, 38 to 37, in the thirty-fourth inning.

In a match for cellar honors, Hess Jacobs, of St. Louis, defeated Charles Jordan, of Los Angeles, 50 to 49, in 70 innings.

AURORA, Ill., Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Everett Scott, former Iron Man shortstop for the Boston Red Sox and New York Yankees, also throws a mean bowling ball.

Scott shot scores of 211, 238 and 232 yesterday to lead the Farnan Five, of Fort Wayne, Ind., into first place in the five-man event of the sixteenth annual interstate bowling tournament. The Farnans scored a team total of 3,267, a new record for the tournament.

Gentlemen:-

Spit is one of the words which we have learned to avoid in polite parlance. But in our distaste for the use of an unpleasant word, there is a likelihood of minimizing the dangers of contamination which this word connotes.

I am, therefore, gratified to see you openly using the word spit in your advertising of cigars.

The ever-present possibility of infection from heedless spitting habits is most vital in any consideration of health maintenance. You may, of course, publish this letter if it will help.

Yours very truly,

YOU MAY WELL ASK THIS QUESTION WHEN 56 IMPORTANT HEALTH OFFICIALS HAVE WRITTEN SO STRONGLY AGAINST THE EVILS OF SPIT OR SPIT-TIPPING.

Dr. Dumas writes: "The ever-present possibility of infection from heedless spitting habits is most vital in any consideration of health maintenance."

The war against spit is a crusade of decency. Join it... Smoke Certified Cremo—a really wonderful smoke—mild—mellow—nut-sweet! Every leaf entering the clean, sunny Cremo factories is scientifically treated by methods recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture.

STOCK MARKET STARTS WEEK IN NEUTRAL

Shares Back Up a Little With Most Activity of Professional Nature

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—The financial markets began the new week in Wall street in neutral, awaiting traffic signals.

Shares backed up a little at times today, but activity represented little save professional activity in a few volatile issues. With United States Steel's earnings report due tomorrow, and current improvement in business characterized in banking quarters as still inconclusive, investors and speculators alike were inclined to bide their time.

In the share market, pivotal industrials eased at times, but there were no signs of real liquidation.

While the forthcoming final quarter earnings statements of the large steel companies will largely represent water over the dam, they are not regarded lightly in the financial district, for indications are that steel production during January will average close to that of November, and substantial improvement during February and March will be necessary to make any distinctly favorable showing for the first quarter. Nevertheless the fact that prices are a little higher will enhance the result.

A break in corn futures to new low levels for the season may have been an adverse influence on the share market. Farm implement shares, however, were conspicuously strong, along with J. I. Case.

While Cosden's strength appeared to be largely the result of an over-extended short interest, the weekly advices of one of the prominent statistical organizations spoke favorably of the leading farm implements as long term investments, while pointing out that improved earnings might be some time in appearing.

Credit rates in the market were unchanged, with call money freely offered outside at 1 per cent. Considerable interest was shown, however, in a sharp rise in bankers acceptances in London, carrying them well above 2 per cent, against 1½ bid for short term dollar acceptances here. This should strengthen sterling exchange.

California Crude Production Drops

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 26.—California's daily average crude oil production of 530,000 barrels for the week ended January 24 represents the lowest level since the intensive development of light oil fields in Los Angeles basin was instituted seven or eight years ago and is within 30,000 barrels of the 500,000-barrels objective toward which operators are striving.

Curtiss-Wright Corp. Reports 1930 Sales

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—Total sales of more than $18,000,000 in airplanes and motors during 1930 were revealed in the annual report of the Curtiss-Wright Corporation. An increase in passengers carried of 156 per cent from 86,589 in 1929 to 221,433 in 1930 was reported.

Chicago Utility to Spend $63,000,000

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—Middle West Utilities System's budget for 1931 construction is approximately $63,000,000, of which it is estimated $6,000,000 will be carried over into 1932 for completion. Construction expenditures in 1930 approximated $77,000,000.

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—Carried down by stop-loss selling, corn tumbled today to fresh low price records for all deliveries. Rye also broke the season's bottom record and reached the lowest level in many years. Wheat was relatively firm, influenced by a decrease of stocks at Liverpool. Opening ¾c off to ¼c up, corn later receded all around. Wheat started at ⅛c decline to ⅜c advance and subsequently scored gains.

At noon corn was the same as Saturday's finish to ⅛ cent lower and wheat passed from ¼ decline to ⅞ advance.

WARD LOWERS PRICES

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—President George B. Everitt of Montgomery Ward & Co. said that the company's 1931 spring and summer catalogue, now being mailed, has price reductions of 20 to 40 per cent compared with a year ago.

"The catalogue is unique in that it reflects current low prices more accurately than any previous mail order catalogue I can recall. Recognizing the importance of the movement in prices, we deliberately delayed the production of the catalogue to allow our buyers to take the fullest advantage of the downward trend in wholesale prices."

Suggests Firmer Rediscount Policy

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—A "firmer policy" which would maintain the Federal Reserve rediscount rate higher than the market rate on commercial paper, and higher rates on bond borrowing than on commercial borrowing were suggested today by Albert H. Wiggin, chairman of the board of the Chase National Bank of New York, as possible steps to prevent stock speculating booms.

Testifying before the Senate Banking Committee, Wiggin blamed the 1929 Wall street collapse on the "debauch of speculation that reached a climax and stopped."

The Duquesne Lafayettes will try to win the second half championship of the County League and thereby earn the right to meet Fintex in the post-season playoffs, make their first appearance of the year in Jeannette tonight to oppose the Felders in the only league game on the schedule.

The Lafayettes, who have entered as County League champions since its organization five years ago, have not given up hope of taking this year's championship, despite the fact they were dethroned by Fintex in the first round. The Lafayettes must win the second round and defeat Fintex in the playoffs to keep their winning streak intact.

The Jeannette Felders although playing ragged basketball since they were admitted to the league are confident they will check the advance of the Minnicknen tonight. The Felders have a big following of supporters and a large crowd is expected to see them in action against the champions.

The Pittsburghers are the attraction of DeSales Lyceum in the Greater Pittsburgh League with North Boroughs appears at Trinity Cathedral in a Washer Institutional League contest. Faith Chapel plays at First Presbyterian in the Senior Church League.

Tomorrow night's County League games have stirred up considerable interest among the league's supporters. The Micsiotte of the favorites to win the title go after their third straight victory against the Lafayettes in Duquesne while Fintex entertains the Felders at Columbus Temple. Besides the two league games scheduled tonight and tomorrow the Felders have an independent game on their books for Thursday, the Westmoreland Countians opposing the Y. M. H. A. on the latter's floor.

The actual batting leader of the East circuit, Dolpack, was purchased by the Tigers. The recruit played in some games for Detroit at the end of the season, his work being of a pleasing nature.

Dolpack batted .350 in 136 games, a record of which any player might be proud. The youngster appeared in 40 games for Detroit.

April was purchased by the Newark club of the International League after Jack Onslow had watched the catcher in action. He also saw some last season at the tailend of the season and like Dolpack, his performances were impressive.

Jo Clackburg of Ft. Lee was clear to the Pacific coast for the Cubs. Clackburg is a lanky southpaw who might be a success if he can be induced to behave.

Earl (Greasy) Neale was the playing manager of the Clarksburg club. Earl played in 94 games and hit for .335.

ASK REPEAL OF 'RECAPTURE'

WASHINGTON Jan. 26 (INS) — With the legislative hopper jammed there appeared little prospect today that the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee would be able to take any action on the recommendations of the Interstate Commerce Commission for repeal of the law dealing with the recapture of excess earnings of the railroads.

Through Commissioner Joseph B. Eastman the commission has submitted to the committee its views on the matter and supplemented its original declaration with suggestions for drastic modification of the statutes providing for the fixing of railroad freight rates based upon a fair return upon the valuation of the carriers properties.

The commission believes that the wise course to pursue is to repeal the recapture provisions in their entirety rather than to attempt to improve them by amendment.

The commission pointed out the tremendous expense and the amount of time and effort for both the government and the railroads involved in the process of recapture.

Harry Spencer, of Washington, Pa., who has been out of the ring for some time is ready to resume action. He has been playing professional football around Marion, O., and now weighs 168 1/2 pounds.

Boxe, who recently defeated Benny McArthur at McKeesport, has a good record. He has boxed Spug Myers, Tug Phillips, Vincent Bambright, Tom Maloe, Hass, Kid Brown, Angie Pisano, Jackie Purvis, Hershe Wilson and Jack Medill, among others and ought to give the hard hitting Kelly a real tussle.

INDIANA NAMES NEW COACH

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Jan. 26 (AP) — Indiana University has given a new football coach and apparently will dispute the claim of H. O. Pat Page that he has a contract calling for another year's service for filling that position.

The faculty athletic committee held a meeting session Saturday night for the announced purpose of acting on Page's resignation tendered January 14. At the conclusion of the meeting it was stated that E. C. Hayes, track and freshman football coach at the university since 1924 had been selected as Page's successor and that a resolution had been adopted releasing that Page's contract expires April 1, 1931.

Page said yesterday he had received no word from the committee. Z. G. Clevenger, director of athletics, said any information concerning the committee's action on Page's contract claim would be given out by Dr. W. J. Moenkhaus, the committee chairman. Dr. Moenkhaus returned inquiries back to Clevenger.

Page has said that he resignation was requested by President William Lowe Bryan and the faculty board and that he entered it with the expectation that the matter as it would fulfill the terms of a contract which he says calls for payment of his salary through out the present year.

Clevenger said Hayes would have charge of the football practice beginning the spring. Hayes is a graduate of Albion College, Albion, Mich. After leaving Albion he went to Mississippi A. & M., where he coached all branches of athletics.

YOUNG, AUTO PILOT, KILLED

The crash occurred on the twenty-ninth lap of the 100-lap feature race, when a machine driven by Leslie Shindler, Los Angeles, skidded into a spin on a curve.

Shorty Carlton, Detroit, won the 100-lap main event after building up a lead of one lap on Maury Rose, who finished second. Earl Howenden finished third and Stubby Stubblefield fourth.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XLIII

Nothing among women, girls, is so contagious as tears. In another instant Kitty's eyes, too, welled up and flooded. Jim Tracy, though seizing an opportunity, embraced her.

DAILY TRUE STORY — Aunt Patty's Pies

"No two ways about it, Roxy Ann, you make the best pies this side the pearly gates!"

Roxy Ann Wiggin's naturally rosy cheeks glowed a deeper red and there was a warm sparkle in her brown eyes.

Her cooking had been praised before, which mildly pleased her, as it should. But it had never before been praised by young Jim Tarr.

This was natural, since it was the first time Jim had eaten any of Roxy Ann's pies, although he had known her slightly for some months.

"Glad you like them, Jim," Roxy Ann said, honestly.

"Like them? Look here. From now on I'll make the crew jump into it just to get our hundred quintal of cod in up time and get back here for more of your pies."

"Don't work the boys to death, Jim," she advised. She had liked Jim Tarr the first time she saw him. He had come down from Green Cove to sail as mate with old Cap'n Bigelow on his fishing schooner.

When Jim Tarr first met Roxy Ann she was living with an aged aunt. When he came back from his last trip out for cod, the aunt had died, and Roxy Ann, thrown on her own resources, had opened a modest little restaurant in the front room of the tiny cottage her aunt had left her, down close to the wharf.

The Double Star, Cap'n Bigelow's schooner, would only be in for two days. By that time the cod, packed and iced, would be express bound for the big cities and the Double Star would be headed out to the fishing grounds again.

"What doesn't seem possible, Jim?"

"What miracles? Whatever are you trying to say, Jim Tarr?"

Find Ambergris

Roxy Ann's heart was beating joyously.

But the courtship got no further. On their next trip out one of those rare bits of luck happened. Jim sighted something and had a valuable hunch. He went out for it in a small boat, it was ambergris, an amazingly large piece.

They already had about 90 quintal of cod aboard and so instead of putting back to Montauk, they made for Boston, where they could best dispose of the ambergris as well as the fish.

Jim Tarr's share from the sale of the ambergris rather staggered him. The first thing he did was to go to a jeweler and have a locket made, a gold locket deftly made to look like a pie! Where the diagonal slits in the crust were in Roxy Ann's pies, for ventilation, Jim had little sapphires set. He hoped that Roxy Ann would not only like the locket, but that she would keep Jim's little photograph inside, just as he put it there.

Jim was frightened when he got near the little cottage. It was closed, and the windows shuttered. He made hasty inquiries.

Roxy Ann had gone!

Mrs. Bigelow, the captain's wife, told Jim that all she knew was that Roxy Ann closed up the place suddenly and said that she was going to her married sister in New Haven.

Finally he met Mrs. Baldwin, who had some rather disconcerting information, not suspecting that Jim was at all interested in Roxy Ann.

"I was up to Shepley," she said, Shepley being the nearest railroad station, some four miles back from the coast, "and Ben told me about Roxy Ann."

Jim Prospers

"Ben said that when Roxy's train got in a nice lookin' man hopped off and shook hands and kissed her and he helped her on the train. Ben never seen him before, but it seems like Roxy Ann had seen him before; she wasn't the kind to be lettin' strange men kiss her. No doubt she had her a nice feller all the time and he come to get her."

"Well," Jim said, pretending to have little interest in all of this, "whoever he was, he got the best pie-maker in seven hemispheres."

"Git out, Jim Tarr, there ain't but two hemispheres," Mrs. Baldwin said.

So far as Jim Tarr was concerned, there were no hemispheres, no world at all. Roxy Ann took all his world away. He wasn't angry at Roxy Ann, he couldn't blame her, but he was sorry for himself. He tore his picture out of that pie locket and put in the little snapshot he had of Roxy Ann. He would always keep the locket and remember her.

Now there was nothing to hold him. Besides, steam was taking the place of wind in the fishing fleet, and Jim found a chance to take a hand in a trawler and sail as first mate, putting in at Boston and fishing the bank.

Year after year Jim Tarr went out with his trawling. He bought the whole of this trawler and he prospered. He had more trawlers out. Some he owned entire and some he owned a share in. He was prospering mightily.

Jim Tarr wasn't the sort to "die of love." Far from it. But every time he ate pie anywhere, he would muse a little and mutter things about missing Roxy Ann's pies. By this time he would figure. Roxy Ann was happy in her home, cooking those delectable pies for a mighty fine husband and a lot of children, no doubt. Roxy Ann had appealed to Jim as the matronly sort of girl to be born to cook pies and raise children.

Fifteen years is a long time—in a life. Here Jim was, turned 40, and with more money than he used to think any honest man had a right to have. He had been 25 when he first met Roxy Ann. She was then around 20.

Now and then Jim, rummaging in his chest, for he lived aboard one of his trawlers, would come across the locket. He would finger it and smile. He had all the luck making money, but he wasn't so lucky in love. All right, a man can't have everything.

Jim had to make another trip to New York, a conference about his incorporated company. It had grown too big for one man to handle all the details.

As usual in the nearest restaurant, he finished off with pie. No pies were as good as Roxy Ann's had been, still all pies were good.

"I want to see the woman who cooks them pies," he said.

The waitress brought back to him a paper pie plate. On the bottom of it was printed:

AUNT PATTY'S PIES.

There was no address.

"Give me that," he said, folding the paper pie plate and putting it in his pocket. He tipped the girl a dollar and went out. He hunted up this Aunt Patty Pie concern. It was an immense white building over across the river. Jim Tarr wanted to make some arrangement about stocking his trawlers with those pies.

He told his errand and was steered to the executive offices. In a large room with carpets and mahogany furniture he was trying to tell a pale-faced youth what he wanted when a woman entered and stared at him. Jim stared at her.

Accepts Proposal

"Roxy Ann!" he cried.

"Why, Jim Tarr!"

They were, taking hands. She led him into a small office.

Jim explained about the pies, and they reminded him of her pie.

"You went off and got married and I nearly starved for pie."

"Why, Jim Tarr, I never did. My sister was dying and her husband came to get me. She died and I started making pies and they went big in New Haven and we finally made a company. My name didn't sound right for advertising, so they called 'em Aunt Patty's Pies. But goodness, I haven't made a pie for five years."

"Not even for your husband?"

"I have no husband, Jim Tarr. You never wrote me. I went back, but you'd run away."

"Will you cook me some pies, Roxy Ann, well so right out now and be married and you'll cook me some pies for dinner tonight. Say you will, Roxy Ann!"

"I will, Jim."

Pattern 2092

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

By ANNE ADAMS.

A delightful afternoon frock especially suited to the woman who is no longer slim, has a long front panel extending from the graceful jabot to the bottom of the skirt, adding height and lessening the width of the figure. The jabot covers the bust very cleverly. Tiny shoulder tucks give additional freedom of the front bodice.

Pattern 2092 is serviceable and chic fashioned of canton crepe, satin or one of the sheer fabrics such as georgette crepe, Elizabeth voile, etc. Fashionable colors are blue, green, rust, rose and the pastels.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each pattern. Write plainly your name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE WANTED.

WOUNDED STAG AT BAY

"Trade at Home" is a great slogan for some merchants in Illmo. "We are being ruined by people getting in their cars and going to Girardeau to spend their money." But where do those bellyachers get their printing done? Do they get it done at home or do they get it done at Girardeau? "Oh hell," they will say, "this is different." Yet it is different as far as they are concerned. They buy where they damn please. In short, it is a clear case of whose ox is gored.

WEEPING IN THE SHOWER

In this, my heart-break hour,
Because, again, I see I've worn
My strap-watch in the shower.

Sometimes I find myself all wet,
I droop in limp despairs,
Because I've absent-mindedly
Bathed in my underwear.

And just a week ago tonight
I slipped upon the mat
And then discovered I had drenched
My brand new opera hat.

Oh, why am I denied by fate
The simple, normal power
That others have to concentrate
Before they take a shower?

WHY PITTSBURGH IS GREAT
It Is the World's Center of Manufacturing

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph

MONDAY, JANUARY 26, 1931

BE A PITTSBURGH BOOSTER
To Your Friends in Other Cities

Creating New Industries

Research at Mellon Institute Leads Many to Profitable Manufacturing Activities.

A survey of industrial research in the Pittsburgh district has not been completed, but a considerable amount of chronological information has been collected to make the beginning of such a study possible.

[illegible] committee has been engaged in this work and will have ready for publication in the near future a report that should be of great interest to students of industrial research and to manufacturers. The survey is being made by [illegible] Institute of Industrial Research, and will include a study of the research methods and new products of a number of industrial concerns in the district.

The importance of research as a factor in industrial progress is borne out by an article in the Mellon Institute Industrial Fellowship Bulletin by Director of the Mellon Institute, Raymond F. Bacon, Chemical and Metallurgical Engineer, and Miss Harriet W. Hanks, Research Associate, on new industries that have grown out of research.

Among the new industries described are those making plastic materials, disinfectants, insecticides, fungicides, rodenticides and innumerable other new products. Of a new kind of synthetic stone, one plant reflected at the institute 200 miles a day are now being produced.

Not the least of the British reports on research as an important contribution to the solution of the unemployment problem.

Drought Damage Here

Even Pittsburgh suffered from the drought.

In the report of L. W. Mortensen, chairman of the Department of Planning, to Mayor Charles H. Kline, reviewing the department's activities in 1930, there is a reminder of the unfavorable vegetation here by last year's dry spell.

Mr. Mortensen reports the extreme aridity was disastrous to the shade tree and hillside improvement program.

Yet surprisingly good work was done notwithstanding the difficulties. [illegible] seedlings in the city nursery progressed to the point at which it will be possible to use them for street and hillside planting. This will do away with the necessity of buying tree stock from contractors, a practice that has been found unsatisfactory and expensive.

Tree planting, while a minor activity of the department, is of considerable importance in making Pittsburgh a more attractive city.

Traffic Safety Display

The Sign "Beware of Unseen Dangers" at South End of Liberty Tubes Will Be Helpful.

While it is impossible to estimate the number of lives that may be saved through the erection of an admonitory sign for motorists, there is no doubt that safety displays have beneficial effect.

Seeing that warning every time they pass through the tunnels is found to make an impression on at least some of the motorists. It will serve to remind them of the peril in attempting to pass another car on a hill or a curve which prevents one from seeing the approach of cars from the other direction.

An Outstanding Need

For a century and a quarter the United States Military Academy at West Point has discharged with distinction the high mission that it inherited from George Washington.

To properly water supply and provide additional facilities for training, West Point requires an additional 15,000 acres of land. The Academy is now dependent upon a water supply threatened with contamination, grossly inadequate and privately owned.

It is impossible to give the cadets proper basic training in aeronautics because there is no landing field for airplanes [illegible] for one within the present reservation.

[illegible] to train the cadets properly in marksmanship, the [illegible] facilities are now entirely unsuitable [illegible] rifle range has been condemned as a "pitiable makeshift."

It is impossible to give the cadets proper field training because there is no room in the present reservation for adequate camp sites and maneuver grounds.

"To be effective the modern soldier must know how to march, to scout and to live." Proper basic training to this end West Point will not be able to give until it acquires the 15,000 acres of additional land which Chairman Reed's Committee on Military Affairs recommends that Congress purchase now.

Speaking for the committee, Chairman Reed says in this report:

"The area in the vicinity of the military reservation at West Point is rapidly being developed, and in a short time will become so thickly settled that any extension of the military academy reservation will be prohibited.

"The investment in the United States Military Academy is far too valuable, both in money and the benefits derived therefrom, to allow it to be so jeopardized."

It ought not to take long for the House of Congress to adopt the recommendation of that committee.

Simple As Mother Goose -:- By Nelson Harding

The more we read the more we think
The Wickersham Report belongs
Among those rhymes of childhood times,
Old Mother Goose's simple songs.

They entertain and they amuse,
They're songs that anyone can sing
Without much strain upon the brain

Cause for Exasperation

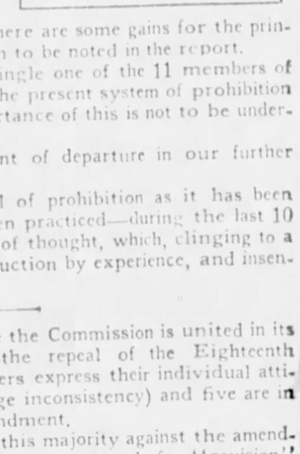
Hope for Enlightenment from Wickersham Committee Answered by Confused and Engulfing Verbosity.

By BAINBRIDGE COLBY,
Secretary of State in President Wilson's Cabinet.

Exasperation is the only word to describe the temper of the country on reading the report of the Wickersham Commission. Did we say "reading" the report?

No one could struggle through its 80,000 words without verbal asphyxiation. The mere suggestion stirs our sympathy for the old lady who read the dictionary from cover to cover, only to find that "she had not caught the thread of the story."

What a pity that we could not have had a sane, coherent and explicit report—a manly and courageous pronouncement upon an experiment in legislation which the nation regards as a disappointment and a failure! That it is a failure, even the members of the Commission, who disagree on so many points, are in accord with the popular verdict, long since reached.



BAINBRIDGE COLBY

The appalling growth of crime, its organization on a frank basis of business efficiency, the growing disrespect for all laws, and generally, the sad moral havoc which the people have suffered as the result of constitutional prohibition, are known to all men. No elaborate "fact finding" was needed to confirm the obvious, to reveal what everyone sees and to establish the undisputed.

It was for rescue from these conditions that the country looked to the Wickersham Commission. It hoped for the bread of an enlightened solution, but it receives only the stone of a confused and engulfing verbosity. However, there are some gains for the principle of rationality in legislation to be noted in the report.

In the first place, not a single one of the 11 members of the Commission believes that the present system of prohibition has been a success. The importance of this is not to be underestimated.

It establishes a new point of departure in our further grappling with the problem.

It sounds the death knell of prohibition as it has been preached—hardly as it has been practiced—during the last 10 years; the end of that bigotry of thought, which, clinging to a fixed idea, is incapable of instruction by experience, and insensible to its lessons.

In the second place, while the Commission is united in its declaration of opposition to the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, two of its members express their individual attitude as favoring repeal (strange inconsistency) and five are in favor of a revision of the amendment.

But more significant than this majority against the amendment, the remaining four accept the proposal of a "revision" of the amendment (which simply means the substitution of something else), after one more effort to enforce it—a sort of die-hard and last ditch effort to do what has proved impossible throughout 10 years of desperate effort.

The "revision" which all the members of the Commission accept in principle, should this final effort at enforcement fail—as it must inevitably, since nothing is suggested, which has not already been tried—substitutes congressional control of liquor legislation for the Eighteenth Amendment. The legislative treatment of the subject would thus be responsive to the popular will, and a question of personal habit or usage, upon which opinion varies with times and localities, would not be held forever in the granite grip of a constitutional ordinance.

The Commission adopts the views on this point, which were expressed by Mr. Hearst in a nation-wide address over the radio from Los Angeles on November 2. The objections to state control—which would result from the "repeal" of the amendment, as distinguished from "revision" were recognized by Mr. Hearst, who declared that the federal government should retain control of liquor legislation.

But in its timorous approach to this grave national problem, the Commission stops here. Mr. Hearst goes on and outlines, with courage and vision, comprehensive proposals which have for their aim, a practical and lasting solution of the admitted evils of the situation.

"There is no question," said he, "that the policy of prohibition, as far as intent is concerned, was a noble experiment.

"But there is equally no question that in operation it has proved an ignoble failure."

In addition to retention of federal control, he proposed to allow restricted manufacture of alcoholic beverages under federal licenses; to monopolize the distribution of such alcoholic beverages, maintaining a high standard of quality and price; and the sale of such alcoholic beverages, preferably light wines and beers, in limited quantities, to licensed restaurants, hotels and homes, but not to any institution whose license shall have been revoked because of misuse or abuse of its privileges.

How well this outspokenness illustrates the old saying that you cannot discuss a subject without making some allusion to it.

Man of Her Dreams

Every normal girl wishes, in heart of hearts, that she could find somehow, somewhere, some DAY—

* * *

* * *

A man with a smile like that of the Prince of Wales, legs like the man in the garter advertisements, and a chin like the man in the collar advertisements. A man whose shirtfront never bulges, whose collar never wilts, and whose chin is never rough.

* * *

A man who can converse in some more intelligible language than college slang and talk about SOMETHING besides himself, his achievements, his conquests, his complexes, her eyes, his opinions—and Rising.

* * *

A man who can believe that she LIKES him without jumping at the conclusion that she is trying to LAND him.

* * *

A man who knows instinctively when a kiss would be a bore, when it would be a compliment, and when it would be an insult.

* * *

* * *

A man who is neither a fundamentalist who believes that a woman should live with her hand on a hymn-book, her foot on the cradle, her eyes on heaven, and her nose in her husband's socks—nor a modernist who expects a woman to run a house, an office and a nursery, a motor-car and a club with one hand, and wait on a man with the other.

* * *

A man who can slide gracefully through a corset dance without either wastefully wearing every pretty woman in the room on his shoulder or a [illegible] and refusing to dance at all.

* * *

* * *

A man who is not "too good for this world," but not entirely without a reason to reward in the next one.

* * *

A man in love such as never was or ever will be found anywhere except in a woman's imagination and a young girl's dreams.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—Diary of a modern Pepys: This day a gentleman wearing white spats, puffie and frock coat used persuasive eloquence to secure a fairish sum to make us, as he put it, "rich beyond dreams of avarice." But gazing at him I could think only of Marks, the lawyer, in Uncle Tom's Cabin.

Came a jug of brandy with a music box inside which played upon lifting the stopper and so through the town. And on 6th avenue a tipsy policeman lurched against me mumbling: "Whuz you tryin' to do?" to which I replied: "Mind my own business," surprised at my sudden bravado.

In the evening to a stag dinner at the Metropolitan Club and among those attending were John Hearst, Ray Long, Frazier Hunt, Harold Ross, Charles Hanson Towne, Charles Francis Coe, Dave Town and Floyd Gibbons. And Montague Glass and E. D. Coblenz told dialect stories, amazingly neat.

* * *

New York's most extravagantly eulogized sophisticate is Peter Arno, artist who created the Whoops Sisters. In his late 20's he is the leading good natured sneerer of things as they are. Native born, Arno is the son of Supreme Court Justice Arnoux Peters, the "Peter Arno" being his pseudonym. Early he showed talent for the piano, went to Yale and organized a collegiate orchestra. For a time he tickled the ivories at Gil Boag's Rendezvous, accompanying the dancing of Gilda Gray.

* * *

Arno's art career was largely an accident. He presented his Whoops Sisters, two bonneted and cockney ladies with a jovial commonness, to Life which returned it by first mail. Judge then retected it, but the New Yorker, faintly struggling for notice, accepted it. This launched both the artist and the magazine on the top wave.

* * *

Arno is a striking replica of a collar ad. boy, glorified by the brothers Lyendecker. He has the perfect profile and airplane shoulders and wears anyone of his reputed 30 suits with a dash. In public he is self effacing and belies the tabloid tattle of his extraordinary exuberances.

Ned Weyburn is to direct one of the spring revues thus returning to a field he abandoned to conduct a dance academy. He is the strictest of all stage disciplinarians. Back of the foothlights he is known as "High Pockets." He thunders and barks through rehearsals, stopping proceedings at intervals to let go a searing squelch. Legend has it, he once worked an entire company into such fury that standing in the wings a cast iron bar grazed him. He missed avenging death by an eyelash. Yet Weyburn has turned out as many musical show dance stars as any other instructor.

At the peak of the economic eclipse a millionaire household, consisting of father, mother, two daughters and a son, dismissed 16 servants, leaving a paltry 14 to do the work. Thus illustrates another horror of the rich in the wonder city.

A gentleman of Wall Street writes in to know if we had in our town a specialist in biting off tails of puppy dogs. We had and furthermore he was a man of other talents, chief of which were stopping runaways and balancing three pool balls on top of each other.

Man and boy, I have run across several men bearing the name of Eric. As in fiction so in real life each was a superior and distant person puffed with a sort of worldly knowledge. So somehow I began to abhor all Erics until last evening. This Eric was a taxi driver who carted me on a lonely spin through Central Park to a West Side apartment. At the destination he said: "You're the second mug I druv through the park today a'talkin' to hisself. See"—pointing to a mirror—"I can pike you in that." Both his candour and smile were warming and I rather hope it is the beginning of a beautiful friendship. Yet I still feel pretty silly.

A year ago jittering out loud on a dark deserted street I collided with a stranger. "Lost my dog!" I lied. And the poor sap searched around with me 15 minutes for an imaginary pooch.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Must a "good mother" be a loving one? Should a mother be emotionally excited and ecstatic about her children—should she thrill at their touch, chil" at the thought of their danger, experience all the traditional delights and despairs of "mother love?" OR CAN SHE BE A GOOD AND SUCCESSFUL MOTHER WITHOUT WHAT IS COMMONLY KNOWN AS MATERNAL AFFECTION?

A strange question? And yet, if you really know mothers, it won't surprise you. For despite tradition, NOT ALL MOTHERS ARE FOND OF THEIR CHILDREN.

Here's one. The letter, I suspect, is written by a mother-in-law or indignant maiden aunt, for it is an outraged letter—righteously horrified at this unnatural monster.

"I know a mother of two sons," she says. "They are both handsome boys, the older ten, the younger five years of age. They're devoted to their mother, but she, although she is kind to them, HAS NO MOTHER LOVE. Their father adores them, but the home is not happy because of this lack in the mother. She knows of her fault. She lies awake at night and prays over it and asks God's help. But she can't change. Since her own childhood, she has never felt warm affection for children. Don't you think that this will prove disastrous for the boys. ISN'T IT HER DUTY TO LEAVE THEM AND LET THE FATHER BRING THEM UP ALONE?

Mrs. A. J. C.

Dr. Watson should have the answering of that letter, though his answer would probably start a considerable riot. For, far from believing that mother love is necessary or even an asset in raising a child, Dr. Watson believes it is a menace. If he had his way, he would remove all children from their mothers' influence, while they are still infants. He has done this with his own children in spite of his devotion to their mother. And whether you agree with his theory or not you do know this.

The FONDEST heart is not always the FAIREST. Indeed it is often the most unfair. Emotional contact with the mother hinders quite as often as it helps. It is not true that "there's nothing on earth like a mother's love." There are many things on earth healthier and wiser for children than the love of some mothers. And the world would have been spared many a coward and crook and weakling, if some of us had been born orphans.

What is love anyway? Is it an affair of the head or the heart? Is it a desire to coddle and cuddle and kiss? Or is it a determination to play fair, to serve, to guide and, sensibly, guard? That depends on the one who is doing the loving. There is no set pattern for love. Each one of us loves in a different way. Some of us love with our heads, some with our hearts. The greatest and happiest mortals love with both head and heart. But all love is to be judged by its results, rather than by its degrees Fahrenheit.

A cool mother may, in the long run, prove to be the best mother, she may turn out braver, better balanced citizens . . . freer souls. And on the other hand, an adoring mother may be, because of her emotional nature, a constant irritant—nagging, jealous, fearful, suspicious. For a mother is quite as beset by selfishness and silliness as any other mortal. Love like charity, covers a multitude of sins. And an innocent child is often the tragic victim of Too Much Mama.

Text for Today This then is the message which we have heard of him, and declare unto you, that God is light, and in him is no darkness at all.—I. John, 1:5.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Don't be too effusive or you will get the reputation of being insincere.

You have met or had guests of this sort.

At times you have wished that you might be as enthusiastic as they are.

Their apparent ability to appear pleased whether you are or not, is a trait you wish that you possessed.

You envy their ability to make the other fellow feel important and feel that he is creating pleasure when you know the reverse is true.

But this sort can deceive only the inexperienced, those who have not studied the ways of human nature very closely.

It is an assumed character and manner and the one who is honest but blunt is to be preferred.

Even though your reception be cold, you should prefer the truth. It is worth something to know in what light you stand.
